Wage Bill Set For Passage Tomorrow in Both Houses

Conferees Vote Report, Approve Plans for Swift Action.

Sunday Session Clears the Way

(Partial Text of Bill, Page 7.)

By William V. Nesslv.

The months-long battle over a minimum-wage, maximum-hours law for the Nation's industries came to a close yesterday morning when a joint conference committee formally approved a compromise bill and plans were made to speed it through both houses of Congress tomorrow.

At a Sunday session, held to expedite clearing of the way for adjournment this week, the measure, embodying some concessions to Southern legislators who have held out for differentials favorable to Dixie's industries, was formally agreed upon.

The bill will be reported to the House today, where it must lie one day before action. Tomorrow it will be called up by Chairman Mary Norton, of the Labor Committee, and immediate passage is taken as a matter of course. Senate action to the same effect tomorrow also was confidently predicted. The measure then would be sent to the White House for signature by President Roosevelt, who dramatically revived the wage-hour fight after it had been shelved for this session by the House.

25 Cents an Hour Basic.

The compromise bill provides:

A 30-cent minimum effective one year later and a 40-cent rate at the end of seven years, except where establishing such a rate would curtail employment.

Maximum hours per week would start at 44 for the first year, drop to 42 for the second and reach 40, the ultimate goal, in the third.

Immediate appointment of an administrator, within the Labor Department, at $10,000 a year salary, and selection by him of an industry committee for each industry.

The industry committee would fix the minimum in each industry, after the 30-cent wage has been reached, by classifying the industry as to the size of its units and naming the highest minimum wage each classification could pay, up to 40 cents, without curtailing employment.

Three Criminals Kill One Jailer, Beat Other, Flee

Galveston, Tex., June 12 (AP).—Three criminals shot their way out of the county jail here today, killing Jailer Ernest E. Goode, 41, and beating Jailer William Lindgren, 52, with an iron pipe.

The trio, Peter John Calandra, 28, Roland C. Tyler, 28, and Edward Francis Sutton, 34, all under burglary sentences, stole an automobile and sped into the business section here.

Missing Airliner, 9 Aboard, Found

Mariposa, Calif., June 12 (U.P.).—Sheriff J. J. Castagnetto, of Mariposa County, tonight announced the wreckage of a T. W. A. air liner, missing since March 1, with nine persons aboard, had been found in Yosemite National Park.

An unidentified Fresno youth discovered the wreckage about 15 miles north of Wawona on Buena Vista Peak, above Buena Vista Gap.

Cuba Is Urged to Seize Foreign-Ruled Industry

Havana, Cuba, June 12 (U.P.).—Cuba should imitate Mexico's struggle for economic independence and expropriate all foreign controlled industries, labor leaders declared today at a mass meeting honoring Mexico and the policies of President Lazaro Cardenas' administration.

4 Drown as Rowboat Overloaded With 11 Swamps in Potomac

Children in Bow Push It Under Water; Seven Are Rescued.

Four persons, three of them children, drowned in the Potomac River yesterday before the eyes of their horrified families when a rowboat, carrying 11 persons, nosed under and sank at Seneca, Md.

According to Montgomery County police, the flat-bottomed boat was designed to carry not more than five persons in safety.

The victims, all of Merrifield, Va., were:

Paul R. Grimm, 43.
Lucille Hogan, 12.
Franklin Hogan, 6.
James Jennell, 7.

Six children and the operator of the rowboat were rescued. They were:

William H. Eskridge, 30, and his daughter, Barbara, 12, of East Falls Church, Va.; Howard Mills, 13, and his brother Frank, 9, and Robert Mills, 7, all of West Falls Church, Va.; Walter Birkley, 12, and Dorothy Hogan, 13, of Merrifield.

The tragic boating party was organized at a picnic of nearly 50 persons, including the families of the victims, at Compton's farm, Loudoun County, Va.

From Eskridge and from Melvin Wheeler, who rescued Eskridge and five of the children, was learned the grim outline of what happened when their boat went under.

Eskridge told Montgomery County Policeman Bill Crawford he went across in a small boat to Seneca and there rented a larger rowboat. He took it back to the picnic and, after attaching an outboard motor, the two men with nine children all got into the boat.

"I operated the motor and we got half way across the river, just about 150 yards above the dam, when all of a sudden most of the children ran to the front of the boat, causing it to sink," he said.

"Mr. Grimm jumped out of the boat into the water and I yelled at the children to come back. They stayed in the front and the boat kept sinking.

"We were all in the water in a moment and the children were clinging and climbing over me and Gas Station Attendant Is Killed Instantly When Car Hits Light Pole.

Three persons died yesterday and seven more were injured as a result of traffic accidents in and near the District.

James Krahling, 21, of 1314 Twenty-seventh street southeast, a gas station attendant, was killed instantly when the car he was driving struck a lightpole on the Marlboro Pike at Forestville, Md. The machine was demolished.

A passenger in Krahling's car, John Spalding, 22, 1601 Thirtieth street southeast, was reported in satisfactory condition at Casualty Hospital, where he is being treated for head and chest injuries and multiple lacerations.

Krahling and Spalding were returning from an outing on Chesapeake Bay.

Woman, 80, Hikes 40 Miles to Visit Niece in Takoma

After a two-day hitch-hiking tour over Virginia roads and railroad tracks, Mrs. Carrie Locke, 80, was at the home of a niece in Takoma Park, Md., last night, saying she was glad her spectacular disappearance from her home in Shenandoah, Va., had "stirred things up a little in that dead town."

MRS. LOCKE.

Tired of Shenandoah and lonely since the death of a nephew, Mrs. Locke left home early Tuesday to come to Washington.

"I just wanted to see my favorite niece," she explained last night, looking across the room at Mrs. Charles Downey, with whom she is staying at 204 Cockerille avenue.

Proud that she finally had arrived in Washington, Mrs. Locke told how she covered 36 miles the first day, and spent the night with a friend at Sperryville, Va. After a police radio broadcast, she was recognized

C.I.O. to Seek Security Boost To Create Jobs

Lewis Drive Includes Bid for U. S. Financing of Pensions.

By the United Press.

Chairman John L. Lewis of the Committee for Industrial Organization began a drive last night to obtain broadening of the present social-security program as a means of reducing unemployment.

Lewis announced his campaign in accepting a report by the C. I. O.'s standing committee on social security, which urged a five-point expansion of the Federal program, to benefit the "great masses of American workers."

The committee, which is headed by Charles P. Howard, suggested:

"Immediate and adequate" old-age pensions financed from general Federal revenues instead of by taxation upon workers.

Launching of a health program of state medicine and medical cooperatives.

Revision of the present unemployment-insurance program.

The committee declared that the suggested program would withdraw large numbers from the present employable classes, thus easing the burden of unemployment, and would insure the "physical well-being" of the Nation's workers.

The scientists were killed when the plane in which they were flying from Singida to Dodoma and Dar-Es-Salaam crashed June 6. The pilot, W. M. Bawden, also was killed.

Aide Denies WPA Misuse In Kentucky

No 'Political Eunuchs,' But Clients Are Free, Report Asserts.

By the Associated Press

Howard A. Hunter, sent to Kentucky by WPA Chief Harry Hopkins to investigate charges that WPA is misusing Federal funds for political purposes, yesterday denied that there had been any such misuse.

The charges had been made by Brady Stewart, campaign manager for Gov. Chandler, who is opposing Senator Barkley for the Democratic Senatorial nomination.

Hunter made his statement in Louisville at about the same time Representative Snell, of New York, House minority leader, was declaring the closing days of Congress had been marked by the most "brazen, shameless playing of politics" he had seen in 24 years in Congress. He hit at Democratic leaders for their asserted refusal to punish those "who use Federal funds to play politics with human misery."

Fish Joins Attack.

Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, also entered the verbal warfare, declaring:

"Both branches of Congress refuse even to place any check on the use of relief funds for political purposes. This shocking and disgraceful partisan action practically encourages the use of relief money to prime primary and election pumps to help elect 100 per cent supporters of the New Deal."

Hunter's statement said:

"The misuse of Federal relief funds for political purposes by the WPA could only come specifically first, by actually discharging, or threatening to discharge, needy unemployed people working for the WPA, on account of their political faith or votes, or second, by deliberately employing unnecessary or ineligible people on the WPA to pad the rolls in favor of some political candidate, or third, by forcing WPA employes to contribute money to a political campaign.

All Charges Denied.

"I am convinced, after investigation, that the State and district administrative officials of the WPA in Kentucky have repeatedly made it clear to WPA workers that their jobs in no way depend upon who they vote for in any primary or election. It has been made plain by these officials to all foremen and supervisors of projects that any foreman or supervisor will be promptly dismissed upon any evidence of such threats to project workers."

Hunter said he had investigated the charges and had been unable to confirm either the general statements of political activity by the WPA or any of the specific incidents charged to the relief organization.

The assistant administrator said

Belgium Records New Earthquake In Wake of First

Brussels, June 12 (AP).—A new earthquake, considerably weaker than that which jolted a corner of Europe from England to the Rhineland yesterday, was recorded today in Belgium. The tremor lasted three seconds.

Although yesterday's disturbance was felt in four other nations—England, France, Germany and the Netherlands—Belgium suffered most severely with the death of three persons and the injury of 20.

There was scattered damage to buildings in Belgium and northern France.

Virginian Puts Bullet in Heart After Bidding Wife Good-by.

"Tired of being broke," a 24-year-old father early yesterday told a policeman he had perpetrated two Washington holdups, said good-by to his wife and shot himself through the heart. He died almost immediately.

The suspect, who said he was the "thin man" wanted for holdups in the District, was Charles B. Miller, employe of a Washington awning company. He was arrested while asleep in the rear seat of his car by Carl McIntosh, Fairfax County policeman, who saw the machine parked near Miller's home near McLean, Va.

Charles B. Miller.

McIntosh permitted Miller to rouse his wife and talk to her when she came to the window. Then, still holding his prisoner, he allowed him to return to the car for his hat and coat.

In the darkness, Miller drew a pistol he had used in a holdup only a few hours before and fired a shot into his chest. He was pronounced dead after McIntosh had taken him to Georgetown Hospital.

The two robberies netted Miller only $8. When he confessed to McIntosh, he said he was "tired of being broke" and was burdened with debts.

Mrs. Miller once was widely known as a horsewoman. She competed and won several cups in events at Warrenton, Middleburg, Falls Church and Fairfax. Her favorite and best-known mount was Magic Girl, a jumper and her most consistent winner.

Plane Sales To England Stir Protests

Five Peace Groups Would Include Britain in 'Moral' Embargo.

Charge Bomb Attacks on India Civilians; Back Nye-Fish Proposal.

The Administration was called on by five peace organizations yesterday to block the sale of 400 American airplanes ordered by Great Britain, to cost $25,000,000.

Taking cognizance of Secretary of State Hull's appeal designed to induce manufacturers of planes to refuse to sell them to powers that bomb civilian populations from the air, the organizations said:

"It is well known that Great Britain is one of the offenders in this practice. The bombing of helpless women and children on the northwest frontier of India is a matter of common knowledge. If the Administration wants to halt barbarous practice, the British plane order should be stopped now."

Say Neutrality Act Ignored.

The organizations are the National Council for Prevention of War, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, World Peaceways, Fellowship of Reconciliation, and the Keep America Out of War Congress.

Their statement said:

"A new commerce in munitions, like that which drew us into the World War, is rapidly growing up with European nations. The Administration's policy of ignoring the neutrality law has left the country without protection from such involvement. Once again we are permitting great industries to expand on the bloody profits from war trade.

"As the preparations for war today are going forward on a scale five times as large as they were in 1913, so will the $58,000,000,000 profits from the World War be vastly increased in the conflict now impending. The disruption of our economic life as a result of stoppage of this war trade at any given moment in the future will be too great for any Administration to dare to face. It would have been easy to have prevented this process from beginning. It will be less easy today to stop it from continuing. But tomorrow, if a general war comes abroad, we will again face the alternative of economic panic or embroilment in war.

Back Nye-Fish Resolution.

"We call upon Congress to set up protection against this involvement in other people's wars through war trade by passing before adjournment the Nye-Fish resolution providing for an embargo on exports of munitions to all countries at all times."

At the same time, Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, attacked State Department policies, holding they are moving the United States toward involvement in a European war.

A member of the House Foreign Affairs committee, Tinkham assert-

Heat Wave Ends As Sudden Storm Drenches Capital

A thunderstorm that broke over the city shortly after 3:30 p. m. yesterday sent thousands of Sunday pleasure-seekers scurrying for shelter and within a half-hour drove the temperature down 24 degrees from its high for the day—and year—of 95 degrees.

A gusty wind that drove out of the west with the storm upset several sailing craft on the Potomac and knocked down tree limbs throughout the city. Harbor police, who sent out three patrol boats as the skies darkened and the wind came up, pulled the drenched amateur sailors to shore without mishap.

In Fairfax County telephone and power service was interrupted when tree-limbs, snapped by the wind, dragged wires to the ground.

The mercury began to climb once more after the thunderstorm, but had reached only 73 degrees at 5 p. m. The Weather Bureau officials predicted showers for last night with clear skies and cooler for today.

Rain hampered the Japanese drive on Chengchow and thus delayed concerted offensive on Hankow.

Japanese fliers again raided Canton, but their bombs landed mostly on areas already devastated.

Yarnell Defies Japan.

By the United Press

Shanghai, June 12.—Admiral Harry E. Yarnell tonight turned down a Japanese request that American and other foreign shipping and naval vessels evacuate a 200-mile stretch of the Yangtze River between Wuhu and Hankow as a drive to Hankow was ready to start.

He informed Japanese naval commanders the American warships would go "wherever Americans are in danger."

The commander of the United States Asiatic fleet made his position known through the American consulate general in a direct reply to the suggestion of Japanese naval officials that all foreign vessels leave the river area between Wuhu and Kiukiang.

"Principles" Set Forth.

In a sharply worded message, Yarnell set forth three "principles" of American naval operation in Asiatic waters:

The United States Navy will retain complete freedom of movement on the Yangtze and will proceed to any place where Americans are in danger.

The American command will not change the color of its warships, which are painted white, to conform to any color scheme suggested by the Japanese.

The United States does not regard the warning of Japanese naval officials relative to the Yangtze as relieving the Japanese "in the slightest degree" of responsibility for damage or injury to United States warships.

Plans Inspection Tour.

Yarnell reinforced his refusal to accept the Japanese request by planning an inspection of American fighting ships stationed up the Yangtze.

He made his attitude even more specific by "informing" the Japanese of his intention of making the trip, instead of "requesting" permission, as the Japanese command previously had suggested.

800 at Foundry M. E. Hail Pastor's Attack on Canton Air Raids.

A congregation of 800 men and women in the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday rose in dramatic acclamation of a resolution calling for embargo on shipment of war materials to Japan. The action followed immediately the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris' stern condemnation of Japanese "ruthlessness," delivered from his pulpit.

The resolution and its reception are unprecedented in the 123-year history of the Foundry Church, Dr. Harris said.

Before offering the statement for approval of his audience, the pastor declared himself in favor of immediate rupture of diplomatic relations between the United States and Japan.

"It is just as incongruous to maintain relations with Japan," the cleric said, "as it would be to entertain the Cash kidnaper in our homes." He praised the "bravery" of President Roosevelt's Chicago speech calling for a quarantine of aggressor nations, but said the speech had not been translated into policy "because public opinion has not been mobilized behind it."

Dr. Harris quoted with approval Theodore Roosevelt's statement that he put only one thing before peace—righteousness.

"It is unthinkable," he concluded, "that a Christian nation should stand silent while these wanton attacks continue."

The text of the resolution adopted by the congregation is as follows:

"Whereas Japan has day after day ruthlessly bombed the undefended city of Canton, resulting in more than 8,000 dead and wounded noncombatants and untold destruction of property, and has announced

U. S. Is Building Railway Gun to Shoot 20 Miles

By the Associated Press.

Watertown, Mass., June 12.—Death will ride a flat car from coast to coast if America's shores ever are threatened by foreign invasion from the sea.

A new type, eight-inch railway gun in which have been included all artillery improvements developed by the United States since the World War, is practically completed at Watertown arsenal, it was learned today.

Gun and mount weigh 113 tons and can be sped rapidly from the Atlantic to the Pacific coastline with mechanism to send a 200-pound projectile whistling 20 miles across the water toward challenging warships. The gun will fire four shots a minute and its projectiles, traveling 2,400 feet a second, are capable of smashing eight-inch armor plate.

The gun barrel itself is little changed in principle from the first breach-loaders, but years of experimentation since the World War have eliminated, in theory at least,

Rural Fields Most Fruitful, Cleric Asserts

Dr. Cooper Warns of Growing Restlessness Among Urban Masses.

The Catholic Church will find its most fruitful field for growth among the rural populations of America, the Rev. John Montgomery Cooper, D. D., professor of anthropology at Catholic University, told the university's graduating class at a baccalaureate mass celebrated yesterday in the crypt of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conceptoin on the campus. Commencement exercises, the university's forty-ninth, will be held Wednesday.

Of the urban masses, Dr. Cooper said that "we are fairly well represented among them," with "probably one-third" members of the Catholic Church. But he warned of a growing restlessness and lessening loyalty among them.

"At heart their faith is sound," he said, "their lives are, in aspiration at least and often to a notable degree in reality, warmed with the divine. But there are signs of restlessness that is not far from anti-clericalism and anti-religion among increasing numbers. And back of most of it appear to be economic inequalities, a feeling among the have-nots that their more fortunate Catholic brethren, clerical and lay, have little concern for the sufferings of the less fortunate.

". . . As graduates of the Catholic University, you are expected in these times to be fired with a burning thirst for justice to the poor, and to go about doing your part in bringing justice to pass, and to go about intelligently, with knowledge both of the problem and of the ways out of it. When the great urban masses come to know 'hat we are not merely anti this and anti that, but heart and soul for justice, then and then only can we expect them to approach the portals of the Church of God."

The 12,000,000 members of the colored race, he said, in the majority "probably have no particular attitude, friendly 'or unfriendly," toward the Catholic Church, but a growing number are developing "a decidedly unfriendly attitude," because they feel that "we, in spite of our profession of being the church of all peoples and races, in spite of our petty boasts about all colors meeting on equal terms at the altar rail, are little, if any, better than those who heartily feel and frankly utter their racial prejudices."

There is "little hope of remmedy," he said, "and no hope of bringing about a better understanding among the Negro of what the God's Church is and means, unless and until we white members of it honestly and without reservation labor to bring justice to the Negro in place of the present manifold and profound injustices and discriminations under which he suffers."

Officers to View Plants Designated For War-Time Use

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Sixty-five Army, Navy and Marine officers left last night on a four-day tour of the Pittsburgh area to study industrial plants that would make munitions if this country should go to war.

The officers are prospective graduates of a year's study at the Army Industrial College here. Col. Harry B. Jordan, of the ordnance department, headed the group.

Their schedule calls for a trip by boat from Williamsport, Pa., to Homestead, Pa., and thence to steel and other plants elsewhere. They will return Thursday.

The industrial college was established more than a decade ago as a result of World War lessons of the difficulties of gearing a great industrial nation to military pursuits.

Mine Workers Stage Victory Rally in Harlan

Harlan, Ky., June 12 (AP).—Harlan County members of the United Mine Workers of America today paraded to a place near the mine of the Clover Fork Coal Co. at Kitts, Ky., for a "victory celebration"—but the parade and a brief announcement by the union's district president comprised the program.

The gathering celebrated the Sixth United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruling at Covington, Ky., last week sustaining an NLRB order directing the Clover Fork Co. to reinstate with back pay 60 men discharged for union activity. The company is one of 20 on trial in Federal District Court at London, Ky., with 22 coal operators and 22 former mine-guard deputy sheriffs.

Working for Washington

Curtis Hodges Fights Rumor Washington Is Hot in Summer

CURTIS HODGES.

By Christine Sadler

As long as there is a man, woman or child unacquainted with the sights of Washington, the Greater National Capital Committee cannot be totally happy.

"Our tourist figures keep going up, but it's surprising how many people have never been here yet," declares Curtis Hodges, executive director behind promotion of a business which brings around $59,000,000 into the city annually and ranks second only to the Federal Government pay roll in local economic importance.

Just closing a successful spring, during which the April visiting figures ranked 7,000 persons ahead of the April figures for last year, Hodges and his committee have their heads bowed down because they can't think up a way to dispel what is "probably the biggest piece of touris. misinformation in the whole country."

Denies D. C. Is Hot.

The "piece of falsity" is the idea that Washington is hot in summer. "That is a completely wrong idea, comparatively speaking, but there doesn't seem much way we can break it up," Hodges explains. "We're so much cooler than many parts of the Middle West, there's no comparison, and we're a roomy, tree-covered city. But we have to endure a summer slump season just because the false impression got started."

Hodges, key man in the campaigns which have made the Nation cherry-blossom conscious, estimates the annual worth of Washington's visiting business as follows: Conventions, $12,000,000; tourists, $35,000,000; visitors who come on Government business, $10,000,000.

"The last is a low estimate, but it's a hard figure to get at. We're making an effort now to reach each business visitor in such a way that the next time he comes he will bring some members of his family with him and stay to see the town," he says.

Two Days Average Stay.

Figures on tourists, beginning to total in the neighborhood of 3,000,000 annually, are derived from registrations at the Smithsonian Institution. It is believed that 80 per cent of them visit that landmark.

Mount Vernon, the Capitol, and the White House are rated by Hodges as the three most popular visiting spots in the city.

Among statistics which the committee can serve up on a minute's notice are: Washington tourists remain in the city on the average of two days and spend $5 each day; Delaware sends the most visitors per capita; April is the best tourist month; Washington ranks next to New York and Chicago as a convention city; requests for information about the city total between 700 and 800 daily; the 50 moving pictures being circulated about the town are not enough to satisfy demands.

Hodges became executive director of the Greater National Capital Committee in 1930, about six months after it was organized by the Board of Trade. Before that date he had been with the United States Chamber of Commerce and associate editor of The Nation's Business.

Used to Be a Newspaperman.

A native of Indiana, he served a long term as a newspaperman in Indianapolis. He was reporter, city editor, managing editor, and general manager for the Indianapolis News. If he had his "rathers" among every job he's had he'd probably take up police reporting. "Everything else is tame after that," he muses. He belongs to numerous clubs and societies, is the father of two married daughters, and doesn't know if it he has any hobbies.

The Greater National Capital Committee is financed by $50,000 a year raised by the Board of Trade above regular dues paid into the organization. In addition to the vast amount of literature distributed, it finances the annual Hallowe'en parade, stages the international broadcast with children from the embassies at Christmastime, and supports most of the President's Cup regatta.

On Wednesday—George W. White, president of the National Metropolitan Bank and long-time civic leader, will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Gov. Blanton Winship, of Puerto Rico, here last week on official business, is enthusiastic about the tourist opportunities in his island. Reporting on the first five months of the intensive 1938 tourist drive, the Governor said that 18,000 visitors have been entertained in the island as compared to slightly more than 7,000 for the same period last year.

"The proposed cruise which our Institute of Tourism is promoting for Government workers and their friends is being received enthusiastically and will bring a representative cross-section of mainland travelers to our island," he stated. "I have made plans to entertain the cruisers at La Fortaleza, historic official home of governors of the island since 1639." . . . St. Elizabeths Lodge (A. F. G. E.) holds a dance Wednesday evening in Hitchcock Hall, beginning at 8:30 and continuing to midnight. Refreshments will be served later.

Hugh W. Fisher, publicity representative for Local Union 262, N. F. F. E., sends in the following biographical sketch which is printed with pleasure:

Among the officers of N. F. F. E. Local 262 deserving of honorable mention for the efficient and effective character of their efforts in building up the membership, creating a sustained interest in its activities and co-operating with the national organization in the attainment of its legislative and other objectives, is Mrs. Sue Inge, who is a collector, chairman of the entertainment committee and an enthusiastic and energetic participant in all of its affairs.

Born in Baltimore, her education was received at St. Mary's School, Mount Washington, Md., from which she was graduated, and at Anna Burns Private School, Baltimore County, Md. She was in training for nursing for a year. Originally appointed a clerk in the Division of Loans and Currency, Treasury Department, on February 4, 1919, she has served there continuously, advancing to the position of bond profreader.

The preservation and extension of the merit system, in the view of Mrs. Inge, is the pending issue most vitally affecting Government workers; and she regards as next in importance the creation of a court of appeals empowered to make necessary adjustments in personnel administration, both of which are objectives of the N. F. F. E. legislative program.

Several Government employe unions have claimed credit for the new personnel policy in the Agriculture Department. The facts are these: The actual draft of the policy-statement was made in the office of Dr. W. W. Stockberger, Agriculture's personnel director. All of the unions had been pushing for it. The personnel director called in representatives of all the unions and there the final polishing up was made. Aside from this, many individual employes were consulted. No one organization is responsible for it. They all worked together to get it through, just as they should do in all matters of a common interest. If a union wants to claim credit for anything in connection with it, it might point out that a willingness was shown to work in harmony with all other unions—that would be enough to boast about.

a report on each individual charge that was called to the attention of the WPA has been sent to Administrator Hopkins.

No "Political Eunuchs."

In his statement Hunter declared:

"It is taken for granted by any intelligent person that in a major primary election, such as Kentucky faces, the majority of adult citizens of the State will take deep interest in the outcome. It does not seem to me to be reasonable to require that administrative officials of the WPA be intellectual or political eunuchs, or to be placed in a position where they are not entitled to opinions, which opinions frankly may be often and freely expressed. I have no doubt that the majority of administrative officials on the staff of the Kentucky WPA do have such opinions and will no doubt express them."

Hunter said each WPA worker in the State had received a copy of Hopkins' order assuring them of the liberty to vote as they pleased.

Snell declared:

"The tactics of Tammany Hall and Boss Tweed have now been brought inside the doors of the United States Capital. Not even the spoilsmen of Andrew Jackson's day were bolder than have been the New Dealers."

Jenks' Vote Scored.

He also assailed what he called the "shocking and ruthless action" of the House last week in unseating Representative Jenks, New Hampshire Republican. Jenks' seat was given to Alphonse Roy, his Democratic opponent, following an election contest dating back to the 1936 elections.

"The only possible reason at this late date for voting Mr. Jenks out of the House," Snell added, was to place in Roy's hands "a campaign fund of approximately $25,000 taken out of the Treasury.

"Mr. Roy has done nothing to earn two years salary. It has been well known that Mr. Roy would oppose Mr. Jenks this fall. So the Democratic leaders have graciously supplied, with taxpayers' money, a huge campaign fund for his benefit and that of the Democratic Senator seeking re-election this year in New Hampshire."

Van Nuys Watches WPA.

Indianapolis, June 12 (AP).—Senator Van Nuys disclosed plans tonight for a "searching inquiry" in all parts of the State to determine whether Works Progress Administration funds are to be used against him in this campaign for re-election as an independent.

He said, however, "I have great confidence in the fairness and high ideals of State WPA Administrator John K. Jennings and hope and feel that none of that stigma will be permitted to attach itself to Indiana."

Van Nuys was ticketed for discard by the State administration of Gov. M. Clifford Townsend because of his stand against President Roosevelt's proposals to reorganize the Supreme Court.

The Senator said his goal of "100,000 independent voters" to assist in his campaign had been reached.

Nepotism Laid to Barkley.

Robert B. Hardison, formerly a police court judge here but now living in Kentucky and supporting Gov. Chandler against Senator Barkley for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, yesterday charged that Senator Barkley and members of his family have drawn as much as $350,000 in pay from the Government while Barkley has been in Congress.

He asserted that at various times Senator Barkley's father, mother, wife, son, two daughters and both sons-in-law have been on the Federal pay roll. He displayed copies of correspondence he had had with the Commerce Department, in which the department declined to tell him the salary received by the Senator's son, David, while he was employed by the airport division of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

"Probably the public has a right," Hardison said, "to know whom they are employing and what such employes are paid, no matter whom it displeases."

C.I.O. Union Wins In NLRB Ruling

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday certified the United Automobile Workers, C. I. O. affiliate, as exclusive bargaining representative of 407 employes of Marlin-Rockwell Corporation at its Jamestown (N. Y.) plant. The C. I. O. won 175 of the 330 votes cast.

The board also ordered an election within 15 days to determine whether employes of the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement Co. at its Hopkins (Minn.) plant, desire representation by the International Association of Machinists, A. F. of L. union, or by the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, C. I. O., "or by neither." Each union has won one election at the plant and the board ordered another under its own supervision.

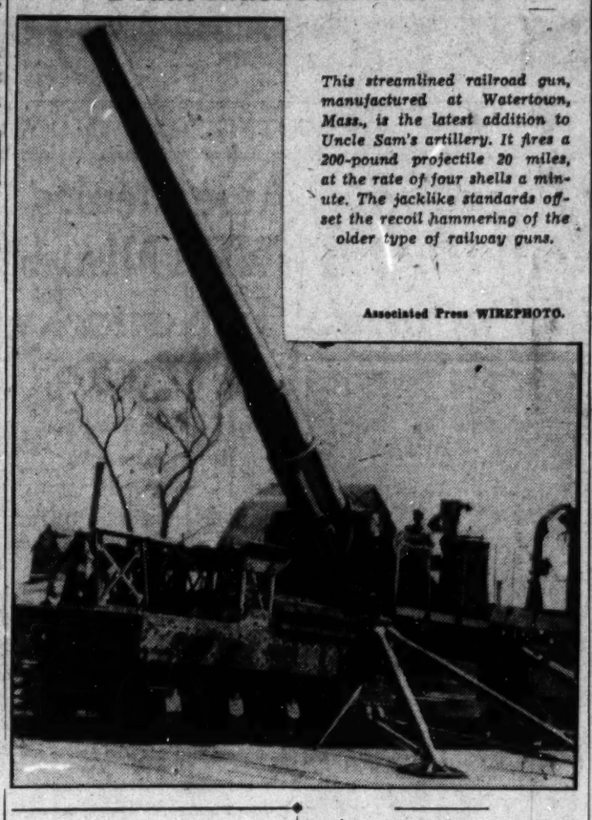
Death Rides on a Flat Car



This streamlined railroad gun, manufactured at Watertown, Mass., is the latest addition to Uncle Sam's artillery. It fires a 200-pound projectile 20 miles, at the rate of four shells a minute. The jacklike standards offset the recoil hammering of the older type of railway guns.

ed Secretary Hull, "while preaching a doctrine of peace," still is "opposing at every turn and in every possible way a policy of neutrality for this country."

Secret Diplomacy Charged.

"The State Department," he charged in a statement, ". . . has in fact become the War Department of the United States, precisely as was the case "under the Wilson Administration in the days prior to the entry of the United States in the World War."

He declared that "while denying entangling foreign alliances, he (Secretary Hull) enunciates a policy which he calls 'parallel action.' According to dispatches from London, the Hull policy of 'parallel action' in relation to Great Britain means that in the event of war the British and American navies will act together.

Wars Boom Plane Trade.

New York, June 12 (AP).—The airplane business boomed during the first four months of this year with foreign customers accounting for more than 30 per cent of the business.

Leighton W. Rogers, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, reported today value of all planes, engines and spare parts delivered was $46,140,702, as compared with $30,491,501 during the same period last year, an increase of $15,649,201.

In the first four months of this year 1,053 planes valued at $24,926,141 were delivered of which 101, valued at $7,818,570 were built for export. The values do not include engines.

During the period ending April 30 last 454 military planes valued at $18,836,347, less engines, were delivered. Commercial airplane deliveries totaled 599 planes valued at $6,089,794, less engines.

Military engines totaled 836 valued at $6,023,296 and commercial engines amounted to 1,185 valued at $4,501,072. Deliveries of airplane and engine spare parts amounted to $10,690,198.

3d Circuit Bench Reversed in Each Case This Session

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

The Third Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia, long under Administration fire as "the most reactionary court in the country," was reversed by the Supreme Court 16 times during the session just ended and was not sustained in a single case, a survey disclosed last night.

Running a close second was the Ninth Circuit Court embracing California, Oregon and most of the other far Western States. This court was reversed 14 times and sustained only 3. Next came the Seventh District—Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin—with 11 reversals and 3 affirmations.

Reversals against all of 10 Circuit Courts and the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia totaled 109 against only 32 affirmations.

Outriggers, embedded in the earth, will limit recoil to inches instead of feet. Massive jacks, suspended from beneath the gun's turn-table mount, maneuver the mount to its firing positions.

"You might call it streamlining," say the Army Engineers, "for we have borrowed freely from the advances of automotive and railroad industries to give us speed backed up by stability."

Watchful of its manpower, the Army also has improved the loading mechanism, substituting a fixed loading tray for the old movable table, which was slow and dangerous to the gun crew.

Recoil Mechanism Secret.

Closest guarded secret of all is the recoil mechanism, which stops the gun after it thunders out its discharge. Heavy coats of alloy steel conceal it from prying eyes and even the gun workers understand only its effect, not its cause.

Experts have figured the force of recoil and the comparison is readily made from the classic analogy the arsenal workers have for a smaller gun—the 3-inch anti-aircraft piece.

"To stop the 3-incher in recoil," they explain, "is the same as stopping a heavy passenger automobile going 240 miles an hour in 28 inches."

Newark, N. J., June 12 (AP).—The Federal court civil rights battle between Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and those he calls "reds" and "undesirables" will be resumed tomorrow when Judge William Clark hears arguments on the validity of several subpenas.

Counsel for the C. I. O., American Civil Liberties Union and coplaintiffs seeking an injunction restraining Mayor Frank Hague and fellow officials from interfering with their activities have said they would fight against complying with several subpenas issued by Jersey City counsel.

Roosevelt Has Chummy Chat With Gillette

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt and Senator Guy Gillette sat down in their shirt sleeves to a chummy luncheon yesterday and talked of a united Democratic Party in Iowa.

The Presidential gesture of friendliness to the Iowan, renominated despite opposition of some high Administration advisers, was carried out in the informality of Mrs. Roosevelt's second-floor study.

Gillette reported that only the two men were present and that both shed their coats to the day's 95-degree temperature before eating a five-course luncheon.

Cold roast beef was the meal's main dish, but Gillette said the talk covered many subjects.

"Very little was said about politics in general or Iowa politics in particular," he said. 'We talked about the farm situation and the President's coming Western trip and other matters."

The President congratulated him on winning the nomination and expressed confidence, Gillette said, that there would be a Democratic victory in Iowa this fall. Both agreed, he added, that the issue between "progressivism and conservatism" had been drawn clearly by the Republican Party's nomination of former Senator Lester J. Dickinson as Gillette's opponent.

"I have always been a liberal," Gillette added. He has voted with the Administration on most Congressional issues, though he was an opponent of the court reorganization bill.

Asked if there was any reference during the hour-and-a-half talk to Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins' expression of preference for his primary opponent, Representative Otha Wearin, Gillette said, "not directly."

Nothing was said, he told reporters, as to whether Mr. Roosevelt would visit Iowa in the campaign.

U.S. Held Ready To Accelerate Wheat Exports

Action by Administration to Forestall Collapse in Prices Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

Agriculture Department officials consider it "quite possible" that the Administration will take the initiative in placing surplus American wheat in export markets rather than depend on regular trade channels to do so.

This possibility was considered, they said yesterday, at a White House conference Saturday, at which President Roosevelt directed Secretary Wallace and State Department officials to survey foreign market possibilities.

Faced with prospects of a record 1938 American crop and surplus, the Administration intends, these officials said, to use every means to prevent a price collapse. On the basis of latest reports, experts foresee a possible supply in this country of 1,220,000,000 bushels, with a surplus above normal domestice and export needs of from 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels.

Loan Program Cited.

Officials said the Administration could take advantage of the forthcoming wheat loan program to facilitate shipments abroad. Wallace has estimated that as much as 200,000,000 bushels may be turned over to the Government by farmers as collateral for wheat loans.

It would be possible for the Government to sell or trade this grain to foreign countries or individual buyers, even if it had to take a financial loss, officials said. Such losses could be absorbed by using funds set aside from customs receipts for disposal of surplus farm products into domestic and foreign channels, they contended. Explaining that $18,000,000 could be used for wheat, they said, this money would allow sale of 180,000,000 bushels abroad at prices 10 cents a bushel below the loan rate.

But whether the Government could find a outlet for this much wheat, in addition to what private traders might sell in foreign markets, was a big question.

Foreign Market Estimated.

Agriculture Department foreign trade experts have forecast a foreign market for between 50,000,000 and 90,000,000 bushels of 1938 American wheat. Exports of 1937 wheat total about 80,000,000 bushels.

The experts said European crop conditions had improved recently following rain throughout most of the northwestern part of the continent. The wheat crop in Italy has been damaged materially, but crops in France and in the Danube Basin seem likely to be larger than last year, they said.

"WHO BUYS THE FINEST TOBACCO?"

I KNOW BECAUSE I'M A TOBACCO PLANTER. FOR YEARS, AT AUCTION AFTER AUCTION, CAMEL HAS BOUGHT MY FINEST LOTS. LAST YEAR CAMEL PAID ME HIGHEST PRICES. I SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE, TO MY WAY OF THINKING, THE COMPANY THAT BUYS THE FINER GRADE OF TOBACCO IS BOUND TO PUT OUT A FINER CIGARETTE. MOST PLANTERS FEEL THE SAME

Mr. Wells speaks for many tobacco growers when he says: "Most planters smoke Camels because they know the finer grades of tobacco bought for them." And as men who know tobacco, they know that Camel's FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS make a world of difference in smoking pleasure. Prove that to yourself. Try Camels.

Warring Auto Union Chiefs to Continue Talks

Lewis Seeking to Close Breach of Martin and Frankensteen.

By the Associated Press.

John L. Lewis sat six hours yesterday with representatives of opposing factions of the United Auto Workers Union, and merely announced afterward that the conference would be resumed today.

None of the 24 members of the union's international executive board, who met with the C. I. O. chairman, would say whether any progress had been made to restore harmony among the leaders of this powerful C. I. O. affiliate.

Martin vs. Frankensteen.

One faction is headed by Union President Homer Martin, and the other by Richard T. Frankensteen, a vice president. Martin deposed Frankensteen as an assistant union president.

Prior to the conference members of the Frankensteen faction said the dispute was whether the union was to operate in the interest of the workers or to maintain union leaders in their jobs.

There were reports that the Martin group might try to oust Frankensteen, Vice President Wyndham Mortimer, and Secretary-Treasurer George Addes.

Factions Avoid Each Other.

Yesterday's conference was agreed upon after leaders of both factions had talked separately with Lewis last week. The full meeting of the board it was understood, was to bring a final and complete airing of all leadership troubles.

Two weeks ago Martin won an unanimous vote of confidence from the board on a harmony program, but subsequent developments, termed "arbitrary action" by the Frankensteen group, precipitated a new split.

Representatives of both sides carefully avoided each other before the conference, registering in separate hotels.

mie Pinn, of Bristow, Va., on the Lee Highway in Fairfax County.

Police said both cars skidded on the wet pavement during a storm. Fields was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition was reported as undetermined.

Two Fort Meade (Md.) soldiers were injured, one seriously, early yesterday when the car in which they were driving crashed into the back of a CCC truck on the Baltimore boulevard south of Beltsville, Md.

The soldiers, John P. Kelly, 28, attached to the finance office at the post, and Claiborne Reid, 23, were taken to the post hospital.

Kelly, driver of the car, received internal injuries when his body was jammed against the steering wheel. Claiborne received cuts and abrasions when his head pierced the windshield.

The truck struck by the soldiers was full of CCC enrollees, none of whom was injured. Police said driver of the truck was Thomas J. Broadnax, 24, of Camp A-3, at Beltsville.

Hearing will be held June 14 before Justice of the Peace George Phillips, at Berwyn.

Meanwhile, in Garfield Hospital, Charles A. Edwards, 47, of 2541 Tenth street northwest, died of a fractured skull and internal injuries received Friday when he was struck by a streetcar at Fourteenth and W streets northwest.

Edwards was the thirty-eighth traffic fatality in Washington this year. Fifty-one deaths had been recorded at this date in 1937.

The streetcar, according to police, was operated by Elmer C. Berhes, 34, who lives at 807 D street northwest.

A colored man killed early yesterday after being knocked into the path of an east-bound bus at Thirtieth and M streets northwest was identified as Newton C. Davis, 24, 1026 Thirty-first street northwest.

Struck by a car driven by James H. Harrod, 21, colored, of 2520 I street northwest, Davis was hurled beneath the wheels of a Capital Transit bus, operated by Dwight K. Denison, 29, 1701 West Virginia avenue northeast. Davis was pronounced dead shortly after he was taken to Emergency Hospital.

A 70-year-old colored man, Clarence G. Bundy, of 1210 Half street southwest, suffered head injuries and a fractured leg when he was pinned between the front bumpers of his own car, parked to the side of the Leonardtown Pike at Bryantown, Md., and an oncoming machine. Police said the brakes of the other automobile locked as it attempted to avoid a crash with another vehicle about to pass Bundy's car. At Casualty Hospital Bundy's condition was described as undetermined.

Owner Is Sought For Typewriter Of Levine Notes

Bridgeport, Conn., June 12 (U.P.).—Police and Federal agents tonight sought to trace the owner of a battered typewriter, found near Samp Mortar Reservoir here, on which two purported "ransom notes" in the kidnaping of Peter Levine were written.

A caretaker at the reservoir, Clifford W. Gillette, found the frame and parts of the machinery of the typewriter, traced through its manufacturer to the Fairfield, Conn., railroad depot.

Police said two notes sent to Murray Levine, of New Rochelle, N. Y., father of the kidnaped boy, who disappeared February 24 and whose body was found in Long Island Sound two weeks ago, were identified as having been written on the typewriter. The notes were not written on the typewriter on which the original ransom note of the kidnapers was typed.

Two years ago, members of Miller's family recalled, Mrs. Miller sold her last two horses. Miller, her second husband, whom she married three years ago, had experienced difficulty in finding steady employment from which to finance payments on their bungalow and to provide necessities for himself, his wife and their 2-year-old son, Charles B. Miller 3d.

Miller, who had attended Gordon Junior High School and McKinley High School in Washington, had been employed by the awning company since May 1. Previously he had worked as a circulation agent for a Washington newspaper.

"We can't understand what made him do this," Miller's mother told The Post last night. "Never before in his life had he been in trouble with the police. Something terrible must have come over him to make him do a thing like that. He had always been a good boy. He couldn't possibly have realized what he was doing.

"I know he had been having financial difficulties, but no more than the average young married man. He and his wife were madly in love and just as devoted as they could be to that baby. We simply can't understand it."

The car of the "thin man" was traced to Miller after he had fled empty-handed from a holdup made at a laundry at 420 H street northeast. William McGhee, 232 Twelfth street southeast, noted the license number of the car. Shortly afterward a robber held up a cleaning shop at 5229 Georgia avenue northwest and escaped with $8.

McGhee, Julia Land, employe of the laundry, and Lou B. Hudson, manager of the Georgetown store, identified Miller's body as that of the "thin man."

After police had traced the car, officers kept a watch on roads leading to Miller's home at Silva Station.

Miller was the father of a 2-year-old son, Charles B. Miller 3d. His wife, Mrs. Edna Sopher Conover Miller, is 23.

Miller's father, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, lives with the mother at 817 North Woodrow street in Arlington County.

Funeral services for the son will be held tomorrow.

Arthur P. Rugg, Chief Justice of Mass. Court, Dies

Sterling, Mass., June 12 (A.P.).—Arthur Prentice Rugg, who rose from poor farm boy to become chief justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court since 1911, died today at 76. He had been ill of heart disease for a week.

He was named chief justice in 1911 after serving five years as an associate justice.

Rugg graduated from Amherst College in 1883 from Boston University law school in 1886, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar the same year. He was honored with law doctorates from Amherst, Harvard, Boston University, Williams College and Boston College.

A friend and admirer of Calvin Coolidge, Rugg made the Coolidge memorial address at a joint congressional session February 6, 1933. His reading the decision overruling appeals in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, although he did not write it, achieved him national prominence.

Pay Bill Is Slated for Passage By Both Houses Tomorrow

mands is found in the factors to be taken into consideration by each industry committe in fixing the minima:

Competitive conditions as affected by transportation, living and production costs.

Wages established for like work by collective labor agreements negotiated between employers and employes by representatives of their own choosing; and Wages paid for like work by employers who voluntarily maintain minimum-wage standards in the industry.

The first factor is designed to meet the demands of Southern industry, yet Northerners obtained, in the compromise, a provision that "no minimum wage shall be fixed solely on a regional basis?

Agreement on the measure materially helped to bring nearer adjournment this week.

The spending-lending recovery bill, held up by conference disagreement over the $212,000,000 farm price parity provision and the $300,000,000 increase in the slum-clearance and low-cost housing funds, remains to be disposed of.

Relief Conferees to Meet.

Conferees on the legislation will meet again this afternoon amid predictions that they will complete their work then. Separate House votes on the parity price and housing fund amendments are to be called for. Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the Senate conferees, forecast a final agreement today.

There also is the matter of railroad-aid legislation, raised at the last minute by President Roosevelt. Bills to liberalize RFC loans to the roads and to facilitate reorganization of those unable to meet fixed charges are ready for action if the two houses can be prevailed on to pass them before bringing the session to an end.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said the group would meet early in the week to consider the liberalized loans legislation, and Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, is planning to advance the reorganization bill.

A movement was inaugurated yesterday, also, to rush through legislation providing a system of railroad unemployment insurance. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued an appeal for Congress not to quit without granting "simple justice" by enacting the legislation.

Chairman Lea (Democrat) of California, of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, said he would call the bill up today. Heads of railroad unions have been in the Capital for some days working for passage of the measure.

Postmaster Bill Pushed.

An effort will be made, as well, to obtain Senate action on the revised bill to put postmasters under civil service. The House passed the measure Saturday night and Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, coauthor of the bill, told the Associated Press he expected to call it up in the Senate at once.

O'Mahoney said the bill had three virtues:

"It substitutes the merit system for the spoils in the selection of postmasters.

"It authorizes the selection of postmasters by promotion within the service.

"It prevents evasion of the merit system and the rule of Senate confirmation by requiring that acting postmasters shall not serve for more than six months without the permission of the Civil Service Commission."

Included in what Speaker Bankhead called "a tremendous amount of unfinished business" is a resolution calling for a $500,000 joint Congressional investigation of monopolistic practices, urged by the President. The Senate has passed it. Another pending resolution calls for a seven-man House committee inquiry into the radio industry.

The legislative situation and adjournment prospects will be gone over thoroughly at President Roosevelt's weekly conference this morning with Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn.

Southerners Satisfied.

Showing that the wage-hour battle really was ended, Senators Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, and Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, who led the Southern forces, declared they were "well satisfied" with the compromise and would not filibuster.

"We have a good bill and got most of our important points," Pepper said, adding, "Nobody can get them all."

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, called the measure "the greatest development in our social system since passage of the social security legislation" and declared all of the 14 conferees agreed that it will stand up in court tests, considered certain.

He expressed the view it could survive a test under the "due process" clause of the Constitution "because of its humanitarian aspects."

Many Exemptions.

The industry boards representing management, labor and consumers will be empowered to recommend exemptions from wage and hour standards in their separate industries or areas after considering a wide range of social and economic factors.

In addition to being enabled thus to moderate the approach toward the 40-40 goal the boards may, if they find conditions permitting such action, adopt such standard immediately without waiting for the full seven-year period to expire.

Child labor would be banned, but the seasonal industries, engaged chiefly in the processing of farm products, would be allowed to work employes extra hours for 14-week periods each year. Executive, professional workers, local retail establishments, salesmen, servicing trades in intrastate commerce, seamen, aviation, fishing, farm workers, weekly and semiweekly newspapers with less than 3,000 circulation, street railways, local buses and dairying enterprises are exempted from requirements of the measure, and the child labor restraints are modified with respect to agriculture, motion pictures and the stage.

She arose early Tuesday, she said, and left before other occupants of the house were awake. She took no money and no food and made no special preparations for the journey.

"I walked a lot of the way," she said. "I don't know just exactly how far. Sometimes people stopped their cars and took me along for a while. I just told them I wanted to go to Washington.

"I didn't worry about food. Whenever I got hungry I just stopped at the first place I saw and asked for something to eat. Everybody was very nice about it."

Rides were few at first, because that part of the trip was over little-traveled back roads. Eventually she reached the Sky Line Drive and at one point walked on the tracks of a railroad.

"The people in Sperryville were some surprised to see me. They let me stay there that night, but I started out again the next morning. I wanted to get here and they couldn't stop me."

Alert and bright-eyed with a mass of closely cropped white hair, Mrs. Locke appears much younger than her years. She said her feet were swollen from the trip and that she "almost wore the bottom out" of her shoes. Otherwise, she was none the worse for her trip.

Bishop Dedicates New Building of Holy Comforter

Bishop Freeman yesterday dedicated the new chapel of the Holy Comforter, Seventh and Oglethrope streets northwest, less than three months after he had laid the cornerstone for the new structure on March 26.

A mission of Rock Creek Parish, the chapel's history covers more than 35 years. Special services celebrating completion of the new building were conducted by Dr. F. J. Bohanan, rector of Rock Creek Parish, assisted by the new minister, the Rev. John S. Kromer.

More than 50 members recently confirmed by Bishop Freeman took their first communion at 8:30 a. m. services together with those who have previously been confirmed under the rector's leadership of the last 12 years. Dr. Bohanan was celebrant at the service.

71 Graduated By Academy Of Notre Dame

Education 'Not Growth But Development,' Classes Told by Dr. Russell.

The Academy of Notre Dame held its sixty-fourth annual commencement exercises at Gonzaga College Hall yesterday, 71 members of the senior class and the postgraduate secretarial class receiving diplomas from the Rev. Laurence J. Kelly, S. J., president of Gonzaga College High School.

Education is "not growth, but development," the young women were told by Dr. William H. Russell, professor of philosophy at Catholic University. He urged them to train their faculties by the contemplation and study of the ideal, which, he said, is to be found in the life of the Master.

Just escaping the downpour, the undergraduates, followed by the graduating classes, marched to the hall from the academy. About 1,000 spectators were present.

Rose Fegan gave the salutatory address, and the class essay was presented by Catherine Richards. The Rev. A. Edward Fuller, S. J., spiritual director, presented the candidates for diplomas. Music was furnished by the academy orchestra.

The list of graduates follows:

New Deal to Set Beavers to Work Damming Creeks

By the United Press.

The New Deal slogan, "More abundant life," last night reached out to a select group of unsuspecting beavers in Idaho and Wyoming.

It won't be long before 300 pairs of the animals will be put to work damming up small streams to prevent erosion, the Interior Department said.

The Grazing Division, it was announced, is co-operating with the conservation commissions of Idaho and Wyoming to "encourage" the beavers to do their stuff in the unique experiment.

The "encouragement" consists of placing small colonies of beavers on streams that are well-lined with edible trees. Mud and the beavers' sharp teeth and flat tails do the rest. It costs $8 to trap and transplant a beaver, but each one is said to be worth $300 for conservation purposes.

Franco-Turkish Syrian Pact Near

Paris, June 12 (U.P.).—Turkey, France and Syria probably will negotiate a mutual assistance pact which, in effect, would guarantee the status quo in the Eastern Mediterranean, it was reported tonight.

A Turkish mission arrived in Alexandretta, Syria, late today for official negotiations opening tomorrow.

The agenda for the negotiations includes a Franco-Turkish friendship treaty, a Franco-Turkish-Syrian pact, and Franco-Turkish military conventions guaranteeing security and integrity of Syrian frontiers.

Church Here Asks Embargo on Japan through Government spokesmen its intention of continuing such action.

"Be it resolved that the Government of the United States immediately adopted the policy of non-participation in aggression by planning an embargo on exports to Japan of munitions and war materials, including oil, gasoline, pig and scrap iron, airplanes and airplane parts, machinery and engines, copper, automobiles and auto accessories and chemicals."

Dr. Harris told The Post he would join a delegation from New York, representing Nation-wide church, peace and labor groups, in calling at the White House today to urge "concrete action" against Japan. The delegates also hope to place their demand before Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Senator Key Pittman, chairmen of the House and Senate Foreign Relations committees.

Representatives from about 25 local churches will be among the group calling upon President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead, Senator Key Pittman and Representative Sam McReynolds this afternoon to urge immediate action against Japan's bombing of Canton. Letters and telegrams will be sent other legislators. A world-wide demonstration against Japan's aggression is scheduled for Wednesday.

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church called upon his congregation yesterday morning to support the movement.

Meyer Praised By First Issue Of Ad Clubber

Leading Article Devoted to Luncheon Planned for Post Publisher.

The Ad Clubber, official publication of the Advertising Club of Washington, made its first appearance yesterday, its leading article devoted to the testimonial luncheon to be given Wednesday for Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, on the fifth anniversary of his ownership of the newspaper.

The luncheon will be at 12:30 p. m. at the Raleigh Hotel and will mark the first meeting of the Advertising Club under the new administration, with Alvin Q. Erlich presiding.

Speakers Are Listed.

Felix Morley, editor of The Post, who received the 1936 Pulitzer Prize for distinguished work, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of The Post, and C. C. Boysen, The Post's director of circulation. Guests of honor will include D. M. Bernard, Post business manager.

Recalling that Meyer bought The Post June 13, 1933, the Ad Clubber said he brought to the field of newspaper publishing "a wealth of experience in business and in government."

"Mr. Meyer's career in government," said the article, "was long and distinguished. He served on the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense, the War Industries Board, and the National Committee on War Savings. In 1918, President Wilson appointed him a director of the War Finance Corporation, of which he was later elected managing director. He was later reappointed by Presidents Harding and Coolidge in turn.

Other Posts He Held.

"In 1927 President Coolidge appointed Mr. Meyer, member of the Federal Farm Loan Board and designated him as farm loan commissioner. In 1930 he was appointed member and designated governor of the Federal Reserve Board, by President Hoover. He also served as first chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Mr. Meyer's experience in business helps account for the rebirth of The Washington Post as a successful newspaper under his direction; his years in government help give it an editorial authority equalled by few other newspapers anywhere."

The Ad Clubber is edited by Reid Wallace. Associate editors are Miss Agnes Hope, Mrs. Mildred O. Waugh, Mrs. Helen Halloran, Allen C. Whitehead, William F. Sigmund, Robert Seidel, W. Frank Gatewood and Erie H. Sherman.

14 Are Injured As Czechs Hold Final Election

Sudetens Poll 90.9% in German Area; British Watch Balloting.

By the Associated Press.

Prague, June 12. — Czechoslovakia's fight with her Sudeten German minority moved rapidly today toward an historic decision.

Citizens of some 4,000 communities cast their ballots in third and final polling in the series of municipal elections. Fourteen persons were injured in election disorders.

As they crowded the polling places, the highest juridical authorities of the republic devoted the day to an intensive study of the Sudeten German demands for autonomy and other concessions and of the possibility of satisfying at least some of them within the framework of the constitution.

To Reveal Strength.

More than 1,000,000 Sudeten Germans voted or were registered in towns where the lists of their party, led by stocky Konrad Henlein, were unopposed. They unofficially polled 90.9 per cent of the total vote in Germanic districts.

While the party's demands were not involved in the elections, it was expected the municipal votes would provide a clearer picture by tomorrow of the aggregate strength of the party among Czechoslovakia's German minority.

Also there will be a clearer picture of the strength of Father Andreas Hlinka and his party which demands a measure of self-government for Slovaks.

Bratislavia and other Slovak communities today were presented with the choice of voting for Hlinka's autonomist candidates or those of united republicans loyal to Premier Milan Hodza.

The government had a comfortable majority in Bratislavia, chief city of Slovakia, despite Henlein gains there.

Prague itself was not voting, having participated in the previous elections May 22 and May 29.

A total of 8,170 communities was involved in the choosing today of communal officers, but many had unopposed candidates and therefore did not go to the polls.

British Watch Voting.

In view of large Communist gains in Czech communities in the May 22 and May 29 elections, it was taken for granted today's votes would give further evidence of a swing to the left among Czechs.

It also was taken for granted there would be a repetition of the strong showing made in all Czech districts by the pro-government parties in general—especially the Czech Nationalists and Socialists.

Two official British observers traveled about on the alert for untoward incidents.

They were Maj. Sutton Pratt, British assistant military attache, and Peter Pares, British consul at Reichenberg.

Flandin Warns Germany.

Paris, June 12 (AP).—Former Premier Flandin declared today the Daladier government was prepared to order mobilization to aid Czechoslovakia if she were invaded by Germany. (France and Czechoslovakia are bound by a mutual assistance pact.)

Speaking in Vienne at a convention of his Democratic Alliance Party, he said:

"Many Frenchmen will be astonished to learn that on May 21 the date of the first German-Czechoslovak frontier incidents accompanying the municipal elections) the order for general mobilization was ready.

"Less than 20 years after the Armistice would we see again the tragic posters (calling men to arms)?

"I say it is impossible as long as France herself is not attacked and all methods of conciliation and arbitration are not exhausted to prevent war."

Hess Calls Czechs Menace.

Stettin, Germany, June 12 (AP).—Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's general representative, accused Czechoslovakia today, although not by name, of being a menace to the peace of Europe.

He asserted the little republic was in a condition "practically akin to a state of war."

With Chancellor Hitler listening attentively, Hess spoke at a great rally of natives of Pomerania.

He paid tribute to Der Fuehrer as one who "alone is to be thanked that Europe is not in flames" as the result of Czechoslovak acts.

In the same breath, however, he issued a warning that Germany's love for peace must not be trifled with.

Assailing war agitators, Hess said the right answer to them was "Germany's army, stronger than ever."

Seattle Bakery Strike Is Settled

Seattle, June 12 (AP).—J. B. Fowler, secretary of the Bakers of Washington, said today all union crafts in the industry had returned to work after settlement of a four-day strike.

The settlement came when virtually all groceries were out of bread, and restaurants were "rationing" their scant remaining supplies.

Yellow River Flood Impedes Japan's Drive

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, June 12.—Heavy rains and flood waters, breaking through dikes along the mighty Yellow River, tonight fought on the side of stubborn Chinese defenders of Chengchow and helped to delay the Japanese drive on Hankow, 300 miles to the south.

Five hand grenades were thrown at different places in the Shanghai International Settlement within an hour tonight. One Japanese and three Chinese passersby were injured and an American-owned radio station was damaged.

Ankle-deep mud on the fields and roadways along the Lunghai Railway to Chengchow's east and lowlands inundated by rampant waters restricted the attackers to snail's-pace movements.

The Chinese counterattacked along the Lunghai and reported they had repulsed a Japanese attack on Paisha, 13 miles from Chengchow, where the east-west Lunghai crosses the Peiping-Hankow Railway.

Capitulation of Chengchow is necessary to open the way fully for the Japanese land drive on Hankow, provisional Chinese capital deep in the interior on the Yangtze River.

Pressure Shifts to Yangtze.

The virtual stalemate at Chengchow shifted Japanese pressure to the Yangtze River front and what the Japanese had proclaimed as their naval offensive against Hankow.

A Japanese spokesman said this phase of the war was "progressing per schedule." About 40 Japanese gunboats and transports, bearing landing parties, were reported within 250 miles of Hankow and already in action, supported by warplanes.

Under cover of fire from gunboats, Japanese troops attempted landings on the north and south banks of the Yangtze near Anking, 215 miles downstream from Hankow.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was informed by telephone that 500 Japanese landed on each bank of the river, but that charging Chinese sent them back to their transports.

The Chinese reported eight transports, carrying an entire brigade, were standing upriver from Nanking to attempt a large-scale landing near Anking. Civilian Chinese were reported fleeing Kiukiang in fear of air raids.

Canton Bombed Again.

Canton, China, June 12 (AP).—Japanese warplanes raided Canton by the light of the moon tonight for the sixteenth consecutive day of bombardments, which have inflicted casualties estimated at between 6,000 and 10,000.

Bombs fell in already devastated areas and were believed to have caused little damage. It was estimated between 3,000 and 4,000 had been killed outright or died from wounds. Besides daily raids on Canton, the Japanese blasted surrounding Kwantung Province and adjoining Fukien Province on the northeast.

Mayon Volcano Still Erupting

Manila, June 12 (AP).—Mayon Volcano, which began erupting June 3, was still spouting fire and smoke today, but with less intensity. Five eruptions were recorded in the past 24 hours.

Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner, planned to fly over the volcano in an army plane tomorrow. Philippine Commonwealth officials estimated damage to crops from volcanic ash at $100,000.

Catholic School Gives Diplomas To 25 Students

Twenty-five pupils were graduated from the eighth grade of the Immaculate Conception School for Boys yesterday, at exercises in the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

After religious services, the Rev. John K. Cartwright, pastor, addressed the boys and awarded diplomas. Cartwright told the students they "were privileged to attend the school" and mentioned that many prominent men were graduates. He said Immaculate Conception was the only Catholic grade school in Washington conducted by male teachers, the Brothers of Mary.

Later, Father Cartwright delivered a baccalaureate sermon to the girls of Immaculate Conception Academy.

St. Patrick Statue Blessed as Irish Cut Phone Lines

Saul, County Down, Northern Ireland, June 12 (AP).—A 40-foot statue of St. Patrick was unveiled today overlooking the place where Ireland's patron saint landed more than 15 centuries ago to conduct his first mission.

Seventy-seven-year-old Joseph Cardinal Macrory climbed the 300-foot hill to bless the statue in a wild wind before 15,000 persons.

Land lines laid for the broadcast of his bessage to Dublin were cut before the ceremony, but repaired and guarded by police. It was the first time Saul was in telephonic communication with the rest of the country.

Suspect in Slaying Of Nazi Exile Shot

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—Shot to death by a man standing on the running board of a passing automobile, Eugene D'Alessandro, 45, was identified by police today as a man questioned and released in an investigation of the slaying last February 20 of Dr. Max Bernhard Sammet, dentist and volunteer exile from Germany.

Dr. Sammet was found dead of bullet wounds at entrance of a vacant house on the West Side and his slayer never was caught. A check of D'Alessandro's fingerprints showed he was sentenced to Leavenworth Penitentiary March 28, 1931, on a liquor conspiracy charge.

Yarnell Defies Japan; Yangtze Ships Will Stay

response to a Japanese request that American gunboats and other war vessels be painted red, instead of white, so they would be distinguished more easily by Japanese aviators.

Yarnell's reply said:

"United States naval vessels throughout the Yangtze area are painted white with large American flags painted upon the awnings, and for this reason the nationality of the vessels should be apparent to any aviator at several thousand feet altitude."

The statement said the movement of American warships within a specified danger zone would be communicated to Japanese and Chinese officials in an effort to avoid "unnecessary exposure."

Yarnell explained that the evacuation of American nationals was "of paramount importance" and would be carried out.

Admiral Yarnell relieved Admiral Orin G. Murfin as commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet October 30, 1936, the exchange taking place aboard the flagship of the fleet, the U. S. S. Augusta, at this port. Yarnell previously had been commandant of the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard.

He appeared to have created an unusual situation in September, 1937, when 20 days after President Roosevelt declared Americans had been warned to leave China and those remaining did so at their own risk. Yarnell issued firm orders to his blue-jackets to protect Americans despite "dangers" incident to such a course.

The admiral's orders were not made public by the Navy Department in Washington until 72 hours after they had been communicated to officers of the fleet. In issuing that order Yarnell said:

"In giving assistance and protection our naval forces may at times be exposed to dangers which in most cases will be slight, but in any case these risks must be accepted."

The following month Yarnell charged Japanese misquoted a statement of Ambassador Johnson regarding evacuation to justify the aerial bombing of Hankow. A Japanese spokesman said Johnson had advised the Japanese navy all Americans and other foreigners would be evacuated from the Hankow area by noon September 26.

Yarnell said that Johnson told the Japanese foreigners would be evacuated from the territory after that date.

Admiral Yarnell has seniority rank over officers of the British, French, Italian and Dutch fleets in Asiatic waters.

Rebels Invade Outer Sections Of Castellon

Column to North Reported to Have Trapped 36,000 Loyalists.

By the United Press.

Castellon Province, Spain, June 12.—Insurgent columns fought through the outlying streets of Castellon de la Plana, key to the conquest of Valencia, as a column to the north reportedly closed a trap on 36,000 loyalists.

Advance patrols reported white flags of surrender, indicating military evacuation of Castellon de la Plana, were flying from housetops, but that suicide squads of "loyalist "Milicianos" were sniping from roofs and windows in the outskirts in an attempt to impede occupation of the Mediterranean seaport.

As Gen. Miguel Aranda's spearhead was carried to within 2 miles of the city proper, a column 11 miles to the north seized the fishing port of Oropesa, trapping 36,000 loyalists.

With the occupation of Oropesa, Aranda's left wing accounted for an advance of 10½ miles along a 13-mile front to the north and west of besieged Castellon. Thousands of loyalists were reported to have surrendered in the pocket north of Castellon. The insurgents also took the inland towns of Benloch, Cabanes and Puebla de Tornesa.

A fleet of 41 insurgent planes dropped 300 bombs on the beach at Sagunto, 25 miles south of Franco's spearhead, but caused only slight damage.

Italians Back in Action.

Rome, June 12 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, today asserted continued French support of the Spanish government had caused the Italian Black Arrow Brigade to return to action in the Spanish civil war.

"Their new intervention after a long absence which lasted since April was imposed by long, violent and documented French intervention * * *," Gayda wrote.

Gayda then cited the names of a dozen French generals and lower officers who, he said, were known to be fighting in Spain.

British Lose, Find Sub-Finder Record

Portland, England, June 12 (AP).—Temporary disappearance of a secret document from archives of the world's finest anti-submarine school on H. M. S. Osprey here resulted in a secret court of inquiry last night, it was learned reliably.

The Osprey archives are known to contain papers relating to one of Great Britain's most prized instruments—a silent detector ray for hunting submarines.

Authorities called admiralty intelligence agents when the document disappeared and ransacked student lockers until the "borrower" returned it.

Undulant Fever Hits 12 Million, A. M. A. Is Told

10% of U. S. Infected by Slow-Spreading Illness From Cow, Goat Milk.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 12.—Two research workers reported today a slow, steady spread of undulant fever was making it one of the major disease threats in the United States.

With an exhibit at the convention of the American Medical Association, these workers, Dr. E. S. Gould, M. D., of Detroit, and Dr. I. F. Huddleston, a veterinary surgeon, of Lansing, Mich., put their case before American physicians.

Dr. Gould said probbaly 10 per cent of the country's population had become infected with the bacteria causing undulant fever and perhaps 1 per cent of the infections caused illness.

He said the figures indicated 120,000 Americans were on the sick list at any given time because of this fever.

The infected areas, he said, were becoming larger because the disease had obtained a substantial foothold and because organized eradicative measures had failed to "scratch the surface" of the onslaught.

He reported the government had made available $50,000,000 for the battle since it first took cognizance of the situation three years ago but said it would take "billions" to wipe out the germ in this country.

Undulant fever germs reach human beings through infected, unpasteurized milk, through milk products of the cow and goat, in the handling of infected meat, and from human carriers, Dr. Gould said.

In animals, particularly cows, it is known as bang's disease. The germ lives in the soil as well as in human or animal flesh, and thus can be picked up by cattle turned out to pasture in infected areas.

Severe illness and a fluctuating fever characterizes first stages of its attack in human beings. The victim is incapacitated for three to five months in average cases and sometimes the ailment continues indefinitely.

Air-Cooling Halves Colds in Congress

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Dr. George Calver, the Capitol doctor, believes members of future Congresses have a better chance of keeping healthy than their predecessors.

He said yesterday operation of the new $3,000,000 air-conditioning system in the Capitol and its three office buildings had reduced colds among the members by half.

Thief Who Knew Safe Combination Gets $150

Man Wins Packard While in Jail; May Drive It to Court

Wayne Vernon, 21-year-old Fairfax County, Va., resident, was owner of a new Packard sedan yesterday, awarded him while he was in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Vernon was named the winner at midnight Saturday as the Falls Church Lodge of the I. O. O. F. concluded its carnival. But he wasn't there to claim the prize because he had been arrested a few hours before, after he and other youths had become involved in an argument.

Told of his luck when released from jail at 1 a. m., he went yesterday to claim the sedan and will probably drive it to the courthouse today when he appears to answer the disorderly conduct charge.

Eleven at St. Rose's Receive Diplomas

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate, yesterday conferred diplomas on 11 seniors at St. Rose's Technical School, in ceremonies held at the school chapel, 2200 California street northwest.

The Rev. Joseph R. Slavin, O. P., of Catholic University, said the graduates, like the apostles, would go into a world of paginism and indifference to Christ, and urged them to be "doers of the word, not hearers."

Those who received diplomas were Elena Canalan, Frances Collins, Dorothy Considine, Dorothy Greer, Grace Goodwin, Evelyn Moore, Mae Mahaney, Rita Forney, Rita Payne, Helen Heit and Norma Woodhouse.

3 Men, 1 Woman Lose Total of $98 To Bandits Here

Three men and a woman were victims of bandits Saturday night and early yesterday, according to police reports.

Oscar J. Carrico, 5235 Fifth street northwest, operator of a filling station in the 900 block Florida avenue northwest, was forced to turn over $75 to two colored men yesterday, when, he said, they asked him for change of a dollar. When he turned his back, one drew a revolver. They escaped in a taxicab.

Curtis L. Olson, 2100 Nineteenth street northwest, and his companion, Frances Martin, 2230 California street northwest, were held up early yesterday while parked in the 2300 block of California street northwest. Olson had $17 taken from him and Miss Martin surrendered $1.35 to two well-dressed armed white men.

Samuel Holmes, colored, 35, 1833 Thirteenth street northwest, was slashed on the throat and robbed of $5 by a colored man, who attacked him while he was asleep on N street northwest, between Sixth and Seventh streets. Holmes was treated at Freedmen's Hospital.

Warner Bros. Acquires 3 Capital Area Theaters

Addition of three theaters in the Washington area was announced yesterday by John J. Payette, Warner Bros.' general zone manager for the Washington territory.

Leased for an unannounced term of years, the three new picture houses are the Silver and Seco in Silver Spring and the Takoma, Takoma Park, D. C. Completion of the 1,000-seat Silver house is expected by September, at which time the Seco, seating 450, will be taken over by Warner Bros. from W. E. S. Wilcox. The Takoma, already leased, seats 750 persons.

"For All Time."

A Senate sub-committee on appropriations has approved a $500,000 item in the final deficiency bill which would allow work to commence immediately on the proposed Jefferson Memorial. Apparently the committee members are satisfied with the Tidal Basin site and mausoleum design now contemplated for the structure. The House having already passed the item, only the votes of the full committee and Senate are needed to start the digging for the foundations. Once this begins, there can be no turning back.

In making the final decision Senators ought to realize that several groups vitally concerned with the development of the Capital City are far from being satisfied with the proposed memorial. In the two years that they have been before the public in one variation or another, plans as to both location and design have encountered a steady stream of protests. Citizens from every quarter of the country have seconded the criticism of architects that the projected structure on its proposed site would be unbecoming to the Capital and inappropriate as a memorial to Jefferson. The validity of these objections is sustained by the opposition to the plans consistently advanced by the Fine Arts Commission. This board of experts was especially created by Congress to protect the Capital City against the sort of blunder which the House and the Senate sub-committee have now sanctioned.

In these circumstances, the wisdom of plunging into immediate construction of the project is more than doubtful. The question of the memorial demands deliberation, better deliberation than is available during a last-minute rush toward adjournment. As indicated by the partisan division of votes on the matter in the House last week, politics—not art—is the prevailing mood on Capitol Hill. The Senate could best table the $500,000 item until it finds itself in a more objective frame of mind. Wholly aside from the mystery surrounding the ultimate cost of the project, a major monument in the National Capital deserves calm and careful consideration.

As Representative John J. Boylan, chairman of the Memorial Commission, himself has put it: "Whatever we do must be right. We are doing it for posterity, for all time." That is the strongest possible argument for delaying the project until the valid objections to it can be overcome. Certainly it would do no honor to the great Democrat, Jefferson, to railroad through Congress plans for his memorial.

A More Effective Protest.

In taking steps to discourage the sale of airplanes to Japan, because of the campaign of frightfulness waged by that country against the helpless populations of Canton and other Chinese cities, Secretary Hull will have the warm approval of the great majority of Americans.

It is apparent that mere verbal protests by the United States and other nations against the bombing of undefended cities, whether in Spain or China, have no immediate effect. Certainly the Japanese war lords have not been deterred by such protests from continuing to vent their sadistic fury on Canton, where the death toll from repeated air raids now runs into many thousands. More drastic measures are obviously called for to give point to the civilized world's disapproval of such ghastly tactics.

The United States and other nations that have expressed their deep disapproval of air raids on civilian centers would be open to charges of hypocrisy if, at the same time, they should continue to send to the offenders the means whereby such outrages can be committed.

In Japan's case our total sales of airplanes and airplane parts since the undeclared war began have amounted only to $7,500,000 in value. But small or great, important or negligible, such sales are entirely out of order in view of Japan's cynical disregard of our pleas and protests.

The sale of airplanes to Japan could be cut off if the neutrality law were invoked. But such action would also deprive China, which is the victim of Japan's aggressions, of desperately needed supplies. Indeed, the presumption remains that the application of the neutrality law to both China and Japan would work greater injury on the former than on the latter. The alternative which Secretary Hull is seeking to employ, therefore, is to discourage American manufacturers from taking orders from Japan for airplanes and parts.

Even if such moral suasion proves effective, so far as further American shipments of bombing planes to Japan are concerned, Japan may still continue her savage attacks on civilian concentrations in China. Cut off from the American market for such supplies, Japan might find alternative sources. But if the pressure on American airplane manufacturers proves effective similar pressure may be applied with equal success on the purveyors of other essential supplies needed by Japan.

The spreading anti-Japanese boycott in this country is proof of the fact that quite independent of governmental action a large and growing element of the American population is determined to avoid giving even indirect aid to Japan in the prosecution of the war on China.

Civil Rights Are For All.

A significant challenge to conservative groups in the United States has come from Grenville Clark. In a speech before the Nassau County Bar Association he accused conservatives of giving the "unfortunate impression" that they are more interested in preserving vested property rights than in the civil liberties guaranteed by the Constitution. Various patriotic organizations will find it difficult candidly to refute that charge.

There is a disturbing tendency in this country to condone the denial of individual liberties to unpopular minorities, particularly if they threaten to disturb the status quo. The conservatives who have spoken out in condemnation of Mayor Hague's dictatorship in Jersey City, for example, have been all too few in number. Mr. Clark might have added that many who consider themselves liberals, some of whom are in a position to administer a lesson to the Jersey dictator, have also neglected the cause of civil liberty for expedient reasons.

"The callous disregard of the Constitution by Mayor Hague" and "the intimidating tactics of Senator Minton" are put in the same category by Mr. Clark. "They are on a par," he said, "in their arrogant obtuseness to the essentials of civil liberty." In the case of Senator Minton he noted a "tremendous wave of protest from the press and from leaders of conservative opinion." The same groups, he rightly contends, should be equally emphatic in condemning arbitrary rule in Jersey City.

The reference to the press suggests that Mr. Clark is not thoroughly familiar with the widespread denunciation of Mayor Hague's conduct by American newspapers. But the point he makes is basically sound. Democracy implies freedom of speech for minorities holding unpopular views as well as for citizens making patriotic speeches. That principle is deeply imbedded in the United States Constitution. It cannot be ignored when invoked by the C. I. O. or alleged Communists without grave danger that the very basis of democratic society will be impaired.

The logic of this position is so simple and so indisputable that widespread deviations from it in practice are difficult to explain. If civil liberties are to be maintained for some, they must be maintained for all. Even groups chiefly concerned with preserving their own rights of freedom of speech, and security from arbitrary conduct on the part of government, ought to realize that their interest will be best served by working against any and all precedents for violation of civil liberties.

No one who thinks the matter through will likely dissent from Mr. Clark's conclusion that > . . . there is only one sound attitude for conservatives consistent with a real understanding of the essence of American life, namely an attitude of firm and impartial defense of the rights of the citizens under the Bill of Rights in every case where these rights are threatened and irrespective of whether we approve or disapprove the sentiments and policies of the persons affected.

What is needed is a wider application of that sound attitude in the case of the Hagues and the Mintons alike.

Eden Unreconciled.

Emerging from a self-imposed silence of many weeks, former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has again entered the lists against the Chamberlain line in British foreign policy. He has chosen a very opportune moment to do so.

The two men parted company last February over the question of how to bring about European appeasement and thus avert a threatened catastrophe. Chamberlain took the position that, with the League a broken reed, the best way to bolster up the peace of Europe was by making separate agreements with the dictators. Eden opposed such deals without a greater manifestation of good faith on the part of the totalitarian states than had hitherto been displayed by them.

Eden resigned and Chamberlain went ahead with his plans. Although his hope of an accord with Nazi Germany has thus far borne no fruit, he has made an agreement with Fascist Italy settling the differences that had divided the two governments. Yet today, despite this accord, relations between Great Britain and Italy are again very strained.

During the past few weeks no fewer than 12 British merchant ships in Spanish republican harbors have been damaged or destroyed by air attacks attributable, in part at least, to Italian fliers. The intent of these raids is clearly to intimidate British and other merchant ships into avoiding Spanish republican ports and thus starving out the Barcelona government.

Thus Great Britain is faced with the unpleasant alternatives of either submitting to such dictation or taking strong action against the new form of piracy in the Mediterranean. In the event of the latter policy being adopted, the Anglo-Italian agreement of 1938 may go the way of the Anglo-Italian gentlemen's agreement of 1937.

In view of this situation there is real point in the charge made by Mr. Eden in his Leamington speech of Saturday that no constructive purpose could be served by seeking "temporary appeasement by a policy of concession to violence."

Class Of 1938.

Estimates vary as to the number of students the colleges of the country are graduating this month. It is in the neighborhood of 150,000. Whatever the precise figure, the upward trend of college attendance is believed to have continued despite the hard times.

Several explanations for this paradox may be offered. Many boys and girls, particularly those from well-to-do families, have deliberately remained in classrooms to dodge the difficulties of locating themselves outside. But their proportion must be small. Most of this year's graduates can be presumed to have pursued a higher education because the times demand it. Women, for example, have a new freedom in professional fields and many are inclined to take fullest advantage of it; as for their brothers, the complexity of modern life has put a premium on the expert—a title most readily acquired through education.

Aside from these hopes, college education seems to offer the undergraduate many advantages. But the hard reality, at the moment at least, is that the majority of those now marching proudly forth from academic halls to change from learners to earners will find their sheepskins no passports to security. On the contrary, they will be fortunate if they can find any sort of remunerative employment.

Officials of one of the leading Southern universities recently revealed that only 25 of 500 members of the class of 1938 were certain of jobs after commencement—and this probably included several taken care of by their fathers. A survey recently conducted among 81 institutions throughout the country indicated that employment opportunities for this year's graduates will be from 10 to 75 per cent fewer than for the preceding class. Students in the Middle Atlantic area are finding their chances for "positions" about 50 per cent slimmer this year than last.

More than sorrowful, the picture has an ominous side. If continued, a new sort of intellectual proletariat bids fair to appear. Ideally, this is the goal of democracy—every man with his best potentialities developed. However, until higher education can be separated from the implication of economic advantage, the prospect is unsettling. Youths who have persevered through four years of college at considerable personal sacrifice—to say nothing of the cost to their parents—are not yet content to doff caps and gowns for mere overalls.

Hitler recognized this and capitalized on young Germany's dissatisfaction in his rise to power. As the world knows, the youths received poor pottage in exchange for their support. That moral may well be impressed on graduating classes in this country. But along with it should go realistic consideration of the plight of 1938 graduates who have prepared themselves for opportunities that are not available.

Banished Beaver

Considering all the excitement about the Dionnes, and about the recent Toronto Stork Derby, it is not astonishing that the idea of fecundity should have become something of an obsession with our Canadian friends. It has even cropped up behind the movement to discard the beaver as the traditional symbol of the Dominion. Heretofore a mother beaver and nine beavettes have been used in heraldry to represent the Dominion government and its nine provinces. But now some literal killjoy makes the point that a beaver produces only three or four offspring at a time, which would seem to make it by Canadian standards practically a Malthusian.

Anyway, it has been decided that the habitual beaver is an altogether inadequate representation of a Dominion which is the mother of nine lusty provinces. The Dionne family might be used as a substitute, except that five provinces regarding themselves as identical cannot be found. So, pending inspiration, the place on the peace arch in front of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa that was to have been occupied by the beavers, will remain vacant.

It is a delicate problem, too. It goes without saying that nothing like the patriarchal guinea pig or the prolific white rabbit would be a suitable symbol for so doughty and valiant a people. And, since it is a strictly Canadian affair, we doubt that suggestions from this side of the border would be welcome. Still one cannot help thinking of a story concerning the late George Russell.

He was attempting, it is said, to describe to some Irish dairy farmers the terrific reproductive powers under favorable conditions of a certain bacillus which inhabits milk. "In the twinkling of an eye," said Mr. Russell solemnly, "that thing becomes a great-great grandfather!"

There, we should think, is something that might be pondered in Ottawa.

Democracy In Spain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
It is with sincere pity that I realize the plight of William Ullman and his admitted embarrassment over the fact "there remain Americans who suffer from illusions." He and many others are permitting the loyalists to throw sand in their eyes by failing to inspect their flimsy guise of democracy. Beneath the respected garb of democracy, the loyalists wear a toga of blazing red and even a casual inspection will reveal the true colors.

True, there is but one member of the Spanish cabinet an admitted Communist, but consider the number required to elect him. Communism is a government and can never exist as a political party. Where there is communism there cannot be a predominant democracy. And there is communism in Spain today!

As to the Gallup poll, it has ever been the custom of Americans to "favor the underdog" as a sporting gesture. But Spain is a distant land. Would 75 per cent of this country vote for the loyalists' government to supplant our own? SAM HILL.

The Cats At Quantico.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
As a lover of household pets I find distressing and not amusing the story in Mr. Harlan Miller's column of June 8 about the "wild" cats of Quantico.

Abandoned and left to starve by their heartless owners, they have now been ordered to be belled by Quantico's unimaginative commanding officer in order to keep them from catching birds, or else be shot.

This solicitude for the protection of birds would meet sympathetic response were not man himself the chief slayer and eater of birds. Man makes his prey off many kinds of birds, slaughtering them wholesale with guns in the name of "sport" as well as for food, then feels a great wave of righteous indignation against a desperate and starving cat that manages to catch an occasional victim.

It has been truly said that man, the super-killer, is opposed to all killing except his own.

So all cats, even the all-too-few protected ones at Quantico, are to be penalized with bells hung around their necks, a danger and a torment to the sensitive, quite-loving cat nature.

"Uncompromising Stand."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Will you please publish the accompanying statement—which reflects my personal stand as a member of the American Jewish Committee.

I request this in the light of statement in local press of this week setting out the matter of this "so-called Jewish referendum and plebiscite vote." JOSEPH D. KAUFMANN.
Washington, June 10.

[Inclosure.]

The American Jewish Committee disavows and dissociates itself from the proposed election and so-called referendum recently announced by one of the many organizations consisting of Americans who are Jews.

Truthfully and accurately to reflect the opinion of a large body of Americans who are Jews, and who are not members of the organization conducting the referendum, the American Jewish Committee makes this statement:

The committee places itself squarely on record, with all other right-thinking Americans, in defense of all fundamental human rights. The committee pledges itself to fight anti-Semitism shoulder to shoulder with all other elements of our population—Americans who are not—in the belief that an attack on any rights is an attack on democratic principles in general, affecting all of us.

The committee, however, takes a firm and uncompromising stand against undemocratic attempt to make of Americans who are Jews a distinct political unit. Americans who are Jews, like all other Americans, are, above all else, individuals. They fall, naturally, into every line of interest and activity—social, philanthropic, educational, economic and political. Any contrary impression is false.

The American Jewish Committee recognizes that it is essential that the above be clearly understood by the American public. Activity of one limited group can reflect only the attitude of that group, and no other.

Good Citizens.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
The news item concerning the Italian immigrant in New Jersey who willed his property to the United States Government might be a good lesson to many in this country. He was a man from Europe and was not at all interested in the quarrels over there. He was evidently completely satisfied with the United States.

It might be well for those who are so anxious to meddle in European affairs to satisfy their own prejudices to consider their duty to their own country first of all.

The attacks being made in the press on the German and Italian people are disgusting. The statement that the animosity is directed against their governments is cheap and evasive. The governments would not be there if it were not the will of the people of those nations.

The Italians and Germans have been mighty good American citizens and have helped to build up this nation much more than others of Europe whose great love and admiration for us is indicated by their refusal to pay their debts to a people who saved their hide in the last European war.

Supporters of Hague.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Plenty of good Americans applaud Mayor Hague's behavior in Jersey City, despite the fact that the press and loud speakers (machines and men) decry the Jersey boss' strong-arm tactics.

I have talked to many old time conservatives—lawyers, bankers and businessmen in New Jersey—and although most of them are willing to concede that Hague lacks fitness and tact in handling fomented situations within his stronghold, it is nevertheless a good idea to stifle the element bidding for newspaper advertising in Jersey City.

The boast that Hague is patriotic, nationalistic, and a lover of his country, is purely a baloney issue, instigated by himself.

Hague is boss of New Jersey—his county vote rules the State, and has done so ever since women got the vote. By an Americanism slogan, he protects those whose conservative policies dominate Jersey politically and financially. His motives are purely selfish, but don't let any one tell you different—his actions have a big and applauding gallery not only in New Jersey, but in every State. HARRY P. GEORGE.
Washington, June 11.

Protection Of Property.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
The recent action of the Department of State, with the approval of the President, in demanding the return of the property of United States citizens and organizations in Japan is indorsed by every loyal American. But may I ask why this policy was not adopted during the strikes here in the United States?

When unlawful possession of many of our industries was accomplished by force and violence, even destruction of the property attempted, there was absolute silence on the part of the Executive and the departments in whose province such powers lay if ordered by the Executive. Our Constitution provides that all persons shall be protected in the "security of their persons and houses against seizure;" and Congress has the power to "call forth the militia to suppress insurrection," but was not called in session to act.

When riots in Chicago got beyond control of the police and the Governor of Illinois, on the request of the citizens, refused to call out the militia of the State of Illinois, President Cleveland called out the United States troops to suppress the riots, and it was speedily done. Might it not have been well for the Administration to show the same indignation and warning to labor leaders, especially when Communists were within their organizations taking an active part as prominent directors and members?

The Control Of Urban Dogs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I presume it was my letter in your columns a few days ago, relating my experience of being jumped at by a dog in Chevy Chase, that Mrs. Burton Macafee objected to. According to her logic, the dog knew I didn't like him, therefore he resented it, so it was perfectly alright to take a chunk out of my leg. How was I to know whether I liked the dog or not before I even saw him? Of course, I did not like him afterwards—who would?

There is only one surefire way of leading a halfway blameless life and that is, if possible, have consideration for others in all your actions. Dog owners most assuredly do not have any consideration for others. They let them roam and bark at will, leaving destruction, mess and shattered nerves behind them. But do they resent it when someone says anything about them? Oh boy, do they? Truth or not, they bitterly resent it.

Certainly Mrs. Macafee may have spoken to every dog she saw, which is very democratic and commendable. However, she might cease speaking if her little child caught the rabies, or had its hands bitten. Just ask any doctor in Chevy Chase if he has treated any dog bites and see what he says.

Perhaps Mrs. Macafee is right and a colony with a 6-foot fence would fill the bill for all those who like not the angelic, devoted, unassuming creature called the dog. She was joking, I know, but the idea isn't at all bad. It would serve to keep out things which other people consider as being valuable simply because, since they own them, they must be.

I simply stated certain facts in my letter, which Mrs. Macafee tried to deny by quoting the old saw about the more I see men, the more I like dogs, which still doesn't make the dogs so much. It is just that dog lovers, being dog lovers, cannot see their faults and do not even consider that other people may not be as loving as they are. Enjoy doing what you like is my motto, but for gosh sakes give a thought to the other fellow.
RAYMOND NEWMAN.
Washington, June 10.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I wish to thank Mrs. Burton Macafee for her letter to The Post published June 10 in defense of the dogs of Chevy Chase. She has discovered the secret of control, not only of all dogs but of all created things. All things with life reflect back to you the same attitude you bear them. If you see in everything the Spirit of God and look on the form which houses that Spirit, however humble the form may be, with tolerance and respect, your attitude is reflected back to you multiplied many times. This is conquering with love, the greatest power in the universe.

It means you are in tune with God which is the all pervading spirit. This was the message of Christ. All creatures are your neighbors which you are commanded to love. Love conquers them all. When man can bring himself to love all things and have absolute faith in the spirit which pervades all things, then he will be given conscious use of the mind of inspiration or the "mind of Christ" and will have dominion over all things. C. M. DODSON.

The Post Impressionist

Jefferson Memorial.

"IF I were President," declared McGonnigle, "I'd soon settle all this controversy over the Jefferson Memorial. In fact, I think I'll write a letter to him now."

"And how would you settle it?" I asked.

"Very simply. In the first place, it is foolish to think about cluttering up Washington with one more white marble structure. Besides, a memorial to a man should reflect in some way or other some outstanding characteristic of the man you're trying to memorialize. Now, Thomas Jefferson was, above all, a man of good, sound, common sense, wasn't he?"

"Indeed he was," I agreed. "It was no wild-eyed visionary who founded the Democratic Party."

"Therefore, a memorial to him should be a practical, useful thing. What do you think Jefferson would say to the proposal of putting up an empty white marble pseudo-Greek temple to his memory? He'd have a fit, and very rightly. So I have conceived an idea which is sound, practical and useful, and which will be of immeasurable benefit to the Nation as a whole and to the residents of our Capital City in especial—an idea which would be heartily approved of by Jefferson himself and which would embody the democratic ideals of that immortal founder of our glorious party."

"Will you please stop talking like a Congressman, McGonnigle, and tell me what this idea is?"

"Well, in the first place, haven't you noticed that there are no decent eating places in Washington where you can get a really good meal at a reasonable figure?"

"No, I haven't," I contradicted him. "My little German delicatessen suits me to a T. And besides, I can charge my meals there."

"I know, but aren't there times when you want something quite out of the ordinary?"

"Oh, yes, and then I go to my little Greek restaurant."

"But not many people know about all these little places of yours. Now, what Washington needs is a centrally located restaurant where one can get really exceptional food at modest prices."

"Hear, hear!" I applauded. "But what's that got to do with Thomas Jefferson?"

"Look at this," commanded McGonnigle, handing me a copy of "Thomas Jefferson's Cook Book." "It's just come out and makes very interesting reading. The author, Mrs. Kimball, tells all about how very much Jefferson was interested in good food, how careful he was in the choice of his cooks, how he used to go down to the markets himself to supervise the purchasing of provisions, how much interest he used to show in the planning of the meals—and Jefferson, incidentally, set a standard of lavish hospitality at the White House which has never been equaled since—and how much care he used to take in collecting recipes, or receipts as he called them, for all the dishes that struck his fancy."

"There's no doubt about it," I agreed. "Jefferson was a very great man. But I still fail to see what all this, interesting though it is, has to do with the Jefferson Memorial."

"Simply this," explained McGonnigle: "My idea for the Jefferson Memorial is a palatial restaurant, not necessarily of white marble, situated somewhere on the Mall, where it will be accessible to everyone, staffed by the ablest cooks in the country, and offering the very best food at reasonable prices."

"It sounds grand," I commented.

"But you haven't heard all of it yet. The best is yet to come. You see, this would not only be a superlatively fine restaurant; it would also be a training school for cooks. The National Academy of Culinary Arts is what I think we'll call it. Cooks from all over the country could come there for training courses, and the profits of the restaurant would be used as an endowment of the National Academy of Culinary Arts. There would be a very thorough course of study, leading eventually to the degree of J. U. D."

"J. U. D.?" I echoed. "Juris Utriusque Doctor? But that's a very high degree, given only by theological schools."

"I can see that you don't know your Latin very well, in spite of all these graduate courses you've been taking," said McGonnigle scornfully. "What does jus, juris mean, anyway?"

"It means 'law,' of course."

"Yes, but it also means 'sauce,'" McGonnigle informed me. "So the degree of J. J. D., as granted by the National Academy of Culinary Arts, would mean 'Doctor of Sauces, so to speak. What could be a more apt degree for a cook? And the doctoral thesis would be the planning and preparation of a meal to be served in the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Restaurant. Why, the possibilities are simply endless! I think I'll get paper and pencil and draw up an outline of the scheme, so I can write the President about it."

"Put it off till after dinner, won't you?" I suggested. "In the meantime, if you'll fix the cocktails, I'll warm up a can of pork and beans and we can have dinner."

Fair Enough

Westbrook Pegler.

The American Press.

I COULD GO ON and on about the freedom of the press. We have had some rogue publishers in our journalism, but the very worst—and you may name your pet abomination—never had the audacity and the power for evil that are presented in the situation I'm going to describe.

PEGLER.

A political demagogue and dictator rises to power as the boss of a State machine and starts a little sheet on a job press under a personalized masthead and a slogan promising to make of every man a king or to give somebody $5,000—or something like that. He hammers away at his political opponents and at the orthodox or conventional papers without regard for the libel restrictions which handcuff the other side, because he is, as they say in the business, libelproof. He hasn't so much as a typewriter by way of physical plant or an attachable dime of money. I don't mean that he hasn't got a dime. I mean a dime that can be attached. There is a great difference. And, of course, nobody wants to go to the gutter with him on a charge of criminal libel, because there is always the danger that he will prove it on you or prove something else just as embarrassing. Old Jim Watson's remark that nobody ever won a fight with a skunk applies here.

• • • •

WELL, for the first few weeks he throws his paper away free, but, meanwhile, the boys of the organization are soliciting subscriptions with the old blackjack. Every jobholder in the State organization has to pay $2.50 or $4, or whatever, and every one of these is required to hustle a certain number of other subscriptions, the individual quotas being based on the individual's public pay. Do you get the idea? If the individual employe can sell subscriptions to his friends, all right. But, if he can't, he has to buy them himself, as a tax on his job.

And, of course, all the contractors who sell concrete and office supplies, tile, prison provisions, schoolbooks, pipe organs and band instruments to the State government or to local governments controlled by the State machine buy subscriptions, too, so that in a comparatively short time your struggling little paper, shouting the battle cry of freedom, has a swell net paid-in-advance circulation. And now, when the other papers blast him, he blasts back that they are just jealous of his success in journalism and abusing their press prerogative to attack a business rival. If this is freedom of the press, says he, this coloration and distortion of the news, these reckless, insulting charges that his faithful, voluntary subscribers have been coerced, then, by God, he doesn't know but that, after all, maybe the freedom of the press ought to be curtailed or, anyway, intrusted only to publishers who have a sense of responsibility and fairness.

• • • •

FOR REVENUE he is doing fine. As a boss of the State in harmony with the National Administration, he counts the WPA workers and employes of other Federal activities among his fold, and, of course, all the contractors and supply men doing business in these fields react the same as those who do business with the State.

And there is the advertising. The contractors and supply men all buy space, and manufacturers and merchants find it wise to do the same, not only in the political sense but from the practical viewpoint, because—no kidding—the sheet does have circulation. Never mind how it got the circulation. It's there, paid in advance. Municipalities and counties, water districts, utility companies, even State lunatic asylums and colleges buy advertising in the dictator's paper, and the free-press privilege runs for him because you could no more afford to suppress him, even knowing all about his methods, than you could afford to suppress the most ethical paper in the land, whatever that may be.

When the national dictatorships develop in countries which go haywire the dictators and subdictators are the men who own the prosperous official papers. Mussolini, for instance, and Goering and Streicher.

I like the commercial American press better.

If Homes Were Run On The Government Financing Plan.

Mom—Junior wants to take a sea trip this summer. What do you think about letting him go to Europe?

Dad—We haven't the money to pay for it, have we?

Mom—Of course not.

Dad (decisively)—Then let's let him take a trip around the world. There's no reason to be niggardly when you're short of money.

• • • •

Mom—I suppose you're right, but I wish I had some idea how much in debt we are at the present moment.

Dad—So do I!

Mom—Haven't you figured up lately, to see how we stand?

Dad—Yes, but I use several systems of bookkeeping and I never get the same answer twice. It's wonderful.

• • • •

Mom (a little concerned)—I sometimes get terribly afraid that we owe too much money.

Dad (very lightly)—Never worry about debts, my dear; it dates you.

Mom—But you and I used to worry about debts; we even had a budget.

Dad (scornfully)—That was away back when we could get some idea where we stood. Things are different now. You see, we are living in an era now where we haven't the slightest idea where we are. So, it's silly to worry about anything, especially money matters. Do you understand me?

Mom—No.

Dad—Well, to tell the truth, I'm a little befuddled by it myself.

• • • •

Dad (to Mom)—I thought we bought a new dining-room set last week.

Mom—We did, but I saw four others I liked and I thought we might as well have them. We can float another loan or something.

Dad—Of course. But, if not, I can explain it by another new bookkeeping system I just heard about. It's so wonderful it fools not only our creditors, but it fools me!

(The bell rings and as the door is opened a mailman drops in about 11 pounds of mail, all bills and monthly statements.)

• • • •

Mom (gathering them up)—We owe a lot of money, don't we, dear?

Dad (proudly)—Ain't it wonderful?

• • • •

Mom (suddenly)—Henry, it's my birthday tomorrow.

Dad—By George, I forgot, but you shall have a grand present. How about my personal note for $1,000,000?

Mom—Will there be anything behind it?

Dad—Certainly. I can arrange it by devaluating or sterilizing something . . . or something.

Mom—But, honey, you're flat busted; we're head over heels in debt; are you sure we can go on like this?

French Chamber Reconvenes In Unusual Calm Reflecting General Desire To Avoid Dangerous Ministerial Crisis.

By Jacques Kayser,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

PARIS.

THE FRENCH PARLIAMENT reconvened on the last day of May. An atmosphere of calm prevailed—a calm that contrasted sharply with the preoccupations of each member. Ordinarily when the Chamber of Deputies is about to convene, members throng the lobbies of the Palais Bourbon to discuss plans and hopes. The questions to be asked of the Government are then agreed upon. In short, there is usually a great political bustle. This year there was nothing of the sort.

At 5 o'clock on the afternoon of May 30—the traditional hour for the great influx—the lounges of the Chamber were empty. Many of the deputies would scarcely speak to the journalists. Not one of the important questions to be asked of the government had been decided. The major leaders were absent. M. Flandin, of the right, was missing, as was M. Blum, of the Socialists, and M. Thorez, of the Communists.

The only talk was of adjournment. These men who had been away since the middle of April and had returned on May 31, were already dreaming of adjournment!

Constitution Allows June 11 Adjournment.

THE CONSTITUTION forbids a recess or the members to leave until after the five months of what is called the ordinary session have ended. Constitutionally, the ordinary session begins on the second Tuesday of January. This year the ordinary session should end June 11. So, if the government agrees, the Chamber by unanimous consent may be put into adjournment from the middle of June until November.

This, of course, raises the question of whether it is possible to debate any matter of prime importance in the course of so short a session. Public opinion, as interpreted by a majority of the Deputies and Senators desires that in the interests of stability this session shall be as tranquil as possible. This may help to explain why for the first time in seven years Parisian crowds have not flocked around the Palais Bourbon to make demonstrations against the government.

If the present government can last out until June 15, there is every reason to believe it can hold out until the end of November. In a France which in recent years has been shaken by a constant stream of major and minor political crises, that would be something of a record.

Yet if any political group has the notion of making trouole, of raising new difficulties or exploiting old ones, it will be relatively easy. If trouble for the government does come it will come, probably, from the left—from the Communists or the Socialists. Any attack on the government from this side will be based on present economic and financial policies. Instead of approving these policies the left may assume a demagogic position, demanding the nationalization of certain industries or raising the cry of "soak the rich!" But whoever goes to the bottom of these matters is obliged to admit that the government measures are quite practicable.

Daladier Cabinet Disdains Publicity.

NEITHER M. Daladier nor his colleagues has any fondness for dictatorial methods and they have turned their backs on publicity, even though it might have been useful to them. But a disdain for publicity is an ingrained characteristic of the premier. He almost never gives interviews and he employs the radio only when it is absolutely necessary.

Daladier could have made his latest batch of decree laws the occasion for considerable fanfare. Among the more than 50 texts there were some of obvious advantage to many individuals and groups which, up to now, have felt themselves badly treated.

Having devalued the franc, increased taxes and floated a great defense loan, the government, in line with its promises to overcome economic difficulties, began to take measures to increase national production, increase tourism, and ease the burdens which have been weighing down the middle and artisan class, which happens to be the basic element in the republic. The misery of this class and its discontent had become the subject of considerable disquiet. That is why the Daladier government has been anxious to do something constructive for this group.

And then there is the "home retiring fund" plan. This plan envisages annual payments by workers over a period of years leading ultimately to the acquisition of a house in the country to which the worker, reaching the retirement age, can move and there spend his last years. This reform, whose special value is incontestable, is designed to bring about a partial solution of the problem created by the increasing exodus from villages to cities.

Another social reform undertaken by the government is what will ultimately become compulsory technical education. The number of highly skilled workmen and technicians in France has been steadily dwindling. It has become necessary to import them from other countries. This is a dangerous situation and to obviate it in future it is proposed that all youths between 14 and 17 years employed in industries or commercial establishments shall be required to receive instruction in their respective trades. After this plan has been in operation a few years it should work a great improvement in the condition and the morale of the workers and should result in an increase in the national production.

National Production Increase Principal Aim.

INCREASE of the national production is the aim of another decree of the same series. This provides for a "flexible" application of the 40-hour week. France has been greatly handicapped by the fact that it is the only country in Europe in which the 40-hour week prevails on any large scale. It is quite unlikely, however, that French labor would consent to any outright repeal of the 40-hour law. They are prepared perhaps to accept a 45-hour week in most of industries connected with national defense and a 42-hour week for the mines, but they would insist on the 40-hour week for those industries where it is now considerably less. In some of these it is only 28, 30 or 32 hours a week, due to the shortage of orders. The members of the Confederation Generale du Travaile have said to the opponents of the 40-hour week: "Assure us first that we shall get 40 hours of work; then we shall see about any further increase in the hours of labor."

The idea behind the government's decree modifying the rigidity of the 40-hour law is to permit the recovery of lost hours. The 40-hour law has worked very disadvantageously in the seasonal industries where the employe wants to work as much as he can during the weeks of heaviest production to offset the hours he loses during the slack season. The government, assuming a year of 50 working weeks plus 15 days of paid vacation, has divided the year into 2,000 hours and on this basis has worked out a more flexible plan whereby it will be possible in certain industries to determine what number of supplementary hours an employe may be permitted to work in a given week.

All these reforms have as their immediate or ultimate object the increase of the national production. On the strength of its decrees and because of an improvement in the financial situation, the government plans to appropriate, between now and 1940, 11,000,000,000 francs to elaborate a public-works program. One of the items is better housing—the demolition of slums and erection on the same sites of modern, sanitary, low-cost homes for the same inhabitants. Other projected works are certain large-scale improvements in the smaller cities and towns and in the rural districts, the need of which is recognized by all. These include the construction of sanitary water-supply systems, modern schoolhouses, the building and repair of roads and electrification programs whose lines will carry into the remotest hamlets.

Such are the broad outlines of the decrees announced by the Daladier government on May 24, several days before the reopening of Parliament. Against such a program as this, it will be difficult to launch a political offensive.

To be sure, the Socialist Party Congress at Royan was not very favorable to the government. Harsh words were said about the number of places assigned to Socialist ministers. But, Leon Blum, in a series of newspaper articles, has emphasized the dangers that would accompany another ministerial crisis. That is another reason why the reopening of Parliament on the last day of May was so calm.

South Splits

From The Northern Virginia Daily.

Isolated On The Hill.

SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS in Congress have become an isolated group, not willingly but because isolation has been forced upon them by the Roosevelt Administration. Northern Republicans stood with the Southern Democrats for a while, perhaps for political reasons, but they deserted this alliance when the interests of their own section became involved in the wages and hours bill. The designation "Southern Group" has become fixed in the nomenclature of Congress, indicating a differentiation which has existed only obscurely in the past.

The isolation of Southern Congressional Democrats is one of the most significant political developments of these times. The political fate of the Congressmen themselves is an important consideration, but it is of far less consequence than the present drift of national administrative policy as respects the South. For that drift is plainly toward the isolation of the South itself as a social, political and economic factor in the Nation. And isolation in that sense means obscuration, if not ultimate virtual elimination.

The South has been loyal to the Democratic Party since the day in April, 1865, when guns were silenced and flags furled at Appomattox. The reasons for its unfailing party loyalty are to be found partly in the animosities born of war, partly in the race question, partly in the Democratic doctrine of States' rights, and partly because the principles enunciated by Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and others were better suited to an agrarian civilization than were those of the Republican Party, which reflected commercial and industrial viewpoints.

The South's devotion to the Democratic Party has persisted with all of the tenacity of tradition, even when changing conditions confused old issues and brought forth new ones, some of which required considerable rationalization to fit them into the existing political molds. However, political stagnation was avoided by means of divisions within the Democratic Party itself, which had almost the same force and effect as party opposition. Only once, in 1928, when extraneous issues were introduced, has party loyalty in the South failed or even faltered.

IT IS AMAZING that it should have remained for a Democratic administration to inaugurate and prosecute the most vicious campaign to injure the South that has been attempted since Reconstruction days. Laws have been sponsored by the present Administration and others are reported to be in prospect which appear to be plainly designed to cripple our institutions, pillory our traditions and social customs, and bind our industry and agriculture in chains of subjection to the industrial North. And so brazen are many of these policies that no denial whatever is made of their true purpose and intent.

The actual process of "dehorsing" the South—a phrase reported to have originated in the cloistered inner circles of the Administration—began in the 1936 Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia with the abolition of the two-thirds rule for nominations. That act practically threw control of the party in the future into the hands of New York and Pennsylvania politicians and the delegations from a few of the larger Northern industrial States. It paved the way for the rise to political power of John L. Lewis and served to occult the South's star in the national political sky.

Following the convention and the ensuing election, the Administration embarked on a legislative course which, had it succeeded, would have destroyed the judiciary, reduced the States to the status of mere Federal satrapies, revived the race issue in the South in an aggravated form, and imposed burdens on Southern industry and agriculture which they could not bear and survive. Much of this legislation is still pending in Congress and the President appears determined to drive it through, come hell or high water. The strong opposition of Southern Congressmen alone has thus far saved the South from the worst of these woes.

THE LAWS and rulings of the independent agencies of the Government have reflected the spirit of unfairness toward the South as much as has direct legislatian proposed or enacted. Government subsidies of the trans-Atlantic and other ship lines operating out of Hampton Roads and other Southern ports have been curtailed or discontinued, thus depriving Southern shippers of cheaper freight rates and throwing this vast volume of business to the highly subsidized ports of New York and Boston. That is but a single instance of this type of discrimination. It could be multiplied many times in the rulings of the various Government agencies.

Southern Senators and Representatives who have taken their political lives in their hands and opposed measures which they believed to be destructive of democracy or prejudicial to the interests of the Southern people deserve the highest appreciation of their constituents for the valuable service they have thus rendered. They deserve even more than that. They deserve the united support of their constituents against any retaliatory measures the Administration may take to punish them for voting against the court bill and other legislation which they believed to be harmful.

It seems very evident that the present Democratic leadership in the South is distasteful to the Administration and is regarded with a feeling closely akin to contempt by those who are now shaping our national policies.

• • • •

VIEWED IN this light, there is much more to the present political situation in respect to the South than the recent happenings in Congress. There is the question of the future. The South cannot afford to have its industry and agriculture destroyed or seriously damaged. It cannot afford to have a revival of race agitation. It cannot afford for its democracy to be trampled under foot in Washington. And if it cannot afford these things it must act, and act quickly, to assert itself and protect its rights. It must either yield to the Roosevelt Administration or fight it—to a finish.

Is it not time for the political leaders of the South to confer on these matters—away from Washington with all of its smooth talk and distracting influences? Certainly nothing is more deadly than passivity in this period of world history when direct action alone seems capable of producing results. The La-Follettes in Wisconsin are not passive, and they can have anything they want in Washington for the asking. John Lewis is not passive, and the Administration is fearful of offending him. The South must reckon with the present leadership of the Democratic party, and the sooner that reckoning takes place the better.

Helping Themselves

TALK TO ANYONE who has had the privilege of looking over the St. Francis Xavier extension work, and he will tell you that this is the outstanding work of rehabilitation that is going forward on the American continent today. Men who a few years ago knew nothing of economic or social terminology, today run lobster factories, deal intelligently with dealers in Boston, operate stores, run credit unions in such a way that many of them have become the real banks of the communities.

With the economic advances go also new concepts of community responsibility. There are many cases like that of Roddy MacIsaac. Roddy had a few hundred dollars and a chance for a small contract on a new road that was being built. He went to his credit union and borrowed $500 to buy a truck. Shortly after he had put the truck in operation Roddy was taken to the hospital. Ordinarily he would have lost his truck to his creditors. He would have come out of the hospital with a burden of debt around his neck.

But the credit union directors called a meeting to study Roddy's case. They hired a man to run the truck and put it back on the road. After the wages of the driver had been paid there was enough to keep up the credit union payments and return a substantial sum to Roddy's family. Therefore when Roddy went back to work he was out of debt.

Excerpted Wage Bill Draft

House, Senate Conferees' Compromise Is Summarized.

Finding and Declaration of Policy.

Sec. 2. (A) The Congress hereby finds that the existence, in industries engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, of labor conditions detrimental to the maintenance of the minimum standard of living necessary for health, efficiency, and general well-being of workers, (1) causes commerce and the channels and instrumentalities of commerce to be used to spread and perpetuate such labor conditions among the workers of the several States; (2) burdens commerce and the free flow of goods in commerce; (3) constitutes an unfair method of competition in commerce; (4) leads to labor disputes burdening and obstructing commerce and the free flow of goods in commerce, and (5) interferes with the orderly and fair marketing of goods in commerce.

(B) It is hereby declared to be the policy of this act, through the exercise by Congress of its power to regulate commerce among the several States, to correct and as rapidly as practicable to eliminate the conditions above referred to in such industries without substantially curtailing employment or earning power.

(Then follow definitions of terms used, the provision for the wage and hour division in the Labor Department and appointment of an administrator and his selection of a staff.)

Administrator to Name 3-Part Committee.

Section 5 (A) The Administrator shall as soon as practicable appoint an industry committee for each industry engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce.

(B) An industry committee shall be appointed by the administrator without regard to any other provisions of law regarding the appointment and compensation of employes of the United States. It shall include a number of disinterested persons representing the public, one of whom the administrator shall designate as chairman, a like number of persons representing employes in the industry, and a like number representing employers in the industry. In the appointment of the persons representing each group, the administrator shall give due regard to the geographical regions in which the industry is carried on.

C. (Provides "reasonable" per diem pay for committee members.)

D. (Provides for summoning witnesses or data.)

Sec. 6. (A) Every employer shall pay to each of his employes who is engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce wages at the following rates:

(1) During the first year from the effective date of this section, not less than 25 cents an hour.

(2) During the next six years from such date, not less than 30 cents an hour.

(3) After the expiration of seven years from such date, not less than 40 cents an hour, or the rate (not less than 30 cents an hour) prescribed in the applicable order of the administrator issued under Section 8, whichever is lower, and (4) at any time after the effective date of the section, not less than the rate (not in excess of 40 cents an hour) prescribed in the applicable order of the administrator issued under Section 8.

(B) This section shall take effect upon the expiration of 120 days from the date of enactment of this act.

44 to 40-Hour Scale Set For Two Years.

Section 7. (A) No employer shall, except as otherwise provided in this section, employ any of his employes who is engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce—

(1) For a workweek longer than 44 hours during the first year from the effective date of this section.

(2) For a workweek longer than 42 hours during the second year from such date, or

(3) For a workweek longer than 40 hours after the expiration of the second year from such date, unless such employe receives compensation for his employment in excess of the hours above specified at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which he is employed.

(B) No employer shall be deemed to have violated subsection (A) by employing any employe for a workweek in excess of that specified in such subsection without paying the compensation for that overtime employment prescribed therein if such employe is so employed:

(1) In pursuance of an agreement, made as a result of collective bargaining by representatives of employes certified as bona fide by the National Labor Relations Board, which provides that no employe shall be employed more than 1,000 hours during any period of 26 consecutive weeks.

(2) On an annual basis in pursuance of an agreement with his employer, made as a result of collective bargaining by representatives of employes certified as bona fide by the National Labor Relations Board, which provides that the employe shall not be employed more than 2,000 hours during any period of 52 consecutive weeks, or

(3) For a period or periods of not more than 14 workweeks in the aggregate in any calendar year in an industry found by the administrator to be of a seasonal nature, and if such employe receives compensation for employment in excess of 12 hours in any workday, or for employment in excess of 56 hours in any workweek, as the case may be, at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which he is employed.

(C) (Exempts first processors of dairy products, ginners and compressors of cotton and first processors of perishable food products whose season is limited to 14 workweeks a year.)

Wage Orders.

Sec. 8. (A) With a view to carrying out the policy of this act by reaching, as rapidly as is economically feasible without substantially curtailing employment, the objective of a universal minimum wage of 40 cents an hour in each industry engaged in commerce or in the production of good for commerce, the administrator shall from time to time convene the industry committees for each such industry and the industry committee shall from time to time recommend the minimum rate of wages to be paid under section 6 by employers engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce in such industry or classification therein.

(B) Upon the convening of an industry committee, the administrator shall refer to it the question of the minimum wage rate or rates to be fixed for such industry. The industry committe shall investigate conditions in the industry and the committee, or any authorized sub-committee therof, may hear such witnesses and receive such evidence as may be necessary or appropriate to enable the committee to perform its duties and functions under this act. The committee shall recommend to the administrator the highest minimum wage rates for the industry which it determines, having due regard to economic and competitive conditions, will not substantially curtail employment in the industry.

Committees to Fix Wage Classifications.

(C) The industry committee for any industry shall recommend such reasonable classifications within any industry as it determines to be necessary for the purpose of fixing for each classification within such industry the highest minimum wage rate (not in excess of 40 cents an hour) which (1) will not substantially curtail employment in such classification and (2) will not give a competitive advantage to any group in the industry, and shall recommend for each classification in the industry the highest minimum wage rate which the committee determines will not substantially curtail employment in such classification. In determining whether such classifications should be made in any industry, in making such classifications, and in determining the minimum wage rates for such classifications, no classification shall be made, and no minimum wage rate shall be fixed, solely on a regional basis, but the industry committee and the administrator shall consider among other relevant factors the following:

(1) Competitive conditions as affected by transportation, living and production costs;

(2) The wages established for work or like or comparable character by collective labor agreements negotiated between employers and employes by representatives of their own choosing; and

(3) The wages paid for work of like or comparable character by employers who voluntarily maintain minimum-wage standards in the industry.

No classification shall be made under this section on the basis of age or sex.

(D) The industry committee shall file with the administrator a report containing its recommendations with respect to the matters referred to it. Upon the filing of such report, the administrator, after due notice to interested persons, and giving them an opportunity to be heard, shall by order approve and carry into effect the recommendations contained in such report, if he finds that the recommendations are made in accordance with law, are supported by the evidence adduced at the hearing, and, taking into consideration the same factors as are required to be considered by the industry committee, will carry out the purposes of this section; otherwise he shall disapprove such recommendations. If the administrator disapproves such recommendations he shall again refer the matter to such committee, or to another industry committee for such industry, for further consideration and recommendations.

(E) (Ends effectiveness of orders at expiration of seven-year period unless continuation is held necessary to prevent substantial curtailment of employment.)

(F) (Authorizes terms and conditions to prevent evasion and provides for notice by publication.)

(Section 9 deals with attendance of witnesses.)

Section 10(a). Any person aggrieved by an order of the administrator under section 8 may obtain a review of such order in the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States for any circuit wherein such person resides or has his principal place of business, or in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia by filing in such court, within 60 days after the entry of such order, a written petition praying that the order of the administrator be modified or set aside in whole or in part . . . If application is made to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence, and it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that such additional evidence may materially affect the result of the proceedings and that there were reasonable grounds for failure to adduce such evidence in the proceeding before the administrator, the court may order such additional evidence to be taken before the administrator and to be adduced upon the hearing in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as to the court may seem proper . . .

(B) The commencement of proceedings under subsection (a) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the administrator's order.

MRS. MARY NORTON,

'Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938' Sets 25c Base Pay.

The court shall not grant any stay of the order unless the person complaining of such order shall file in court an undertaking with a surety or sureties satisfactory to the court for the payment to the employes affected by the order, in the event such order is affirmed, of the amount by which the compensation such employes are entitled to receive under the order exceeds the compensation they actually receive while such stay is in effect.

Sec. 11. (A) The adminstrator or his designated representatives may investigate and gather data regarding the wages, hours and other conditions and practices of employment in any industry subject to this act, and may enter and inspect such places and such records (and make such transcriptions thereof), question such employes, and investigate such facts, conditions, practices, or matters as he may deem necessary or appropriate to determine whether any person has violated any provision of this act, or which may aid in the enforcement of the provisions of this act . . .

(B) (Permits use of the service of State labor law agencies.)

(C) (Covers keeping of records of employment.)

(Section 12 contains the child labor provisions.)

(Sectoin 14 authorizes the administrator to set up rules for employment of apprentices and handicapped workers.)

Transport of Goods Is Made Illegal.

Section 15. (a). After the expiration of 120 days from the date of enactment of this act it shall be unlawful for any person—

1. To transport, offer for transportation, ship, deliver or sell in commerce, or to ship, deliver or sell with knowledge that shipment or delivery or sale thereof in commerce is intended, any goods in the production of which any employe was employed in violation of section 6 or section 7, or in violation of any regulation or order of the administrator issued under section 14; except that no provision of this act shall impose any liability upon any common carrier for the transportation in commerce in the regular course of its business of any goods not produced by such common carrier, and no provision of this act shall excuse any common carrier from its obligation to accept any goods for transportation.

2. To violate any of the provisions of section 6 or section 7, or any of the provisions of any regulation or order of the administrator issued under section 14.

2. To violate any of the provisions of section 6 or section 7, or any of the provisions of any regulation or order of the administrator issued under section 14.

3. To discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employe because such employe has filed any complaint or instituted or caused to be instituted any proceeding under or related to this act, or has testified or is about to testify in any such proceeding or has served or is about to serve on an industry committee;

(4) to violate any of the provisions of section 12;

(5) to violate any of the provisions of section 11 (c), or to make any statement, report, or record filed or kept pursuant to the provisions of such section or any regulation or order thereunder, knowing such statement, report, or record to be false in a material respect.

(b) For the purposes of subsection (a) (1) proof that any employe was employed in any place of employment where goods shipped or sold in commerce were produced, within 90 days prior to the removal of the goods from such place of employment, shall be prima facie evidence that such employe was engaged in the production of such goods.

(Section 16 deals with penalties, a fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for six months, or both.)

(Section 17 concerns injunction proceedings.)

(Section 18 declares no provision of the act shall excuse noncompliance with any Federal, State or city law providing a higher minimum wage or shorter workweek.)

(Section 19 provides that if any provision of the act is held invalid, the remainder shall not be affected.)

St. Rose's Graduates 11—Bishop Freeman Dedicates Chapel

The Post is the only daily morning paper in Washington with A. P. WIREPHOTO Service.

Eleven girls were graduated yesterday from St. Rose's Technical School here. They are (left to right), Dorothy Considine, Dorothy Greer, Evelyn Moore, Rita Forney, Elena Catalen, Grace Goodwin, Rita Payne, Helen Heit, Mary Ellen Mahaney, Norma Woodhouse and Frances Collins. Right—Georgetown University graduates and faculty leave Dahlgren Chapel after baccalaureate sermon and mass. Puerto Rican Troops Rehearse for War.

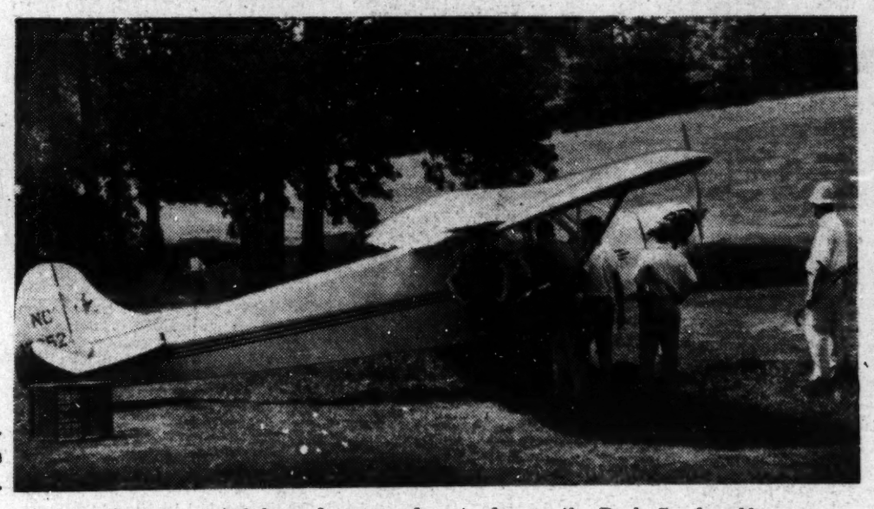
Puerto Rican troops, members of the 65th United States Infantry, are preparing for America's joint Army and Navy maneuvers next winter to test the defenses of the Panama Canal. Top—A bayonet charge through smoke screen. Lower—Machine gun antiaircraft unit in action.



An unexpected hazard appeared yesterday on the Rock Creek golf course when this two-seater monoplane made a forced landing on the ninth fairway. The plane was piloted by Milton E. Anders, of Silver Spring. Anders and his passenger, Francis A. Norton, 2100 Nineteenth street northwest, escaped.

Federal Theater Takes the Road

Associated Press Photos.

Russia Fights Labor Trouble, Too, Says Study

Most of 'Sabotage' Due to Technical Inexperience, Survey States.

Russia's system of planned economy has "labor and management" problems just as irritating as those of the capitalistic democracies, according to the report of a survey, written for the Foreign Policy Association by Vera Micheles Dean, research director.

"Under the Soviet system of planned economy," she wrote, "it is almost impossible for an engineer or industrial manager to avoid trouble with the government sooner or later. Many of the major difficulties attributed by Soviet authorities to acts of sabotage are due to technical inexperience; to unintentional mismanagement; to the reluctance of Soviet engineers to do dirty work by going down into the mines with their men; but most of all to the all-embracing political control of Soviet industry.

Damage Possible.

"This political control makes it possible for government and party leaders opposed to the Stalin 'line' to do more damage by constant conflict over policy than could be caused by years of petty sabotage. Equally harmful is the constant supervision exercised over industry by the secret police, which spreads terror among managers and engineers, paralyzes their initiative and facilitates satisfaction of personal grudges under the cloak of purging 'socially hostile' elements."

Recent developments, however, "may presage a decline in the purge in Soviet industry," Mrs. Dean remarked.

"Soviet leaders," she said, "have discovered that it is far easier to build factories, especially with the assistance of foreign experts and foreign blue prints, than to operate them efficiently. Of the difficulties which have confronted Soviet industry under the first two five-year plans, perhaps the most serious have been the slow rise of labor productivity and the scarcity of trusted executives and engineers."

Wages Slowly Rising.

Mrs. Dean, in her conclusions, said:

"The Bolshevik revolution, telescoping into 20 years the social and economic transformations wrought by a century in western Europe, held out to workers throughout the world the vision of a community which would abolish the exploitation of man by man. Today Soviet workers and technicians—provided their political antecedents are unimpeachable—have an opportunity to work in the employ of the state at wages which, although still low in terms of purchasing power, are slowly rising; and may, provided the production of consumers' goods continues to expand, improve their material lot by bonuses for technically improved work.

"These economic opportunities, which stimulate the enthusiasm of the young generation, have not yet been matched with civil liberties familiar to the democracies of the west. Soviet leaders argue that individual liberty must be drastically curtailed in a period of intense revolutionary struggle."

Roberta to Perform at Shoreham

ROBERTA JONAY,
protege of Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Morgenthau, who will glorify the Shoreham Terrace this week.

Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

Tonight's THE NIGHT! We mean to catch new shows at the night spots.

On the Shoreham Terrace, always too divinely doggy, you'll find no less a personage than dancer Roberta Jonay, protege of Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry (Sec. Treasury) Morgenthau. Also the Castleton Trio, dancing in the sophisticated metier and Chester Barnard, "juggling genius," according to Shoreham's able publicitress, Ruth Barnard.

Downtown you'll find big new floor shows at both Bamboo Gardens and the Lotus. Fresh dancing pretties and fresher clowning, with Lotus-eers dancing to Al Norton's tunes and Bamboo-ites shagging to Lou Franco rhythm.

SWEET NEWS: (We hope it's right on the first hope, we hope! we hope! No apologies to the radio.)

Manager Stanley Gordon of the Hamilton Hotel hopes to open his new Rainbow Room on July 1. This falls a-Friday and will mean that the holiday week-end will be a big one for Rainbowites.

The only possible catch in this is that the elaborate and intricate work of transforming the Rainbow Room may hold off the opening until July 11. There'll be no hold-up in Rainbow activities, during the actual work, except for dancing for a couple of days. Meyer Davis music and cocktailing will just be transferred to the adjoining dining room.

That concentrating threesome in the corner of Wardman's Metronome Room other eve was Johnny Slaughter, his first violinist, Fritz Maile and the chic Mrs. Maile. They were studying set-up and acoustics like nobody's business, for Johnny's band will glorify the Metronome beginning Monday, June 20.

"Sugar" (Paul) Kain's outfit is winding up in a blaze of swing-it-out before setting sail for Detroit where they will play this summer.

There's nothing like starting the day early and Arsenio Ralon's luncheon music at Madrillon is white hyacinths for your soul—presuming you're the sort of person who has a soul. Do ask Arsenio to play his new, and as yet nameless, composition. It's a tone description of moonlight casting the shadow of volcano Atitlan over a nearby lake in Guatemala. (Senor Ralon's a Guatemalan.)

D'you know what "flirtation gowns" are? They're those new shoulder-strapless evening dresses and you'll be seeing their newest expressions at the Powhatan Roof's style parade on Wednesday evening. For the benefit of intrigued males, may we explain that the strapless frocks aren't as perilous as they look. Fool-proof gadgets anchor them firmly to the chasis. And shoulder straps do break. Remind us to tell you sometime about that movie actress whose shoulder-strap snapped just as she was being introduced to a young Roosevelt.

Bulletin from Col. Lennie Schloss, Glen Echo. (Hold press if necessary.) Native Floridians are making it a point to visit with Floridian Tom Gentry whose band is packing Echo's ball room. Latest was Representative Millard F. Caldwell. Added visitors were two Florida collegiates who put the bee on Tom for free ducats for dancing. "Dig, fellas," said Tom. "How'm I to get the management to pay me back?" They dug.

For the prettiest hands in town we'll back Jayne Lowe, accordioning at Annapolis' Anchor Room. We'd suspect her of being the inspiration for "Pale Hands I Loved Beside the Shalimar," except that she's such a baby.

Harold Veo (leading the Mayflower Lounge orchestra) has written a musical comedy. It's called "A Hindu Honeymoon" and may be produced by a civic group this fall.

King Cole's enchantress, Evie Knight, is shining up those boo-ful tunes from "The Pirates of Penzance" as an early dividend for Cole clients. Meantime, you must hear her turn on the glamour unmercifully in "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart."

Seen at King Cole: Paul McCrea of the Nation's Business, so suave and pleasant you'd never dream he was once the tough city editor for our contemporary, The News.

Comes a billet doux from Oscar of the Hi-Hit saying that Dick Reger has "lots of new imitations of sound effects." Oscar, may I disagree. Dick's sound effects are no imitations—they're the real McCoy.

"Rock It for Me," as rocked by Jeanne Carroll with Tom Gentry's orchestra at Glen Echo.

The way De Vaughan Clements goes to town on that electric vibraphone at Show Boat (anchored on the Baltimore boulevard). It gives you the lovliest chills!

"Please Be Kind," as started sweet and swung hot by Happy Walker at Griffith Farms Tavern on Saturdays. It's kind only to the feet of active dancers.

"Slap Happy," Sapienza's stupendous thumpa-ta-tumpa of the bass at Hi-Hat. What it does to your heart action!

Perry Martin, that nice lad who sings at Mayfair, has that slightly haggard look because he pretty nearly wore himself out last week being "the raz-ma-taz kid" in the opera-jazz battle at th Capitol Theater and doing his regular Mayfair vocals.

Rabbi J. T. Loeb To Speak on Air

Speaker today over WRC on the daily religious broadcast being sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches will be Rabbi J. T. Loeb, of Southeast Congregation. The Church of the Epiphany quartet, with Adolph Torovsky as organist and director, will provide the music for this week's programs, which are held from 12:15 to 12:30 p. m.

The schedule for the rest of the week follows: Tuesday, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Methodist Church; Wednesday, the Rev. Arthur P. Wilson, of Columbia Heights Christian Church; Thursday, Col. William O. Tufts, former president of the Church Federation, and Friday, the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown. Arrangements are being made for a Saturday program to be given under the auspices of local Catholic groups.

Chicago Newsman Dies Of Operation in Canada

Toronto, June 12 (AP).—S. John Duncan-Clark, 63, editorial writer for the Chicago Daily News, died in a Toronto hospital Saturday night after an emergency operation.

A native of Toronto, Duncan-Clark had been a writer on Chicago newspapers for nearly 30 years. Prior to joining the staff of the Chicago Daily News in 1931, he was associated with the now defunct Chicago Evening Post for more than 20 years.

Worthington Tea Fetes 3 Children, 2 In-Laws

Bride-to-Be, Engagement Announced Saturday, Steals Spotlight From Honor Guests; 200 Attend Gwynn Party in Georgetown.

A week-end of excitement and festivities in the family of Mrs. Ralph Worthington was concluded yesterday afternoon when she entertained at a large tea for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adam K. Luke, jr., of New York, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Worthington 3d, of Miami.

Attractive as the guests of honor were, their limelight was stolen a little by another member of the family, Miss Ethel Worthington, whose engagement to William James Coad, jr., was announced Saturday evening.

Yesterday Miss Worthington said she expected to be married in November. She leaves today with her fiance to spend a few days in Chicago before going to Omaha to visit his family. Miss Worthington will then go to Colorada Springs to be a bridesmaid at the wedding of a friend and later will go to Wyoming, where she will join Mrs. Adolphus Andrews and Miss Frances Andrews for several weeks at Eaton's Ranch.

Food, Decorations Are Lavish

Yesterday the Worthington apartment at 2029 Connecticut avenue was filled with flowers. The mantel in the drawing room was banked with a floral arrangement of blue larkspur and pink snapdragons, while the tea table in the dining room was centered with big roses and baby's breath. Many of the guests adjourned to a little billiard room, where an upright piano and comfortable chairs are placed. Here, too, the flowers were everywhere.

Mrs. Worthington who originally came from Georgia, is famous for her hospitality. Yesterday a small army of footmen passed platters piled high with thin sandwiches of all varieties and small patty shells filled with caviar or hot cheese.

Mrs. Worthington wore a street-length frock of gray crepe with full sleeves trimmed at the border with lace of the same shade. Mrs. Luke wore a spring print in red, black and green and her sister and sister-in-law both were dressed in pastel blue. All the ladies wore orchid corsages.

Among early arrivals was Mrs. Frank Letts, who sat comfortably in a chair in the drawing room and chatted with her many friends. Nearby were Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, the latter wearing a green dress with white polka dots and a becoming white turban.

Miss Emily Davis, wearing an off-white sports frock with a fuchsia-colored bolero, was among members of the younger set there, as was Ralph Conkey.

Others seen were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McConihe, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, the latter wearing a becoming blue lace frock with a hat to match; Mrs. Ollie James, in a spring print; Mrs. Fred Britten, whose frock of dotted swiss was topped off with a small black hat trimmed with white flowers; Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, who leaves shortly to see her son, Norton receive his diploma cum laude from Harvard; the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Howry, Lyle Brookover, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, the latter in a black and white print; Baroness von Below and many others.

Many Attend Party Of W. C. Gwynns

Meanwhile, the Thirteenth street residence of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn, in Georgetown, was the scene of another gay gathering, as the hosts entertained for Dr. Gwynn's brother, Maj. Harry W. Gwynn, and his charming wife. It was planned as a garden party and though the hostess was afraid that because of showers the guests would have to meet indoors, between showers they were able to enjoy the lovely grounds.

Mrs. William Gwynn wore a white flowered print with a large white hat trimmed in red poppies. The honor guest was attired in a light green flowered print, topped off with a big cartwheel hat in a Dubonnet shade.

Nearly 200 guests attended the tea, and some of them stayed for an informal buffet supper. Maj. and Mrs. Gwynn have just arrived in Washington after three and a half years in Honolulu. They are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Gwynn for a brief time and will return later to Washington, where the Major has been assigned.

Wellesley Club To Aid 'Bowl Of Rice' Party

Mme. Kai-shek Distinguished Alumna and Members Are Reminded.

The Washington Wellesley Club has been urged by its president, Mrs. Harry B. Miss Warncke Heads Sorority

Beta Sigma Phi Council Installs President at Convention Here.

Charlotte Warncke, of Bethlehem, Pa., was installed yesterday as president of the Middle Eastern Area Council of Beta Sigma sorority. The installation took place in connection with the luncheon which was the climax of a 2-day convention of the council, held at the Willard.

Margaret Camburn, retiring president of the council, presided at both luncheon and installation. Other new officers include: Ann Riehl, of Philadelphia; vice president; Peg Myer, Philadelphia, treasurer; Ruth Cate, of Gamma Chapter, Washington, secretary; Elizabeth Remmele, Trenton, N. J., corresponding secretary; Lillian Cotty, Wilmington, Del., historian.

The sorority, whose membership is comprised of young business and professional women, has chapters in nearly every State. Miss Lavina Engle, field representative of the Social Security Board, addressed the luncheon yesterday, at which 200 members and guests were present. Mrs. Ellis Logan, sponsor of the local chapter, and Mrs. E. B. Sunday, educational director, were other guests of honor.

Among honorary members of the sorority are Mrs. Vachel Lindsay and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of Washington. Its publications include "The Torch," a cultural magazine, and "The Living Masterpiece," by Terry Lynon, a book.

Delegates were here yesterday from New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvannia to attend the convention, at which Gamma Chapter of Washington was host. The committee in charge included Ruth Gilbert, Frances Zumpano, Ruth Cate, Margaret Frazen, Alice Koch, Edna Steinberger, Mildred King, Lucille Embrey, and Irene Stevenson, president of Gamma Chapter.

Interior and PWA Dance Set June 17

Department heads of the Interior Department and the Public Works Administration will be honor guests at the dance being sponsored by the Interior Department Recreation Association June 17. Stanley W. Crosthwait, assistant to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and president of the association, estimates that approximately one-half of the 1,500 members will be in attendance at the first joint social event of the two employe groups. Dancing will be from 9 to 1 in the new air-cooled cafeteria of the Interior Building, Nineteenth and C streets northwest.

The walls will be hung with picturizations of the June moon and romantic night scenes, the work of Merel S. Sager. Divertissements during intermission will feature June brides. Miss Evelyn Adams is in charge of entertainment.

Federal employes who have been married this month have been invited to be guests of the association that evening.

City Club Plans Party Saturday

Marjorie Webster School Campus to Be Setting for Jubilee.

The Women's City Club is making elaborate plans for a June Jubilee party Saturday on the campus of the Marjorie Webster School, of which the club president, Miss Webster, is the head.

Plans are in charge of Miss Elva McNamara, chairman of the ways and means committee. Assisting her will be the Misses Mary Clifford, Lula Dick, Pauline Sabin, Minnie Hardy and the newly organized junior guild of the club. The jubilee will start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continue into the evening with a supper served at 6 o'clock.

Miss Webster will preside at a special meeting of the board of directors of the club at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Following a most successful membership campaign, Mrs. Thomas A. Sherman, chairman of the membership committee, will have a number of applications to present at the meeting.

Thursday, following the weekly club night dinner, Mrs. Lucile McMurray, of the Altrusa Club, will show a film in the clubrooms. Mrs. Jessie Lane will be hostess.

Relief Corps Ends Flag Day Plans

Ceremony to Be Held on Steps of Capitol.

Mrs. Bertha B. Brown, president of the Department of the Potomac Woman's Relief Corps, with her patriotic committee has completed arrangements for Flag Day exercises tomorrow on the steps of the east front of the Capitol at 8 p. m. They will be preceded by a concert by the United States Army Band from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

The program includes selections by the band, an address by Representative Harold Knutson; "The Star Spangled Banner," by Mrs. Katherine Warren, and a pageant, "Defenders of the Flag."

Mrs. Bessie M. Cummings, of Webster, N. H., senior national vice president of the W. R. C., was here for a brief stay on her way to the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis, preceding the commencement. She presented a wrist watch to Midshipman Christian Isham, first class, of Redlands, Calif., for being the most proficient of the graduating class in "rules of the road."

Mrs. Cummings was accompanied by the department president, Mrs. Brown, who is a past national senior vice president, and department secretary, Mrs. Delia L. O'Brien; past department president and acting department executive chairman, Mrs. Addie W. Hickman, and past department president and department press correspondent, Miss Mary A. Howarth.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

WITH THE ARRIVAL of the season's hottest wave, society is preparing to take refuge in gardens or country clubs.

For the most part, big dinners and dances are over, and entertaining will be informal.

• • • •

CHIEF COMPENSATION for many members of Capital society is the Chevy Chase Club. Saturday night, several hundred gathered on the beautiful veranda and lawn, and, with the turf illuminated by a full moon and concealed floodlights, it was difficult to believe one was near a city.

DUDLEY HARMON

The Ethel Worthington dinner party was present. Miss Worthington, whose engagement was announced that evening, to William James Coad, jr., of Omaha, was wished happiness by everybody and looked even prettier than usual in a pastel-blue evening dress with a tucked bodice and a corsage of orchids.

• • • •

THE diplomatic corps was represented by Count and Countess Roberti; Count and Countess de Gramont of the French Embassy, the latter wearing a becoming gown of heavy white crepe, with a brief ermine wrap; the Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Benech; and Herr von Stolzmann and Frau Herbert Scholz, Frau Scholz wearing a gaily colored print.

At a ringside table were Mrs. Pearsons Rust, who had entertained at dinner before the dance; Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, the latter in white; Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken and Lieut. Comdr. William D. Thomas.

Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis also were in evidence. Twirling about the floor were popular Dolly Corbin, in a printed linen frock of blue and white, and Wallace LaRue, of the Foreign Service Training School; Nora van Haersma de With, in filmy white; Commander Ralph Bates, who is to leave soon to take command of the Clark; Mrs. Harrington Tinsley Garnett, and many another.

THE FRENCH DEPARTMENT: Industrious Ambassador Count Rene de Saint Quentin will sail July 18 for a vacation in Paris . . . The Third Secretary and Mme. Charles Lucet will be off next Sunday on the DeGrasse for a holiday, and, during their absence, Armande Berard will occupy their house on Thirty-fourth street . . . Jacques Dumaine is going to motor to California, but not until September . . . The Count and Countess de Gramont hope to be joined during the summer by his mother, famous here and abroad for her beauty and charm. The former Duchesse de Gramont, she is now Mme. Francois Hugo. Her husband is a descendant of Victor Hugo and a brother of Jean Hugo, stage designer.

A LANDSCAPE architect's dream in miniature is the garden behind the Georgetown residence of Maxine Davis, the writer. When Miss Davis entertained at a cocktail party there Saturday, the guests were completely captivated by the charm of the garden.

The little enclosure, which could not possibly hold more than a dozen persons, opens off the basement dining room. One walks through a tiny gate in a little green picket fence and ascends a flight of steps to a little fountain, where on Saturday two jars of calla lilies had been placed. On a little wall separating the higher level of the garden from the flower are pots of geraniums and other bright flowers. A tiny rose plot, with room enough for three bushes, is diamond shaped and surrounded by a narrow stone walk. The whole is surrounded by ivy-covered brick walls, behind which are tall hollyhocks.

Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, was among the guests. Also there were Mr. and Mrs. John Carter Vincent, Georgetown neighbors of Miss Davis; the Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Franklyn Waltman, trying out on the guests titles for the column he will do weekly for the Republican National Committee; Mrs. Emil Hurja and several others.

Owens-Knight Wedding Held

Son of Dr. and Mrs. Owens, of Chevy Chase, Is Wed in Pittsfield.

News has been received of the marriage on Saturday in Pittsfield, Mass., of Miss Adeline Augusta Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hyde Knight, to Alfred Arthur Owens, son of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Julian Owens, of Chevy Chase, Md. The ceremony took place at the Homestead, which has been owned by the bride's family since 1790. The Rev. Edward Upson Cowles officiated.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with old point lace that belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. John Ritchie. It was also worn by the bride's mother at her marriage in the Homestead in 1906.

Mrs. George Winfred Wright, of Washington, was her sister's only attendant. Quincy Kennedy Owens, of Washington, was his brother's best man.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Silver Spring, Md.

The bride attended the Brimmer School in Boston and is a graduate of Berkshire Business College. Her ancestors were among Pittsfield's first settlers.

Mrs. Owens was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1930. He is a grandson of the late Confederate Capt. William Hamilton Kennedy. His father is past president of the Southern Society of Washington and past commander in chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Return From New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Sard have returned from a stay in New York, where they stopped at the Gramercy Park.

Peters at Commodore.

Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d and their daughter, Miss Anne B. Peter, are at the Commodore Hotel in New York.

Society Scions To Exhibit Art

Yard School Students Will Show Work Wednesday at 2000 S Street.

Several children of members of Capital society will be represented in an exhibition of work by students at the Yard School of Fine Art from 4 to 6 p. m. Wednesday at 2000 S street northwest, new quarters of the school.

Among those in the children's division of the organization who will show drawings are Joan and Rene Beauregard, adopted children of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Finley; Rosalind Rust, daughter of Mrs. Pearsons Rust; Hallis Morris, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, and Sherry Parker, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker, jr.

Additional patronesses for the event include Mrs. Rust, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt and Mrs. Paul Henderson, whose two children also will exhibit some of their work.

Recital Is Planned By Jesse Mussear

Jesse Mussear, accompanied by Otto T. Simon, will present a song recita lat the American Association of University Women's Clubhouse following a tea this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Mussear is a lyric tenor, well known to many Washingtonians, having sung before numerous clubs. He is also the tenor of the Orpheus Quartet, which is directed by Mr. Simon.

His program will include "First Green" (Schumann), "Thou Art Like a Lovely Flower" (Schuman), "O Sleep, Why Dost Thy Leave Me" (Handel), "Whe're Ye Walk" (Handel), "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal" (Quilter), "The Star" (Rogers), "At Parting" (Rogers), "A Spirit-flower" (Campbell-Tipton), "Open Thy Blue Eyes" (Massenet), "The Year's at the Spring" (Beach).

Mrs. Howard Oldham will be hostess.

Jane H. Sibley Becomes Bride In Rochester

Girl Who Formerly Lived Here Wed to Gordon Auchincloss 2d.

In Rochester, N. Y. Saturday Miss Jane Harper Sibley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley of that city, and Gordon Auchincloss 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Coats Auchincloss of New York and Rumson, N. J., were married.

Mr. Sibley, who with his family lived here when he was president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin with lace that had been used in the bridal costumes of her great-grandmother, grandmother and mother bordering the train. Her veil was held by a poke bonnet and she carried a silver-bound prayer book with a marker of two white orchids.

Miss Elizabeth Sibley was maid of honor for her sister. She wore dusty pink sheer crepe made with a shirred bodice, and her hat was a rough straw poke bonnet trimmed in dusty pink. She carried mixed white flowers.

The bridesmaids, who wore dusty blue sheer crepe frocks and hats like that of the maid of honor, were the Misses Barbara Auchincloss, cousin of the bridegroom; Emily Tuckerman of New York, Ann McCormick of Albany, Mary Wlizabeth Wickham, Springfield, Ohio; Virginia Farr, cousin of the bride, and Dorothy Fergusson, Anne Wolcott and Marjorie Backus of Rochester.

Tertia and Margaret Glenn, nieces of the bride, served as flower girls, wearing dusty pink Kate Greenaway frocks and white poke bonnets and carrying old-fashioned bouquets.

Mr. Auchincloss served as best man for his son, and the ushers were J. Douglas Auchincloss, the bridegroom's brother; G. MacMurtrie Godley, T. Talmadge Pearson and John G. Webb, of New York; Hiram W. Sibley, brother of the bride; Samuel Auchincloss, the bridegroom's cousin; James H. Higgins, of Pittsburgh, and Porter Caesar, of Rumson.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. After a motor trip, the couple will reside in New York.

The bride attended the Columbia School; St. Timothy's School, at Catonsville, Md., and the University of Rochester, of which her father is a trustee. Mr. Auchincloss attended Groton School and Yale University.

Marine Cadet Weds on Coast

The Chapman Park Oratoria, Los Angeles, was the scene of the wedding at 6 o'clock yesterday evening of Miss Lee Higgins, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Higgins of that city, to Ralph LeRoy Johnson, aviation cadet, U. S. M. C. R. The Rev. Joseph P. Hicks officiated.

After a wedding trip across the country, the couple will reside at the Marine Barracks in Quantico. The bride is related to Mrs. Mamie Meigs and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Doyle, of Chevy Chase and the latter's daughter, Miss Ruth Doyle, attended the wedding.

The bride wore a bouffant model of white silk net, fashioned with short puffed sleeves. Her fingertip tulle veil was attached to a halo of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jayne Higgins served as her sister's maid of honor, wearing peach-colored mousseline de soie with a blue sash and a short blue veil. She carried a nosegay of talisman roses and corn flowers.

Robert MacDonald served as best man and the ushers were Allen Hoppe and Arthur Rohman.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of California. Mrs. Johnson is a member of Kappa Delta and her husband belongs to Theta Xi.

Ladies of Charity to Meet.

The city-wide group, Ladies of Charity, this morning at 10:30 will hold a reception of new members at St. Thomas' Church, Twenty-eighth and Woodley road, followed by a business meeting with Mrs. George H. O'Connor preciding.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Having Confessed Major Affair to Fiance, Divorcee Worries About 'Incidents;' Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 24, have been married and am divorced. I am now engaged to be married again, to a very fine man. I was divorced four years ago and from then until recently I have gone with several men, only one of whom I was seriously interested in. I had an affair with this man and although I regret it now, it seemed justifiable at the time. My fiance knows about this affair and we have come to a harmonious understanding about it.

* * * *

However, during the months immediately following my divorce, there were two other men in my life, both incidental, and neither of whom I loved. One man I never saw again and the other I see only casually. I have never mentioned the incidents to anyone. I have tried very hard to forget them but I can't get rid of a feeling of shame whenever they come to mind.

* * * *

Should I tell my fiance about these two men? I have already assured him so definitely that he knows all there is to know about my past that I fear he will lose faith in me altogether if I should add new chapters to the story; and chapters that I want so badly to forget. I felt that he sensed I was not telling the whole truth, but this could have been my imagination. There is no way of his ever finding out about these men unless one of them should tell, and I don't think that is likely.

* * * *

I am sure such a thing could never happen again and I have profited from these errors. I was reared in a rather strict religious home and my mother failed to tell me things I should have known about sex in general. Things of that nature were always hushed up, and all that I know I learned through bitter experience. Now I know that for the individual's peace of mind, and for the sake of society in general, the path of transgression is to be avoided. But do you think I will be jeopardizing my future happiness in keeping these painful mistakes from my fiance? As my wedding day approaches I become more and more panicky and undecided what to do. PAT.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR PAT: A trio of women were talking together one day (this really happened). "Would you tell your husband—?" one of them began, apropos of what may have been some peccadillo. "No!" she was vigorously interrupted by a second lady—a breezy, humorous, wise and kindly individual, the successful wife of a successful man, 25 years married and the mother of five children. "Tell him nothing it would distress him to hear. The less he knows about what troubles you the happier he'll be and the better off you'll be." There was a lot of truth in her shot in the dark.

* * * *

To love and be loved is not sufficient justification for either party to thrust upon the other the soul-shaking responsibility of being his father confessor, spiritual adviser or moral judge. These are awesome callings for which long and special training is required, a fact which church and society alike has recognized since time immemorial, almost.

* * * *

Since your conscience is troubling you; since your soul feels stained; since you wish to enter your new marriage with a released and happy sense of being absolved of past mistakes, the thing to do is to unburden your story to a dispassionate, experienced, competently trained specialist in the field of mental (and spiritual) health. Such a person may be either physician, psychiatrist, gynecologist, clergyman or priest.

* * * *

Such persons understand the sometimes inexorable pressure which makes for social misbehavior; they understand, too, the psychological ill effects upon the individual of such behavior, and they know what counsel and instruction is needed for restoring his self respect, for giving him a sane, clean and sound perspective on life and human behavior in general. If it seems best to tell your fiance the whole truth, you will be thus advised by such a counselor. But until you are so advised, and by such a source, do not inflict upon him the painful details of your regretable trial-and-error quest for love.

* * * *

It is enough that you have told him of the one "affair." It would be too much and— as I see it—to no profitable point whatever to take him on another ghoul-like tour of your past. What is buried there is no rightful concern of his, providing you have the intention and the ability to avoid the repetition of such mistakes in future. M. H.

What's a 'Smoothie?'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Will you please give me a description of a male "smoothie?" This term is used by the girls to describe a certain species of boy-friend. I was told that I was NOT a smoothie, and I don't know whether to feel flattered or insulted. Thanking you, I am, your very truly, MARTIN M.

* * * *

DEAR MARTIN M.: The term "smoothie" holds different meanings for different persons. There is a type of girl who thinks she is conferring a high compliment upon a man in calling him a "smoothie." But, conversely, there's a type of man (I think you'd like him best; I know I do) who would—and does—shudder with distaste at the thought of the term's being applied to him.

* * * *

"A 'smoothie,' in the vocabularly of the girl who considers the term a compliment and distributes it as such, is a man whose social manners (from the skin out) are polished 'til they shine; who always says and does the right thing at the right time (that is, according to the "right people's" definition of what is "right").

* * * *

As one young lady—very much in the social swim—blithely defined the term for me: "It means a sort of superior attitude; an air of great sophistication; it has to do with dressing well; having a good social line." After a second's pause, she added, "But it doesn't necessarily mean sterling character." Turning from her, I put the question to a young gentleman (I use the noun advisedly) who obviously knows his way around. "Would you be flattered if called a 'smoothie,'" I asked him. He shuddered—visibly, involuntarily, actually. "My God, no!" he said. M. H.

Midshipmen to Rescue!

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As faithful readers of your column, we are interested in the problem of the unwooed Washington girls. If the ratio of male to female is as one-sided as they say, we suggest you send some of the overflow to Annapolis. We can use them here, where the concentration of males is terrific. MIDSHIPMEN.

* * * *

DEAR MIDSHIPMEN: A noble and manly, a gallant (or is it) offer! To woo the unwooed Washington girls, I mean. But couldn't you somehow manage to cover the distance between Annapolis and Washington? It seems to me it would spoil the beauty of this hypothecated en masse summer idyll if the girls had to take the initiative in tracking you down.

* * * *

By the way (and rather irrelevantly) the biggest boot I've got in many a day was derived from reading the results of the midshipmen's "reader interest survey" published in your Annapolis Log of March 18. It's something to learn that one is the midshipmen's favorite columnist and that one rates, in somebody's eyes, along with Adolph Hitler and Dizzy Dean, as a "person of importance." Thank you, Joe Gish. I don't even mind, any longer, if you do write me too many kidding letters. M. H.

La Colbert Shops For Bright Lingerie On a Visit to Paris

Paris (U.P.)—Claudette Colbert is tired of plain-colored princess-slips and other underthings.

The monotonous American lingerie shades of pink, peach, blue and white make the star of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" pine for the more tempestuous floral prints of her native Paris.

So almost the first thing Claudette did upon her arrival here with her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman, was to dash to the nearest department store on the Place de l'Opera, where reporters found her in the lingerie section, happily rubbing elbows with dozens of other shoppers around a table of flowered voile nighties.

"Now that's what's wrong with America," she said, finding a pastel yellow number, all covered with tiny roses, out of the pile. "The lingerie there comes in only one shade at a time."

"I'm going to bring back a lot of flowered voile underwear," Claudette continued. "In the first place, I'm really so fond of it, and in the second place, I want to launch a vogue that's truly Parisian."

At the Beach—Be Either Daring or Conservative

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, June 12.

WHEN WE OLD chair-rockers recall how the battling minority of American women fit and died to win the priceless boon of the ballot over 20 years ago — how Fola La Follette and Gen. Rosalie Jones and the other gallant ladies went forth to final victory—it is no little disturbing to realize that a huge mass of our sex doesn't seem to care much about this voting business.

ALICE HUGHES

There's a large chunk of irony, mixed with shock, in the fact that about 19,000,000 American women didn't bother to vote in the last national election. Of this enormous number, there are about a million non-voting girls in the State of New York, and the politically-minded sisters here propose to do something about it. Namely, make a lot of speeches and try to ignite a small voting blaze in the hearts of these who ignore the ballot box.

So the lions lay down with the lambs last week at our Town Hall Club, and planned a battle. Miss Nancy Cook answered "here" for the Democrats, Miss Jane Todd for the Republicans, and Mrs. Eleanor Herrick spoke up for the American Labor Party, which was instrumental in re-electing Mayor LaGuardia here in 1936. All three parties will send out speakers to spread their various gospels, and also try to rouse the present but not voting mass of women. This will be done during the next few months, so that more of the electorate may be aroused in time for November's balloting.

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Oh dear, I suppose resourceful Postal Telegraph had to get out a Father's Day song but why does it have to be called "Daddy Is No Longer the Forgotten Man of Tinpan Alley?" Alas it is, and Anna Case Mackay, the opera star turned tunesmith, has written the music for it. Mary Small will sing it on the 19th which is Pop's day, and I am afraid he is a bit horrified about the whole thing.

* * * *

Norma Talmadge has been around town lately with her comedian-husband, Georgie Jessel, but for some reason, did not choose to appear with him on the stage of our State Theater. Norma looks mighty well, and matronly-pretty, but she has been so long away from the screen that the current younger generation of cafe-loafers does not recognize her as one of the most popular movie girls of all time.

* * * *

At the moment of writing, the three biggest theatrical hits on Broadway are, in this order, "I Married An Angel," the musical delight which offers Zorina and a fine cast; "Our Town," Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-Winner, and "On Borrowed Time," the fanciful play which Dudley Digges, little Peter Holden and Frank Conroy rescue from a dangerous degree of whimsy. It seems that these three and about six other shows will try to fight their way through the hot weather. Our legitimate theaters, notorious hot-boxes, have now nearly all been air-conditioned—which is an enormous help to all, including the hapless actors. . . .

* * * *

Have you seen the new highball glasses lined, at various levels, with such mirth-provoking instructions as "Do the Big Apple" "Tell your best joke" and "Be a mammy singer." I don't know how you feel, but I wouldn't obey a single instruction, and very probably would give up long cold drinks during this emergency!

* * * *

A last long look at summer hats gives me a few late tips. The crowns are a bit higher than those of spring. Bright-colored lightweight felts are fine to wear with black street dresses and print suits; that veils and flowers have completely given way to ribbon for trimming; that coarsely woven shiny straw is having a wide vogue. In short, the hats have moved from gay goofiness in the direction of the classic mode. Will that please the men, or not?

Beach Costumes Are Colorful, Accessories Bold and Striking

Wide Choice of Fabrics and Styles Makes It Possible to Emphasize Good Points of All Types of Figure.

ONCE all beach costumes were cut from practically the same pattern and fabric. Fat or slim, you wore the same style as every other woman you met. If you were lucky enough to find a bathing or play suit to half fit, it usually accentuated all your figure faults. But not so with 1938 beach attire, for it is designed along individual lines for figure flattery and a maximum amount of comfort.

There are many styles, colors and fabrics from which to select. It's all a matter of finding the togs that are most becoming and appropriate. Swimming suits are no longer a monotony of black, yellow, blue and white but are made in colorful prints, aqua, dusty pink, wine and grape. And what a choice you have in fabrics—sharkskin, jersey, cotton, satin, lastex and acetate materials. No one material is more popular than the other. However, sharkskin is one of the newest fabrics to lend itself to swim suits. They are unusually flattering when you return to the shore from a last minute dip for they do not cling so revealingly.

If you have a small, trim figure you can easily wear a lastex, satin, shirred or knitted, but if there is any doubt about perfection a dressmaker type would be your best selection. The print suits are particularly enticing for you may have two suits in one by reversing them.

Slacks and play suits are slated for smartness and popularity. Many new slacks are fashioned of sharkskin, rayon suiting or flannel and linked with a halter top and a jacket of contrasting color. Shirt waist blouses are also worn with the sharkskin slacks.

Play suits are designed with shorts, generally pleated and much longer than last year's version. However, beach coats have shortened, the newest being only a little longer than the swim suits.

When the play suit or swimming suit is conservative, the needed zip to the costume can be added with colorful accessories. Immense hats that offer protection from the sun promise to appear on a number of heads but callots and kerchiefs will be worn also. Hats, clogs, bags and lounge clothes are all fashioned with an eye to femininity, flattery and gayety. New beach bags closely resemble the old fashioned carpet bags in size. They are made in colorful cottons and oilcloth and are equipped with numerous bottles for sun tan lotions and creams.

The cork clog with a sole 3 inches thick to lift the wearer out of the sand seem to be the favorite sandals at all beaches. These are both durable and practical.

Write Interesting Letters

CHEERFUL, chatty letters—that's Mary's long suit. What a help it's been to her in making and keeping friends.

Yet Mary's no "writer." With a few simple pointers any one could do as well.

There's Dorothy — whose chilly notes bristle with "I did this" and "I did that"—and never a word about you.

Dorothy could get a "me-to-you" warmth in her letters by more "you's," fewer "I's." By keeping your last letter before you as she writes, she wouldn't forget to answer the questions you asked about Jock's first date, Dot's baby.

And Kay—what pointers does she need to brighten this stiff note: "Just heard of Tom's promotion. I congratulate you?"

Kay has writing stiffness. By writing as she'd talk, she can get sincere enthusiasm in her letters: "Wonderful news about Tom's promotion. The boy is certainly going places."

As for Joan, how you'd hate to have a critical friend see one of her cheap little notes. No vocabulary—"nice," "awful," "good" over and over again. Grammatical errors—"I wouldn't OF believed it." Ruled stationery.

With a few tips on good letters Joan would stock up on vivid adjectives—delightful, tempestuous, enchanting. She'd watch her English: "I wouldn't HAVE believed." And she'd use unruled stationery.

YOUR FIGURE SIR!

Waiter Assists Himber to Reduce His Weight 30 Pounds.

By Ida Jean Kain.

WHEN A MAN reduces, that's news! He usually is driven to it by his doctor, his wife or his job. In the case of Richard Himber, famous for romantic music in this age of swing, it was the job. He complains that "nobody loves a fat band leader and you can't look romantic at 200 pounds."

As a result, Himber almost has completed the season's most novel reducing program. But let's start at the beginning and let him tell it! "I made up my mind to get my weight down if it was the last thing I did," he declared. "I have taken off 30 pounds and have only 10 more to go."

"Did you find it hard to do?" I asked—as if I didn't know!

"Well, it was no picnic. In fact," he began to warm up to the subject, "dieting is a terrible thing. And to think a man has to go through it! Look at that," said he, waving a lettuce and tomato sandwich at me, "that is supposed to be my lunch."

Waiter Can Aid.

Himber is a bachelor and his scheme of dieting will appeal to all you overweight men who dine out. He just shifts the entire responsibility for the diet over to his waiter. Whereas most men are inclined to tip for generous servings, he tips extra for half portions. It is up to the waiter to keep him on his diet. The waiter has to know something about calories and he must be strongminded, because his job is to serve only half portions of the foods that put on weight. He has learned from experience that when he weakens, Himber eats all the food and gives him no tip.

Realizing that a poor diet leads to a bad disposition and sour notes, Himber has been clever about his reducing. He does not go without the foods needed for strength. For breakfast he has two eggs, fruit juice, and toast with a half pat of butter. At noon he has buttermilk with the sandwich.

"I have even learned to like buttermilk and salads," was his comment, "But I still think they're sissy."

Meat for Dinner.

At dinner he has a tomato juice cocktail, a liberal serving of meat from which all the fat has been trimmed (by that strongminded waiter), vegetables, a salad and no dessert. There is no cream sauce for the vegetables, and only one roll.

This deal with the waiter is a new idea in reducing. You might work the same system with your wife—on the basis of a new hat. Just promise her a Paris importation when you lose 10 pounds and she will see that you lose them in a hurry.

When it comes to exercise, Himber would rather lead bands. He does, however, ride horseback twice a week, and it pleases him to think that the horse has to do most of the work.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Plague of Summer.

At last something is to be done about the summer visitor. Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, the intrepid founder and leader of the Do Something About It League, announces an immediate drive to eradicate the more flagrant of these pests.

"All Washington women who are not mice are invited to join in this offensive," said Mrs. DeGoofey yesterday. "Up to now they have done nothing but complain behind their visitors' backs, while at the same time they have gone on smirkingly making biscuit for breakfast, sleeping on love seats and standing in tourist lines at Mount Vernon. Now, if they want direct action, the Do Something About It League is prepared to give it.

Ovenight Nuisances.

"Will you have laws passed, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"Not just yet. A little later, perhaps, we will back a constitutional amendment making it a felony to be an overnight guest in a home that has less than two servants."

"Isn't that a bit—er, stringent?"

"Not at all! What are hotels and rooming houses for? You know there is no greater outrage in America than the overnight guest. There is no subject on which I feel more strongly. The preservation of American home life hinges on how soon we rid ourselves of this nuisance."

"What will be your first line of attack, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

Code for Guests.

"We are now drawing up a guests' code that we hope will discourage over night visiting. We expect to circularize the country, especially the Middle West and South, with this code as soon as possible. Here are its main provisions:

"Advance notice of at least 30 days must be given host or hostess by prospective visitor.

"Visitors shall call by telephone on arriving in city—and NEVER NEVER begin a conversation by asking, 'Do you know who this is?' Under no circumstances shall they burst in at the home or office of the person to be visited without warning.

"Visitors shall state definite time of departure immediately on arrival, and no power on earth shall induce them to stay over another day or hour.

"Not more than four visitors may come in one deluge, and children under 6, all dogs, cats, kodaks and radios excluded.

Travelers' Outfits.

"Women visitors shall be prohibited from wearing white shoes or gloves. They shall wear dresses that do not require pressing or mending, and preferably paper underwear. They shall also go sockless.

"Visitors shall bring their own aspirin, soda, iodine, toothpaste, peroxide, wash cloths, medicine cups, clothes brushes, darning cotton. "Remains of visitors' camp supplies shall be disposed of before arrival.

"On sightseeing trips the hostess shall not be required to make tours of any buildings with visitors.

"Visitors shall never arise before 10 o'clock in the morning and shall be on diets that do not require breakfast.

"Salt or any other edible that induces thirst shall be barred from visitors' diet.

Prize Is Announced.

"How do you expect to enforce this code, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"Well, we hope to accomplish a great deal merely by appealing to the visitors' better natures. If that fails, we will adopt some more forceful hints, possibly by means of signs, for the protection of householders such as 'Beware the Dog,' 'Skunk Farm,' or even 'Smallpox.' I know of one woman who has solved the problem of summer visitors by keeping a pet monkey in the house. However, we are in the market for suggestions. I expect to offer a handsome Louis XIV chaise longue to the Washington woman who has the best suggestion for discouraging summer visitors."

"To what address should suggestions be sent, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"I will announce my headquarters later. Just now I haven't a definite address. You see, I am staying with friends."

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendenning.

Stomach Oddities.

The newspapers are carrying the story of what is supposed to be a unique case of a man who had a ball of hair removed from his stomach. It is not unique. Foreign bodies in the stomach are so curious that they always have attracted attention. Technically they are known as "phytobezoars" and were described in the first writings on medicine. In fact, they were used during the Middle Ages as luck pieces. They are often found in the stomachs of herbivorous animals, and were thought to possess magical properties: Lucky was the huntsman who found a hair ball in the stomach of the deer which he had killed in the forest.

Nowadays persimmons are the most frequent nucleus for foreign bodies of the stomach. If you want one, the method seems to be to take a liberal quantity of the persimmons on an empty stomach. The seeds constitute a nucleus. They are almost insoluble and when a mass of them glues together in the stomach it cannot be moved out into the intestine.

How hairs are swallowed seems to be mysterious but, as a matter of fact, we all swallow a few hairs regularly. Women patients are in the majority in these cases, probably because they hold their hair in the mouth while combing it. Of course this does not apply to the modern bobbed-hair species.

Foreign bodies in the stomach may be made up not only of hair but of indigestible substances of all kinds—string, grass, tobacco, and shellac. The latter is frequent in painters, who use shellac as an intoxicant.

The symptoms of a foreign body in the stomach are very indefinite, usually vague digestive discomfort such as belching and a feeling of a mass in the stomach. Since the X-ray is so much a part of modern diagnostic equipment, the diagnosis can be made with great ease, and recoveries nowadays are frequent with a combination of good X-ray technique and modern surgery.

4 Drown as 11 Load Potomac River Rowboat

Drown

screaming. I never saw Mr. Grimm after he jumped."

From 150 feet away, Wheeler, a marine stationed at the Washington Navy Yard, heard screams nad saw the boat sinking.

When he pulled up, he told police, Eskridge was almost exhausted. Another survivor told the story of how Eskridge stood in water 3 feet over his head and kept jumping up from the bottom at intervals so he could keep the children afloat.

Wheeler told police "I rowed as fast as I could and pulled the man in. The kids had practically drowned him. I got the man into the boat and then jumped over the side and started boosting children in. I dived and tried to get the others.

Meanwhile, pretty Barbara Eskridge, a powerful swimmer despite her age, had held on to Robert Mills until help came.

"It all happened so suddenly," she said. "I didn't have time to think. All the kids were screaming—and, when the boat went over, I came up beside the Mills boy and held on."

She clung with one hand to the overturned rowboat until Wheeler arrived, and the other children held on to her father. Wheeler, his hands a mass of blisters and clad only in underwear when he talked to police, told quickly the story of how he saved the lives of six persons and regretted his failure to save the others.

Wind Whips River.

Too far from shore to get assistance, Wheeler worked alone for several minutes as a high wind whipped down the river, ahead of an approaching storm.

"The water was so rough I had a hard time getting the people into the boat. It was the roughest water I have ever been in, in a small boat," he said.

"The boat was heavily loaded, so I took Eskridge and five children to the Virginia side."

While Wheeler worked, a second rowboat reached the scene, operated by Dr. R. W. Baer, and Francis X. Staley, of Frederick, Md. They pulled Walters Birkley into their boat just as he was going down for the third time.

Unconscious more than 15 minutes, Walter later said, "We had only been in the boat about five minutes when a big wave poured water over the side. When we tried to get out of the way of the water, the boat overturned.

"I'm a pretty good swimmer but we were so far from the shore I couldn't make it. I thought I was going to drown when I started to sink the third time and I don't remember the man pulling me out. When I woke up I was crying and shaking all over."

Although she had heard of the tragedy, Walter's mother did not learn of her child's safety until a Post reporter took the boy to his home.

As the two rescue boats returned to the Virginia shore, heavy rain broke, to hamper further rescue work. Eskridge, police and spectators praised Wheeler's bravery. He dived repeatedly for the other children without success.

Rescue Squads Summoned.

Meanwhile, from both sides of the river, rescue squads were summoned.

Their rescue work did not begin for more than an hour after the boat turned over at 1:20 p. m., the time fixed by Wheeler's watch which stopped when he went over to get the children.

All available boats at Seneca were mobilized as the Rockville and Herndon rescue squads went to work.

Equipped with a new oxygen diving helmet, used for the first time yesterday, Francis "Slom" Lyddane of the Rockville squad began searching the river bottom, while Dr. Harry Beard, Washington physician former Rockville resident, began diving.

First victim found was little Lucille Hogan, whose body, pinned beneath the overturned rowboat, was recovered by Dr Beard. Dr. Beard also was credited with locating the body of James Jennell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jennell.

Headed by Chief Walter A. Farr, the Herndon squad recovered the body of Franklin Hogan. Grief-stricken parents of Franklin and Lucille, Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Hogan, said last night they had lost 6 of 14 children in the past year, the other 4 victims of illness. Franklin was born the day President Roosevelt won his first election.

All Bodies Nearby.

Grimm, father of six children, was found by Thomas Federline, of Seneca, who recovered the body with a grappling hook. Mrs. Grimm, with two of the children, remained at the scene during the rescue work.

Police said the bodies of the four had been in the water so long that they were past assistance through artificial respiration. They were all found within a few feet of the point the boat went over.

As the rescuers fought wind and rain for more than an hour to recover the bodies, nearly 1,000 persons lined the Maryland side of the river and the embankments of the old canal over Seneca Creek. The last body was taken ashore about 4:30 p. m.

The four victims were pronounced dead by Dr. Baer and later removed to the Money-King funeral parlor in Vienna, Va. Although police declared the tragedy occurred in Maryland waters, Maryland authorities told the undertaking home they planned no inquest.

Dr. John A. Gibson, coroner of Loudoun County, said he had not determined whether he would hold an inquest.

The two older Mills boys are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mills, while Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mills.

Survivors and Victims of Tragedy

Four persons were drowned and seven rescued yesterday when an overloaded boat overturned on the Potomac River across from Seneca, Md. At the top are three youths who were saved. They are (left to right) Robert Mills, 6; Frank Mills, 10, and Howard Mills, 13. In the center are Franklin Hogan, 7, left, and Lucille Hogan, 12, both of whom were drowned. Below them are Paul R. Grimm, 43, who was drowned, and William H. Eskridge, 30, pilot of the ill-fated boat, who aided in the rescue.

Don't Fear Sin, Bolitha J. Laws Tells His Class

Wealthy Parishioners May Sometimes Escape Criticism, He Says.

Wealthy parishioners are protected from realistic handling from the pulpit in many cases because their money is needed in the church, Bolitha J. Laws yesterday told more than 100 members of the A. B. Pugh Bible Class of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church. He told the class, of which he is teacher, to "deal uncompromisingly with sin, as Christ did."

"It is easy," declared the speaker, who recently was nominated by President Roosevelt as a judge of the District Court" for us to attend church and hear such matters as sin discussed, but it is really difficult for Christians to speak out forcefully against it, fearing criticism.

"Some pastors are afraid to speak from the pulpit regarding the sins of parishioners of affluence because their financial support is needed in the church, and the minister fears to face the loss of their membership."

"You and I wonder many times why we Christians face so much adversity when the gambler, fraud and cheat seem to profit. We wonder what kind of a world it is when misconduct and cheating will put a man into power, while church workers will be stricken with great calamities. Some of us need adversity to bring us to our senses."

J. C. James Dies; Funeral Is Today

J. Curtis James died yesterday at his home, 3221 Hiatt place northwest, after a brief illness. He was 65.

Born February 22, 1873, in Gloucester County, Va., he was the son of the late Joseph Shepherd James and Martha Curtis James. He married Miss Mary Walker, daughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. John G. Walker, of Winchester, Va.

Funeral services will be today at 4 p. m. at Abington Church, Gloucester County.

4 Who Will Bid Adieu to Sweet Briar

Silas A. Manuel Dies; Headed Old Congress Hotel

Silas A. Manuel, 75, for many years the manager and president of the old Congress Hall Hotel, was found dead yesterday in his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Death was attributed to apoplexy.

Born near Fredericksburg, Va., Mr. Manuel came to Washington as a young man. He was connected with the Congress Hall Hotel, home of many Congressmen, until the structure was demolished to make way for the House Office Building a few years ago.

Mr. Manuel served as a food administrator for the District during the World War. He was a one-time president of the Anacostia Bank and a former president of the Hotel Association. He was a past master of Naval Lodge, F. A. A. M.

He is survived by a niece, Mrs. Frank W. Tunstall, of Haddon Heights, N. J., and three nephews, Ingram Thorpe, of Glenside, Pa.; E Howard Manuel, of Philadelphia, and Silas Heffron, of near Fredericksburg, Va. Mr. Manuel's wife died in 1930.

Services Are Held For Joseph Clark

Funeral services for Joseph Philo Clark, 24, of 2262 Hall place northwest, who died Friday at Georgetown Hospital, were held yesterday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. The body was sent to Chester, Mass., for burial.

A native of Chester, Mr. Clark had lived in Washington for six years. He was employed at the Fussells Young ice cream plant. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Agnes Irene Clark; five brothers, Charles H., Lewis J., Frank A., Fred R. and Lyman E. Clark, of Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. Warren H. Butman, of Chicoopee, Mass., and Miss Jessie I. Clark, of Washington.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

THE GHOST OF ALEXIS.

If the ghost of Alexis de Tocqueville were to re-visit this Capital, he would discover new marvels and wonders to add to his brilliant comments on this new Republic, now 100 years older. A few cocktail parties, a few conferences, a few dinner parties and he could add a fifth volume to his great work on America. De Tocqueville was the first European to come to America, in 1831, and write a book about us.

* * * *

Harlan Miller

President Roosevelt undoubtedly reads and rereads de Tocqueville, who looked us over 100 years ago with shining eyes and reported to his French readers:

"It is impossible to believe . . . that the democracy, which has bearded kings and barons can be successfully resisted by a wealthy bourgeoisie." So wrote the sanguine de Tocqueville.

* * * *

Undoubtedly the President has also run across this passage: "The greatest danger to liberty in America lies in the omnipotence of the majority . . . But there are certain factors in the United States which moderate this tyranny of the majority." And he goes on:

"—they forget he's President"

"Chief among these is the absence of any administrative centralization; so that the majority, which has often the tastes and instincts of a despot, lacks the instruments and the means of tyranny. The local administrative bodies constitute so many reefs and breakwaters to retard or divide the stream of the popular will." So wrote the optimistic de Tocqueville.

* * * *

One phenomenon would startle the learned Frenchman's ghost, as he listened to Mr. Roosevelt and his advisors: How grievously they underestimate the numbers of the minority in opposition. To hear them talk, he would first jump at the conclusion that this opposition consists of a mere handful; perhaps 60 families, or 10,000 economic royalists.

* * * *

Then he might look in the almanac and discover that the minority consisted of at least 16,000,000 of the 44,000,000 voters in the last Presidential election, and that these 16,000,000 include some of the toughest, smartest, stubbornest, and best equipped of Mr. Roosevelt's citizenry. This would strike him as a colossal error in arithmetic. He would be amazed at the wide chasm between President Roosevelt and this large minority.

* * * *

Another phenomenon would trouble Monsieur de Tocqueville. If he mingled with the fashionable gentry, the spearhead of this large minority (and there's no doubt he would, because they like to invite ghosts to their parties), he would learn that they think of Mr. Roosevelt not as their President, but merely as the leader of his party, and that their favorite indoor sport consists of looking daggers at him. He would be shocked at their bitterness, their vindictiveness, their petulance, their inability to establish contact with the Government, to negotiate or to make any suggestions for compromise.

* * * *

"—fighting off the Indians"

This, of course, is a colossal error of judgment, for Monsieur de Tocqueville undoubtedly would tell them that, as a group, they have more to gain than any others by nurturing respect for established authority, even when it isn't their pet brand of authority, because they have more at stake.

* * * *

If his visit were short and if he encountered much of that strange American drink (brought to the colonies by French naval officers during the Revolutionary War) known as the cocktail, he might well carry home a harrowing mental picture of an American aristocracy barricaded behind its overstuffed furniture and fighting off the Indians. He would go home with the impression that all the nice people are in a state of siege, beleaguered by the sans-culottes of the new deal.

* * * *

And when the New York ships' newsmen tried to interview this ghost as he sailed back to France, he might merely quote from his "Democracy in America:"

". . . The most immediate duties of the statesman are to instruct the democracy, if possible to revive its beliefs, to purify its morals, to enlighten its inexperience by some knowledge of political principles, and to substitute for the blind instincts which sway it, the consciousness of its true interest."

And both Mr. Roosevelt's supporters and his critics, reading this in the paper, would clutch at it as an indorsement—or else regard it as a dirty dig by an unfriendly press.

Georgetown's Honor Men Get 72 Prizes

Gold and Silver Medals and $645 in Cash Are Presented.

Honor seniors of Georgetown University last night received 72 prizes for academic achievement from deans of the schools on the eve of the 139th annual commencement. Gold and silver medals and $645 in cash awards were presented at exercises in Gaston Hall, the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of the university, presiding.

Although no outstanding star garnered all major honors, Walter Briggs Connolly, of Detroit, was singled out for a particular role in connection with the traditional Cohonguroton exercises. As winer of the coveted Merrick debating medal, he automatically was named class orator, and last night delivered the valedictory in the paint and feathers of a Cohonguroton chief in accordance with custom.

Among Washington students who shared the honors was Frederick H. Walton, jr., who received a free tuition scholarship for the full course in the School of Law. John Lewis Smith, jr., of Washington, received honorable mention for the outstanding law school award for the senior who attained the highest general average during his course, won by Vernon Lee Wilkinson, of Okanogan, Wash.

Young men must be "men of faith" to combat today's "infidelity and worldliness," the Rev. John Francis Leary, rector of St. Mary's Church, Hagerstown, Md., told the seniors in the baccalaureate sermon yesterday in Dahlgren Chapel. Graduates of today, he said, are facing a world menaced by paganism.

At his own graduation from Georgetown, 25 years ago, Father Leary said, the class had been warned that the collapse which overtook the cultured pagan civilizations of old was inevitable to every nation that turned its thoughts from God.

Officers of the mass were the Rev. Frederick H. Schoberg, S. J., celebrant; the Rev. William J. Kenealy, S. J., deacon, and the Rev. Joseph S. Cohalan, S. J., subdeacon. Except for Father Kenealy, who is a second-year law student, they are members of the faculty.

Prizes were awarded as follows:

University Awards.

The Mallory Medal for the best constitutional essay was awarded to Sidney M. Goldstein.

The Pulaski Medal for the best essay on Poland was awarded to James C. Palms.

College of Arts and Sciences.

The Ryan Medal was awarded to the senior maintaining the highest average in all examinations in psychology, natural theology and ethics—George Anthony Dies, jr.

The Merrick Medal for the best debater in the annual Merrick debate went to Walter Briggs Connolly.

The Morris Historical Medal went to John J. Harvey, jr.

The American Institute of Chemists Medal was awarded to Bernard G. Murray.

School of Medicine.

The Baker Memorial Medal was awarded to the student achieving the highest record in anatomy—Zac F. Endress, jr.

The Kober Medal in Hygiene was won by Donat P. Cyr.

The John D. Hird prize of $35, awarded to the student achieving the highest grade in phsiological chemistry went to Jerome S. Menaker.

The physiological chemistry prize of $25, to the member of the first year class achieving the second highest grade in the subject went to Robert W. O'Connor, and $15 for the third highest grade to George C. Dowd.

The pathology prize of $20, for the highest grade went to Francis A. Dobrzynski, and $15 for second highest grade to Hector A. Martinez.

School of Law.

The Rev. Thomas Bradbury Chetwood Medal was awarded for excellence in graduate study to Robert Henry Marquis. Honorable mention went to Clarence G. Pechacek.

The faculty prize of $40 for the best thesis in the graduate course was awarded to William Edward Hilbert. Honorable mention went to John Joseph Dolan.

The Rev. Francis E. Lucey Medal to the senior in the undergraduate school attaining the highest average during his entire course was awarded to Vernon Lee Wilkinson. Honorable mention went to Theodore Israel Seamon and John Lewis Smith, jr.

A $50 prize offered by Dean George E. Hamilton for the best average in legal ethics went to Carl E. Whitney, and $25 second prizes were awraded ex aequo to Jack E. Cochrane and John M. McKenna.

A $15 faculty prize to each counsel on the winning side of the four preliminary debates went to James Francis Foley, Edward Pierpont Morgan, Robert Thomas Murphy, Earl Joseph O'Brien, Frank Joseph Dugan, Ralph Pinzy Needle, Michael Patrick Keegan and John F. McCartney.

The $40 faculty prize to the senior in the morning session maintaining the highest average was given to Louis Cokin, and a $20 prize for the next highest average went to Carl E. Whitney.

The $40 faculty prize to the senior maintaining the highest average in the afternoon sessions was won by Vernon Lee Wilkinson, and $20 for the next highest class average by Theodore Israel Seamon.

The faculty prize of $25 for the best record in scholarship, adaptability and neatness of technique was won by Stanley Stillman.

The Dean Cozan Dental Society prize of $25 for the best scientific essay went to Abraham Mahdelbaum.

The comprehensive examination prize of $25, given by Dr. Joseph L. B. Murray to the fourth-year student attaining the highest grade in the comprehensive examination of the basic science subjects, went to Benjamin Posner.

The pathology prize of $15, given by the staff to the student receiving the highest grade, went to Darien B. Dauchtrey, and a $10 second prize went to Philip Natoli.

A certificate of merit from the American Society for the Promotion of Dentistry for Children, was awarded to Z. Bernard Lloyd.

Omicron Kappa Upsilon keys were awarded to John S. Clemence, Henry F. Jankowski and Stanley Stillman.

School of Foreign Service.

The Delta Sigma Pi gold scholarship key for highest scholarship in the entire course went to Howard C. McGarity.

The W. Coleman Nevils Silver Medal for the highest record in the course in foreign relations was won by Reginald P. Wiesenfeld.

The Edmund A. Walsh Gold Medal, founded by Delta Phi Epsilon Foreign Service Fraternity for the highest average in the undergraduate courses in international law, went to William G. Waldo.

The Jean Labat Memorial Gold Medal to the member of the graduating class whose promotion of the study of the French language and culture have been most notable, went to Boris A. Del Monte.

The William F. Notz Gold Medal, founded by Delta Phi Epsilon Fraternity for the highest average in the morning course in economic principles, went to Charles R. Mullan.

The De Ligne Gold Medal, founded by Prince Albert de Ligne, former Belgian Ambassador to the United States, awarded in the course in political and diplomatic history of Europe for the best essay on Belgian history, went to James R. Ennis.

The Daniel F. Casey Gold Medal, for the highest average in the classes in exporting, was won by Robert Rossow, jr.

The Dr. J. deS. Coutinho Gold Medal, to the student who has accomplished most in the Portuguese language, was given to John A. Moran.

A French prize to the graduate who attains the best general record in the study of French went to Charles J. Cole.

2,500 Odd Fellows Place Wreaths at Unknown's Tomb

Twenty-five hundred members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and auxiliaries participated in a parade yesterday afternoon from the Fort Myer gate to the Amphitheater at Arlington Cemetery to conduct annual services and place wreaths on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The annual pilgrimage was attended by Odd Fellows from seven States and the District. States represented were Oklahoma, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and Florida.

At the Amphitheater the Rev. Clarence H. Corkran, grand chaplain, pronounced the invocation, and Arlington S. Custer, grand master, introduced the speaker.

Names of deceased members of the organization were read by Lewis L. Beazley, grand patriarch, and a flower was placed as each name was called by Alexander L. Hjortsberg, department commander.

Names of deceased members of the auxiliary were read by Mrs. Grace W. Thomasson, president of the Rebekah Assembly, and flowers were placed by Naomi Cooper, president of the department association, ladies' auxiliary.

Music was furnished by the Police Boys Club. Staff Sergt. R. A. Windsor of the Marine Corps played taps.

Mt. Pleasant Cleric Accepts Hartford Call

Dr. Clinchy Resigns as Congregationalist Minister Here.

Dr. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, announced from the pulpit yesterday he had accepted a call to the First Church of Christ, Hartford, Conn., where he will assume charge the first Sunday in October.

REV. CLINCHY.

Coming here in 1931 from the Broadway Tabernacle, in New York City, Dr. Clinchy has become one of the most active clergymen and civic workers in the city. Known as a "liberal," he has been keenly interested in social as well as religious progress, and has served for two years as president of the Washington Council of Social Agencies. He is also a member of the executive committee of the Congregational General Council and the Council of Social Action. He recently published a book, "The Reasonable Faith."

Mrs. Clinchy, who is also an active church and social worker, is now filling her second term on the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association, and has been soprano soloist in the Mount Pleasant Church quartet for the past five years. Dr. and Mrs. Clinchy have two children, Jean and Evans.

Founded in 1632, the First Church in Hartford is the oldest church in Connecticut, and has had but 17 pastors in its history. Its first pastor, Thomas Hooker, was founder of Hartford. From 1900 to 1928, the minister was Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, former moderator of the Congregational churches and now dean of Hartford Theological Seminary. His successor was Dr. John M. Phillips, who resigned last February to accept a call to Omaha.

The church, known as the Center Congregational, and which has a membership of 1,143, is located in the downtown center of the city. It was erected in 1807.

Father Lyons Assails Theory Of Communism

He Offers 'Real Catholic Christianity' in Place of Radicalism.

Nearly 1,000 persons yesterday heard the Rev. Francis P. Lyons, founder and national spiritual director of the Catholic Convert League, condemn communism as "a theory reaching toward the destruction of all the dignity of man and the security of society."

Father Lyons, addressing a rally sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, declared:

"I dare to offer to you as the answer to communism, the theory and practice of real Catholic Christianity.

"If all Christians were filled with the wisdom of the Father, the courage of the Son, and the love of the Holy Ghost, there would be no difficulty in finding the way out."

"Insofar as we love God, we lament the evils that continually sprout and grow in the world.

"It is our tragedy that the world is never finished. How much there is to do, I do not need to tell you. We find God's revelation denied; we find the teaching authority of the Church contradicted and flouted."

He charged that because men had come to things by utility, and to deny the existence of absolute truth and goodness, "there has risen up in our day the theory that man is the source of all truth and goodness."

"The Church knows that Communism won't work, and that Christianity will work," he said.

Work of Church of Sheltering Arms Rivals That of Adult Groups; Youngsters Choose Visiting Ministers, Direct Choir, Feed Poor.

Administered entirely by children and as diverse in its functions as any adult church, the Childrens' Church of Sheltering Arms is a striking example of what youngsters can do for themselves.

Two of the most active workers on the board are Ellen and Betty Brown, daughters of a retired member of the Metropolitan Police force. Betty, 13, selects and directs the choir. Her sister, 14, teaches a Sunday School class.

One of the principal activities at Sheltering Arms is the daily feeding of about 75 underprivileged children of the area. A bread-and-milk committee, under the chairmanship of James Ackerman, is in charge.

Individual contributions maintain the mission, but donations of hymn books and other equipment have been made by local organizations.

Sheltering Arms is under the supervision of Enid A. Cutting Rand.

Goodyear Service To Be Wednesday

Funeral services for Robert Lord Goodyear, 17, who was drowned in the Potomac River near Key Bridge Saturday, will be held at the W. W. Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest, at 8:30 a. m., Wednesday, with requiem high mass at Holy Trinity Catholic Church at 9 a. m. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A student at Western High School, young Goodyear was the only son of Robert J. Goodyear, 1675 Thirty-second street northwest, an examiner in the insurance claims division of the Veterans Administration.

Chapel Dedicated By Congregation

The new chapel on the cemetery of B'nai Israel Congregation was dedicated yesterday, marking opening of recently-improved cemetery grounds. Members of the congregation and friends attended the exercises in a body from the front of the synagogue at Fourteenth and Emerson streets northwest.

After the dedication program, refreshments were served. The committee in charge of construction of the chapel and its dedication was composed of Paul Himmelfarb, president of the congregation, chairman, and Harry Mulitz.

Youth Not Always Enviable, Pastor Says of 3 Decades

Youth is not always to be envied, said Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen Sunday morning at Luther Place Church, where the annual "youth week" program was inaugurated under auspicies of the Young People's Fellowship Society.

"The pessimism abroad in the youth of the land is easily understandable," he said, declaring that "the last three decades have laid heavy hands on youth, with the hopes of careers, homes and the richness of life snatched away from them."

Installation of the new fellowship officers was a feature of yesterday's program, which also included a meeting in the afternoon at which Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Martin Meyer and Dr. Rasmussen were speakers. Following "tea" in the evening, John Johnson, chairman of the "youth week" committee, addressed the Senior Luther League on "Looking Forward."

Trial of Landis In Wife's Death To Begin Today

52 Government Witnesses May Be Called Against Rookie Fireman.

Trial of James L. Landis, 23, former rookie fireman accused of beating to death Mrs. Blanche Landis, 22, his estranged wife, the morning of March 24, will begin today in District Court. He is charged with first degree murder.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins will preside at the trial, expected to last a week with the prosecution prepared to summon 52 witnesses. Landis' lawyers have not disclosed their plans although it has been reported the defense would be based on a plea of insanity.

The former fireman will be represented by Jean M. Boardman, E. Russel Kelly and William Kelly. The Kelly brothers were successful last month in winning acquittal for former Policeman Robert F. Langdon, accused of the seven-year-old murder of Beulah Limerick.

Assistant United States Attorney Cecil R. Heflin and John C. Conliff, jr., special assistant to United States Attorney David A. Pine, will represent the Government.

Bishop Talks To Graduates Of St. Gabriel's

77 in Class Told to Live So as to Be 'a Credit to the Church.'

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, urged 77 children graduating from St. Gabriel's School last night to live so as to be "a credit to the church and an honor to your school and your country."

The educational system cannot be said to be successfully, Bishop McNamara declared, so long as the crime rate increases and people continue to forget their God. When a nation tries to get along without spiritual influence, he warned, it loses its greatness.

The children graduating from the school, which is conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, were:

95 Half-Pints Seized In Auto Whisky Cargo

Ninety-five half-pints of whisky were seized by police early yesterday when they arrested a man in the 200 block of G street northwest.

They said the man who gave his name as Noah W. Tabor, 40, 1611 G street southeast, had the whisky in the back of an automobile.

Distinguished Plays Are Added To Guild's Subscription Season

'Golden Boy' and 1938 Prize Plays Coming to National in Fall; Keith Premiere Wednesday; July at Earle; News Notes of the Theater.

IT may be a trifle far in advance to bring the matter up, but added to the already attractive series of six subscription plays to be presented in the National Capital during the 1938-'39 season of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington is Clifford Odet's "Golden Boy." This New York hit will be seen at the National Theater, with the original Broadway cast, the week of November 28, following three weeks after the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne production of Tchekov's "The Sea Gull," scheduled for the week of November 7.

BELL.

Produced by the Group Theater of New York, "Golden Boy" is notable for many fine qualities, none more conspicuous than the tremendous successes scored by Frances Farmer and Luther Adler in the principal roles. It might be pointed out, in passing, that the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society brought a quartet of young actresses to the fore last season—Julie Haydon, in "Shadow and Substance;" Uta Hagen, who will be seen with the Lunts in "The Sea Gull;" Martha Scott, in the Thornton Wilder Pulitzer Prize play, "Our Town," and Miss Farmer in "Golden Boy." Both "Our Town" and the Drama Critics Circle's prize-award play, John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," will be available to subscribers next season, as well as two new plays to be produced by the Theater Guild.

Over and above all this, there is every present indication that the interesting production by the Mercury Theater, in collaboration with the Theater Guild, of the Shakespearean cycle, "The Five Kings," will be offered as an "extra added attraction." Because it is already being rumored that this pretentious creation of Orson Welles' may require two evenings for a complete single presentation, it cannot be included in the regular list of six subscription plays. It will be recalled that it was Mr. Welles who was responsible for the modernized version of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," seen at the National last season.

• • • •

If such recent memories need refreshing, it might be pointed out that both Frances Farmer and Clifford Odets have been much in the public prints of late. Both, it seems, were being sued—Miss Farmer by a gentleman seeking a $75,000 agent's fee for having allegedly made her career before the public possible by a rigid reducing system, or something of the sort; Mr. Odets for divorce by Luise Rainer, twice winner of the coveted award by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best screen acting of the year ("The Great Ziegfeld" and "The Good Earth.") This column, not that it matters, never has been in sympathy with that "Great Ziegfeld" award, because in the picture Miss Rainer was no more like Anna Held, whom she was supposed to personify, than I am. And if you think "I can't make my eyes behave," you're crazy. That is, unless you count my not being able to keep them open half the time!

• • • •

Having heralded it far and wide that the world premiere of "The Rage of Paris," starring Danielle Darrieux, would be shared with Boston on Thursday night of this week, Mr. Meakin now comes to bat with the telegraphic information that fortunate circumstances have made it possible for him to move the opening of this highly vaunted attraction up a day and expose it to world scrutiny for the first time in his Fifteenth street opera house on Wednesday night at 8.

Mlle. Darrieux won her American contract by the superlative excellence of her work opposite Charles Boyer in "Mayerling," recently seen in a repeat engagement at the Belasco. Her first American-made picture—that would be "The Rage of Paris"—is reputed to be wholly commensurate in quality with the extraordinary ability of its youthful star. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Mischa Auer lead her supporting cast.

From the fact that a long list of invited guests of distinction have been bidden to the Wednesday night premiere, one suspects that this will be another of those searchlights-and-flash-bulb affairs.

• • • •

In case you have been wondering what became of last week's "visiting firemen," Ethelreda Leopold, beauty-figure-talent-popularity prize-winning member of the "Gold Diggers Girls," left Washington by plane for Cleveland at 8 o'clock Friday morning, and John R. Kissinger, one of the original heroes of Maj. Walter Reed's fight against yellow fever in Cuba, entrained for his home in Huntington, Ind., Saturday morning at 10. It was fun while it lasted.

Viewing its June bookings with complete complacence, the management of the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater now is beginning to cast an expectant eye ahead to July.

The Freres Warner, it appears, will release four features in which they repose the utmost confidence during the Fourth-of-July month. These are "When Were You Born?" featuring Margaret Lindsay and Anna May Wong; "Cowboy from Brooklyn," a musical, starring Dick Powell, with Priscilla Lane and Pat O'Brien; "Secrets of an Actress," with Kay Francis and George Brent, and "Men Are Such Fools," with the youthful team of Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane.

I resent those titles of "When Were You Born?" and "Men Are Such Fools." The first is none of your business and the second so true that it only adds to the affrontery!

But that isn't all. Paramount also has four features coming along next month. They include Harold Lloyd in "Professor, Beware;" Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Dorothy Lamour—with a dress instead of that sarong?—in "Tropic Holiday;" Fred MacMurray and Harriet Hilliard in "Cocoanut Grove," and Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable and Jack Whiting in "Give Me A Sailor."

It is from among these that the Earle feature bookings will be selected. Each bill will be augmented by one of Harry Anger's de luxe stage productions—the de luxer the better.

• • • •

Jack Powell, blackface, drummer-boy king of the syncopationists, has come back from the other side and now is flitting around nearby areas of the United States, wielding his drumsticks on everything from his "skins" to the kitchen stove. Last week's first postage card came from Mine Host Tom O'Donnell's sea-foodery, right here in town; the second from the Warm Springs Inn, at Warm Springs, Va. Jack must be hungry after his European jaunt.

• • • •

Speaking of Luise Rainer, as we seem to remember having been somewhere back there along the line of march, her next starring vehicle, "The Toy Wife," will be the screen attraction at the Palace Theater following the current run of "Three Comrades." Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young will share honors as her leading men.

A story of life in New Orleans and on the Louisiana plantations in the 1850s, "The Toy Wife" presents Miss Rainer in the title role of "Frou-Frou" Brigard. It is just barely possible that there might be a little further dulling of the edge of "Gone With the Wind" here—provided, of course, that any such picture ever is made. Barbara O'Neil and H. B. Warner are prominent in the supporting cast.

• • • • •

This may be an era of depression, but not in screen previews. They come in inverse order this week. Today at 1:30 by the clock, the Loew interests are unspooling Walter Wanger's much discussed production of "Blockade," with the Spanish War as background, and tomorrow, at the same hour, the Warner executives will unwind "Crime School," with the "Dead End" kids and Humphrey Bogart, for the drama desks. You haven't heard the last of these, yet. Sorry.

• • • •

And so, just to prove that the stuff he pours out of a pitcher of clear water and a lot of empty cocktail shakers is the real McCoy, old Dr. Hoffman, on this week's stage bill at the Earle, sends a keg of it around. Looks real, smells real and—but let's not go into that!

STARS OF COMING THEATER BILLS.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, June 12.

SPORTS DEPT.: All department heads at Warner Bros. received an interoffice communication captioned "Subject: Petty Gambling" . . . It resulted from a series of circumstances involving employes who had borrowed from finance companies—or who indorsed notes issued to these companies—all because of bets on the horses . . . "We suggest," the interoffice memo concluded, "that department heads discourage this activity" . . On the very next day the trade papers reported that H. M. Warner was negotiating for the purchase of War Admiral—and had offered $250,000.

• • • •

MOVIES: Irving Berlin was asked whether his new movie, "Alexander's Ragtime Band," is autobiographic . . . He explained why it isn't: "I feel that no person's autobiography should be screened while that person is alive" . . . Berlin, therefore, has arranged to reserve unto his immediate family all screen rights to his autobiography.

• • • •

DANCE DEPT.: At the Rainbow Room the other evening, Jack Cole and his dancing troupe presented some of the native dances of India . . . As soon as these numbers were concluded, Al Donohue's dance orchestra offered its swing tunes . . . Lady Saklatrala of Bombay, attired in native costume, joined her husband, Sir Nowroji, on the dance floor—and did the rhumba, waltz and foxtrot.

• • • •

FINANCE DEPT.: Emil J. Jensen is the fortunate owner of the movie, "Son of the Sheik," which is having an amazing revival run at theaters throughout the country . . . He bought the negative from the Art Cinema Co., which owned it, at a price of $125.

• • • •

ADVERTISING DEPT.: During the recent trial of Donald Carroll, the Jackson Heights youth who was acquitted of shooting his sweetheart, the defense counsel insisted that the couple had been influenced by the movie, "Mayerling" . . . That picture now is playing at the Colony Theater in Jackson Heights. The theater marquee makes no reference to the many critics' prizes awarded to this movie. It refers to the film merely as "The Most Talked of Picture in Jackson Heights."

• • • •

RADIO DEPT.: Paul de Kruif, author of the best sellers, "Microbe Hunters," "Hunger Fighters," "Men Against Death," "Why Keep Them Alive?" and "Fight for Life," yesterday assigned to the Radio Division of the Federal Theater the radio rights to all of his books—without compensation. The broadcasts will begin in July, over the Columbia networks . . . This is the first time an author presented the radio rights of all his works to one organization.

• • • •

BUSINESS DEPT.: Sammy Walsh, the night-club master of ceremonies, just returned from an unusual engagement in a Cleveland cafe . . . Walsh had agreed with the cafe proprietor that his salary would depend upon the number of customers who would attend his opening. And on opening night the place was filled to capacity . . . Sammy had spent all that afternoon visiting auto agencies, Frigidaire salesmen, furniture offices, jewelry shops, etc., evincing a desire to purchase. He told them all that he'd be willing to listen to a sales talk that night—at the address of the cafe.

• • • •

PERSONALS: Report of Luise Rainer's divorce action against Clifford Odets was a surprise to Broadway . . . Only two weeks ago, on the occasion of Miss Rainer's last night in New York, she and her husband joined us in touring the night clubs . . . At La Conga she borrowed a pencil, made some sketches on the wall and suddenly asked: "How do you make an arrow—downside up, or upside down?" . . . She penciled an arrow through the sketch she had made upon the wall—a sketch which still is untouched. It was a heart—around the letters, "L. R.—C. O."

Little

The "revivals" comprising the major features of this week's bill at the Little Theater, really are revivals with a vengeance.

"Shanghai Express," the principal attraction, was released by Paramount more than five years ago and the supplementary offering, "Every Inch a Man," long before that. Together they give a comprehensive notion of what the old silent films and the earlier "talkies" used to be like.

"Shanghai Express" has Marlene Dietrich and Clive Brook as its stellar players—the former, as the once-betrothed of the English army doctor who now finds himself aboard the same train with her bound from Peiping to Shanghai; Mr. Brook as the doctor. The train is stopped by bandits and developments of the most melodramatic, sensational and romantic nature ensue. Shanghai Lily saves the life of the handsome officer she still loves. Heu Fei stabs the brigand chieftain, Henry Chang, to a deserved death, and the usual reconciliations mark the denouement of the picture, which was directed in his most skillful manner by Josef Von Sternberg, of whom little is heard these days.

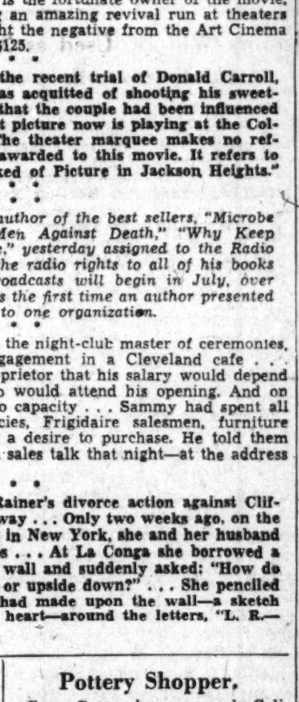
In addition to the co-stars, the cast includes such able and valiant players as Anna May Wong, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallette, Lawrence Grant, the late Louise Closser Hale, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Emile Chautard.

"Every Inch a Man" is one of "Two-Gun" Bill Hart's heroic masterpieces, in which Rhea Mitchell appears as the object of his romantic solicitation and any number of what are usually referred to as "dastardly villains" fall victim to his six-shooters. It is all very enlivening—and amusing in its crudity. It is, nevertheless, important to note that Frank Borzage, director of "Three Comrades," now at the Palace, appears in a supporting role as an actor in this antiquated opus.

Pottery Shopper.

Greer Garson has gone early Californian in a big way. The actress spent an entire afternoon and evening at Olvera street, Los Angeles' Mexican shopping district, buying pottery, glassware and other decorations for her home.

In Biggest Role



TYRONE POWER,

as he will appear in the role of Fersen, opposite Norma Shearer, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming production of "Marie Antoinette," a "big one."

In HOLLYWOOD With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., June 12.—Amidst the shock and shell of the Shriner's convention and one of the worst traffic jams ever witnessed, the queen came home. You bet we claim her—we can't, but there's no harm trying. It's Helen Hayes. Who else could it be?

HEDDA HOPPER

Helen doesn't have to act the Queen—she is one, in thought, life, character and ability. Not only in Hollywood, but all America wants to touch the hem of her garment. "Victoria Regina" has run three years. It looks as though Helen could reign as long as Victoria.

Helen is never too busy to remember old friends. When she came to do a picture at Metro, Lillian Wilson had the privilege of making her up. From San Francisco, two wekes ago, a note came asking Lillian and her husband, Paul, to be Helen's guests opening night, and please not to be too critical of her makeup. And to come backstage afterward.

Helen was miserable over her first picture, "The Sins of Madelon Claudet." Wanted to buy it up so it couldn't be released. She always jokes about not being a glamour girl. But she'll go a long way before she finds anything as glamorous as the "Victoria Regina" role.

Surprised to run into Margaret Sullavan. "Thought you were back East showing off Baby Brooks to your mother," I said. From Maggie, with an impish grin: "You don't believe what you read in the papers, do you? By the way, I have a bone to pick with you. Here I've spent years building myself up as a temperamental actress, and you come along and tear it down by calling me a regular guy."

Joan Crawford looked lovelier than I've seen her in many moons. Her hair brushed off her neck and piled high in little curls, she looked like her mother when they first came here.

It's nearly always entertaining to know what the public thinks of you. Going down the theater aisle the other night, I heard a woman say: "My, wouldn't you think Hedda Hopper would pick on somebody her own age! I all but turned around to say: "Allow me to introduce you to my son."

I'm so tired of hearing people admonish our youth to look out for Flag Day and respect it. How about us grownups doing that? Nothing wrong with youth, except the bad example we've set them and the burdens we've saddled upon them. Why, we'll leave debts which our great-grandchildren won't be able to shoulder.

I received a poster from Suffern, N. Y., by the women's rebellion committee. Here's a bit of it: "Wake up! Stop new pump priming before your country is bankrupt. Government gives with one hand, takes with the other. They've spent $49,000,000,000 in the last five years. Depressions hit women hardest as conservers of the home. This handbill is put out by housewives as a protest against the way politicians are running our country, whether Republicans or Democrats. This is not political, it's patriotic. We demand that expenses be reduced, which will give us a chance to save ourselves and this country for our children."

But now that women have gained their rights, they've lost their wrongs. And there's nothing they can do about it. So where do we go from here?

Lily-White Pugs Take Beatings In Movie Ring

Max Baer Is Pete Smith Star in 'Fisticuffs,' an M-G-M Short.

By Frederick C. Othman.
Correspondence of the United Press.

Hollywood, June 12.—"All right, Heliotrope!" yelped the undersized director today. "Try to do it right this time."

Max Baer squinted at the spotlights and tried to do it right.

"Not there, you lavender prize-fighter," screamed the cameraman, "get over on the other side of the ring."

The amiable Maxie, receiving insults at the rate of one every 30 seconds, went to the other side. He was making movies again, but nobody called him Max. They called him "verbena" and "dummy" and "violet"—and that wasn't all.

They shaved all the hair off his chest!

The shame of it. They even made him wear white kid boxing gloves. They smeared his face with vaseline, dressed him in satin trunks as white as a bridal gown, and pounded the daylights out of him. Maxie took it all without complaint.

Pete Smith Short.

The former heavyweight champion of the world, one-time playboy prize-fighter and more recently loving husband and happy father, was appearing in "Fisticuffs." This was an M-G-M Pete Smith specialty, explaining the manly art of self-defense.

Maxie and an assortment of pugs did the demonstrating. The battlers included Bob Evans, Hank Hankinson, Micky McAvoy and several spares.

Benny Rubin, the former vaudevillian who came up to Maxie's chest, wrote the script. Dave Miller, no taller and weighing about 125 pounds, directed the proceedings.

"Okay, darlings, get in there," Miller said. Max and Evans climbed into the three-sided ring. "Now fight."

They fought.

"Cut," screamed Miller. He leaped into the arena, yanked Max to one side and said:

"Now you purple pugilist, I'm going to show you how to do it. Try and remember."

Thereupon Miller lambasted Baer with some of the fanciest rights and lefts we ever saw. Miller was a brave man. Baer could have turned him into a grease spot with one swat of his mighty paws, but he didn't. He stood there, and took it.

Baer Scores K. O.

"That was swell," gloated Miller. "Get up, McAvoy."

He didn't. He was sound asleep, with no pillow under his head.

Maxie looked—and blinked.

"Gee," he exclaimed. "I guess I must have knocked him out."

"Yeah, you orchid," snapped Miller. "Be a little careful."

Maxie said he would. The only trouble was, he couldn't. In the ordinary movie prizefight, no solid blow ever is landed and all the blood is chocolate syrup. Most of Maxie's epic is being recorded in slow motion, which shows up such fakery. Every blow is rehearsed carefully and landed solidly.

In two days of shooting to date, there have been six knockouts. One of the actors has lost seven of his teeth. Maxie has absorbed more punishment, even, than Joe Louis handed him.

The fighters wear white gloves so that they can be seen easily on the screen. They also have white shoes, so their footwork will be plain. The vaseline on their faces is to make them look sweaty. It isn't necessary.

Will Win For M-G-M.

As for their hairless chests, that's because of the censors. When the battlers lined up for tests, they looked like so many apes. The make-up department fixed that with lather and a razor, while they squirmed and protested to no avail.

The Will H. Hays office, which frowns on mattress chests, will have no reason to frown on Maxie and his smooth-shaven pals.

Between rounds, Maxie announced that his baby, which nearly died of pneumonia last month, was on the road to recovery.

"And I'm still in love with my wife," he said, "and it looks like the time for a comeback for Baer is here. I'm signed to fight the winner of the Schmeling-Louis fight and, say, if I win—"

"What do you mean, if you win, you pink orangutang?" interrupted Miller. "You've got to win. If you lose, this picture will be a flop."

Metropolitan

Betraying no diminution in public interest, the Warner Brothers' magnificent Technicolor production of "The Adventures of Robin Hood," on Friday entered the second week of its repeat engagement at the Metropolitan and its fourth in downtown Washington.

In continuous action, skillful casting, expert direction and superb color treatment, "Robin Hood" stands in a class by itself among contemporary screen plays designed solely as entertainment and undertaking no lesson in history, morals or uplift. It is wholesome, spirited and executed on a gigantic scale. Many of its scenes are the most beautiful that ever have been brought to the silver sheet.

With Errol Flynn in the title role and Olivia de Havilland as Lady Marian, the cast also includes such admirable players as Basil Rathbone, Claude Rains, Alan Hale, Eugene Pallette, Patric Knowles, Montagu Love, Melville Cooper, Herbert Mundin, Robert Warwick, Una O'Connor and a long list of others.

The usual short subjects and a new composite newsreel augment a feature that every conscientious picturegoer owes it to himself to see.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

By this time it is fairly evident that in the inner offices at Griffith Stadium there is something less than wild delight at the manner in which the Joe Kuhel-Zeke Bonura trade is panning out for the Nats.

POVICH

If Bonura's batting average—a mere .229—is not eloquent enough, there is the official announcement of yesterday to attest the deep disappointment of Clark Griffith. We mean the announcement that young Jimmy Wasdell had been recalled from Indianapolis by the Washington Club. The implication is plain enough. At long last, Mr. Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris have weakened on Bonura. That fact, while not startling perhaps at this stage of the season, is nevertheless amazing now that it has been established.

Because it was only three months ago that the Washington club owner, with a happy flush on his face and pride in his voice, announced that he had obtained Bonura from the White Sox in exchange for Joe Kuhel.

"The best deal I've made in my 50 years of baseball!" said Griffith at the time.

"Griffith ought to be arrested for getting away with that kind of a deal," was the consensus around the league. "It was a pure steal. He didn't give up much and he got one of the best hitters in the league."

Zeke Must Hit.

That Griffith didn't give up much is also pretty well established. Joe Kuhel has been a pitiful disappointment with the White Sox in his failure to hit even as much as Bonura's .229. But Griffith and Harris are reasonably certain that Kuhel has been fielding well, even sensationally. He always did. If Bonura doesn't hit, his value to the Nats is nil. In fact, he's a distinct handicap.

Irrespective of any edge the White Sox may have gained in the deal, Harris and Griffith are much concerned by Bonura's failure to hit. When Bonura isn't hitting, he's no asset to the club. Thus, the recall of Wasdell. Certainly Wasdell is capable of failing to hit just as woefully as Bonura, but out there with a first baseman's mitt on his hand he's something of a help.

No longer can Griffith and Harris take consolation in the fact that Bonura, with his 39 runs driven in, leads the Washington club in that respect. Because there is no mystery about big Zeke's leadership. He has been batting in a spot where the runs are waiting to be driven in. He is batting behind men who get on base frequently. By this time he should have driven in not a mere 39 runs, but a million. Well, least 60. He would have, too, if he had been doing justice to his lifetime batting average of more than .340.

Dykes' Warning.

The Nats' bosses have reason now to recall Jimmy Dykes' warning on the White Sox's first Eastern trip of the season. Dykes, told about Bonura's batting slump, nodded his head in complete understanding.

"You're telling me about those slumps of Bonura's," said Dykes. "Listen, I had him for four years. There are times when that guy can't get a hit with an armful of shovels. When he's in one of those slumps he couldn't hit the ball if he were swinging a settee up there. But he'll snap out of it!"

That Bonura will snap out of it, is the straw at which the Nats' bosses are grasping. But they can't afford to wait, evidently. As yet the Nats are not too far out of it and Harris visions Wasdell's presence against right-handed pitching as one possible solution of his troubles.

Griffith, perhaps, could forgive Bonura for his fielding deficiencies if he were hitting the ball in the manner in which he is accustomed. We say PERHAPS Griffith could forgive, because that is not positive either. There is something of the baseball artist in the soul of the Nats' owner and he is irked no end by shoddy play on the ball field.

Rookie Called Turn.

Washington has always had super-fine defensive play at first base ever since Griffith came to the club in 1912. In his early years there was the master Chick Gandil, and for 16 years after Gandil left, Joe Judge gave the Nats superb protection. With the departure of Judge, the Nats boasted in Joe Kuhel the absolute best defensive first sacker in the league. Griffith is not used to the Bonura tpye of first base play.

* * * *

When Wasdell joins the Nats tomorrow, Manager Harris will be buoyed by the knowledge that the rookie will be no liability in the field. There was a thit during the Tigers' big 10-run inning yesterday that skipped past Bonura which Wasdell figured to field. It made a difference in several runs.

Wasdell has made good already in one respect. Shunted to the bench when the Bonura deal was made, and then released to Indianapolis two weeks after the season started Wasdell was unconvinced that he was a failure. "I'll be back!" he said.

Well, he's back.

Columbus Is Victor.

Columbus, Ga., June 12 (AP).—Bill Prout's home run inside the park, with one on in the eighth inning, provided the margin of victory for the Columbus Red Birds today and they defeated the Greenville Spinners, 3 to 2.

Joe Vosmik put all he had into a slide home in the third inning of the second game yesterday and went safe when Catcher Rensa, of the White Sox, dropped the ball. It was all for naught, however, as Chicago won in the ninth, 4-3, after the Red Sox had taken the first game, 3-2.

Boston Splits With White Sox; Wins First, 3-2; Loses Second

Long Home Stand Ends for Bosox; Capacity Crowd of 34,500 Fans Sees Two Games.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 12.—The Boston Red Sox closed a long home stand against the West today by splitting even with the Chicago White Sox in a double-header before a capacity crowd of 34,500.

After coming from behind to take the opening, 3 to 2, when Ben Chapman doubled in the deciding counter in the eighth, the Red Sox dropped the second game, 4 to 3, on Gerald Walker's home run into the distant centerfield bleachers with none on in the ninth.

It was Walker's second homer of the day—the first having given the White Sox a short-lived lead in the opening game—but was only one of three glittering performances that enabled the visitors to carry off the third game of the series.

Relief Pitcher John Rigney and Outfielder Mike Kreevich were the other Chicago heroes. Rigney came in in the fourth to relieve Bill Dietrich, who was yanked for a pinch hitter, and proceeded to set down in order the first 15 Red Sockers to face him. Only one man, Doc Cramer, was able to get a hit, and he went out stealing.

In the ninth, however, with one out, the Sox threatened on singles by Higgins and McNair. Manager Joe Cronin, who had benched himself because of a touch of influenza, went in to bat for Bobby Doerr, but flied out to Steinbacher, and Kreevich ended the game by making a spectacular catch of Peacock's fly in short left center field. It would have been good for the tying run had it dropped safely.

Down Through the Heavyweights

James Jeffries Enters Heavyweight Scene

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Fitzsimmons retained the most prized crown in pugilism until the hot, sultry night of June 9, 1899, when his path crossed that of James J. Jeffries at Coney Island, breeding ground of the world-famous canine—the hot dog.

Jeffries, a burly boilermaker, had come out of his native Ohio the year before, a strapping youth blessed with the physique of a blacksmith, but woefully unskilled. A year before he squared off with Fitz for the title, he actually tripped over his own feet and wrung rounds of guffaws from the fans with similar clumsy maneuvers. He had exactly 11 bouts under his expansive girth when given a shot at the title.

But the night Jeffries lifted the crown from the Cornishman's bald pate, he was not a crude, awkward lad, but a crafty, polished ring general. Critics predicted a long reign for him after that bout, and only a lack of suitable opposition prevented the fulfillment of the prophecy. He grew impatient awaiting a worth-while foe and retired.

Jeffries generally is credited with introducing the crouch stance in boxing, a style Fitzsimmons failed to fathom with his stand-up-and-punch pose. Outweighed and outfoxed, Fitz was horribly battered before succumbing to the knockout punch in the eleventh round. Twice the bell saved him from being knocked out prior to that, in the second and tenth rounds. His spindly, senseless frame finally toppled to the canvas with a soggy thud as Jeffries whipped over the crushing punch.

Not satisfied with the outcome, Fitzsimmons sought a return match and was knocked flatter than a fallen arch in the eighth round of the second bout, fought in 1902. But the tall, wiry scrapper refused to quit and, dropping back into the lightheavy ranks, succeeded in wresting the crown from George Gardner in a 15-round setto at San Francisco.

Two Homers Give Yanks 7-6 Victory

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 12.—The Yankees shaved the Cleveland Indians' American League lead to a game-and-a-half today by twice coming from behind with homers to beat out the Trbie, 7 to 6, before a crowd of 43,702 at Yankee Stadium.

Rookie Joe (Flash) Gordon's homer off Bobby Feller with a mate on base in the eighth inning put the game on ice for the Yanks as they made it two straight over the league leaders. It was the fourth straight setback for the Tribe.

Big Rufus the Red Ruffing went the route for the Yankees and posted his eighth victory against two setbacks for the season. His bat as well as his right arm played a big part in the victory, for he hit a homer with two aboard in the second inning to bring the Yanks from behind the first time.

Ruffing's homer paced the major assault off Johnny Allen, the Cleveland starter in the Tribe leading by one run and the Yanks threatening in the sixth. Allen was lifted in favor of Feller, who was charged with his second defeat of the year.

The Indians started the scoring for the afternoon with a four-run splurge in the second on Jeff Heath's triple, singles by Earl Averill and Hal Trosky, a double by Ken Keltner, Frankie Pytlak's fly and Lyn Lary's single.

The Yanks came right back to tie it up on a single by Lou Gehrig, a walk, Jake Powell's doube and Ruffing's four bagger.

Ruffing was charged with a balk in the third and a Cleveland run resulted. They picked up another in the sixth, but the Yanks also scored in their half, setting the stage for Gordon's pay-off wallop in the eighth.

Pirates Beat Phillies, 11-5

Mace Brown Wins 8th Game of Season.

Pittsburgh, June 12 (AP).—Given rousing support by the Pirate batsmen, big Mace Brown won his eighth relief victory of the season today as Pittsburgh pummeled Philadelphia, 11 to 5.

Brown, who lost the only game he started this season, took charge in the midst of a five-run flurry by the phils in the third. This stopped, he pitched shutout ball although the visitors outhit Pittsburgh 14 to 13.

The Pirates then staged their own rally for six runs in the fifth and Johnny Rizzo hit a homer with the bases loaded in the sixth.

The game was delayed more than two hours by rain and a scheduled second contest was called in the second inning because of Sunday curfew law. Neither team had scored.

Dizzy Dean Left Behind in Care Of Arm Specialist

A conference of club officials and Manager Charley Grimm, during today's doubleheader with the Brooklyn Dodgers, resulted in the decision to have him undergo further treatment for his $185,000 right arm.

"He may join us while we're East," Grimm explained afterward, "but he's staying here now. We're putting him in charge of a specialist."

It was evident that the six-week rest cure prescribed for Diz's ailing arm had failed.

Play Tie Game.

Capitol Heights and the Bernizer Athletic Club nine played a 5-5 ball game yesterday on the field at Capitol Heights. Bernizer scored three tallies in the third frame, but the Capital Heights club went ahead with a five run tally in the eighth. the ninth, and with the first of the Bernizer shoved across two more in tenth coming up, the game was halted by rain.

When Pete Fox, rightfielder for the Detroit Tigers, slid into second base yesterday in the game with the Nats, Shortstop Cecil Travis and Second Baseman Buddy Myer seemed to be wondering where the ball had gone. Fox, of course, was safe by a mile when he hit the double into center.

Wasdell Recalled by Griffith; He'll Join Team at Cleveland

Jimmy Will Be Used as Alternate With Bonura, Harris Says; Believes Rookie Can Hit.

Jimmy Wasdell, diminutive but long-hitting first baseman, yesterday was recalled by the Nats from Indianapolis and finds a job in the Washington infield awaiting him.

Wasdell will join the Washington club on Tuesday at Cleveland and, if a right-handed pitcher faces the Nats on that day, the rookie will be installed as the Nats' first baseman.

"We plan to alternate him with Zeke Bonura against different types of pitching," said Manager Bucky Harris.

Wasdell, who was sent to the Indianapolis club on condition that the Nats could recall him on 24-hour notice, has been playing in the outfield for the American Association leaders, but with the Nats he will return to his first love—first base.

Harris visions Wasdell as a distinct asset to his infield defensive and believes the rookie can maintain a respectable batting average if used only against southpaws.

"And a good share of his hits are certain to be those long, extra-base wallops that help any club," added Harris.

Wasdell has been batting only a modest .250 for the Indianapolis team, but Harris pointed out that much of his hitting was done in night games. He reaffirmed his faith in Wasdell's ability to hit big league pitching.

Around first base, Wasdell is the unquestioned superior of Zeke Bonura whose batting slump has been a terrific handicap to the Nats. Wasdell represents a $20,000 investment to the Nats who paid that price for him in the winter of 1936-37 to the Minneapolis club.

Quail Out of Season Will Cost Dickey $125

Little Rock, Ark., June 12 (AP).—Bill Dickey, Little Rock resident and star catcher for the New York Yankees of the American League, must pay a $125 fine for possessing quail out of season.

Peace Justice Lindsey Roberts fixed the penalty yesterday when attorneys for Dickey entered guilty pleas to two charges of violating Arkansas game laws by having quail served on a public dining car last April 9, following the Little Rock-New York exhibition game.

Braddock Picks Louis to Kayo Max Schmeling

Speculator, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Jim Braddock, former heavyweight champion, watched Max Schmeling workout today and then predicted Joe Louis would knock him out when the two meet for Louis' heavyweight crown, June 22 at Yankee Stadium.

A crowd of nearly 7,000 watched Schmeling travel eight rounds.

"Schmeling looks in good condition," Braddock said, "but he should not be able to withstand Louis' attack beyond the seventh round."

Joe Gould, who managed Braddock during the latter's ring days, said Louis would win in about eight rounds.

He will rest tomorrow and box Tuesday and Wednesday.

Johnson Hits 2 Homers to Help Beat Browns.

Philadelphia, June 12 (AP).—Bob Johnson collected his fourteenth and fifteenth home runs of the season for the Athletics today as the A's won both games of a double-header from the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 3 and 1 to 0.

Johnson's homers, both in the opening game, drove in seven of the A's runs. His first circuit clout was the first ball pitched to him in the first inning with the bases loaded.

The second game was cut to five innings by rain. Bud Thomas held the Browns to one hit. In the sixth, St. Louis scored two runs, which were not counted because the game was halted before the Athletics finished their half of the inning.

Sgt. Jasper Defeats Costello Post to Lead American Legion Loop

9-Hit Attack Puts Losers in 3d Spot

Martin and Sokol Lead Offensive; Fort Stevens Defeats Agriculture Post; Big Sandlot Program Washed Out by Afternoon Rain.

Sergeant Jasper nosed out the Costello Post nine, 4-2, yesterday in an exciting battle on the North Ellipse field to take second place in the American Legion Junior Baseball League.

A nine-hit attack led by Martin and Sokol, who whacked out a brace of hits apiece, coupled with the steady hurling of Bell, was enough to clinch victory. Ciomei, Newby and Kendall, of Tech, slammed out two hits apiece to pace the losers' offensive.

Fort Stevens stopped the Agriculture Post crew, 8-5, in a tussle played on the West Ellipse. Howard, Fort Stevens' third baseman, collected three hits to lead the winners at bat. Vitale got two safe blows to aid Howard. Steiner walloped out three hits in three trips to the plate for a perfect day at bat, but his efforts were for a losing cause.

The 3 o'clock American Legion games were washed out as were all League A and League B National City League tilts. The Nash-Police Legion tussle, for the first half championship, will be played Wednesday at 5 p. m. on the Ellipse.

In the junior branch of the National City League, the No. 10 Police Club eked out an 8 to 7 win over the Coffey Screen nine for its second straight victory. The win sent the No. 10 lads into a first place tie with the Bethesda Juniors, which defeated the No. 5 Police Boys Club, 6-0.

Billy Crocker's triple with two bases occupied in the sixth frame started a 5-run rally that practically captured the No. 10-Coffey Screen affair. Dezerne was the winning pitcher. While Morell was twirling three-hit ball, Bauerfield and Hughes were smacking the ball hard to give the Bethesda aggregation a comfortable lead.

With Dick Lynham, Post all-high third baseman, smacking out a home run, the No. 4 Boys Club trounced the No. 11 Police Boys Club, 11-2, in another junior tilt. Sullivan, Smith and Murphy got a couple of hits apiece for the winners.

The last of the junior games saw Deoudes Celery wallop Nick Bombard, 16-4, in a five-inning tussle. Jack Arbuthnot, of Roosevelt, had a perfect day with the willow, getting four hits in four attempts. Tony Lagos, also of the Rough Riders, smacked out a homer.

The three-hit mound work of Charles Kendall gave the Blue Ribbon team a 12-0 win over the No. 4 Boys Club nine and sent the victors into first place in the National City Midget League. Pearlman was the slugging star, getting a double and a single in three tries.

Time Out! By Chet Smith

At The Post . . . .

With Bill Benaings.

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al,

I see Eddie Smith is up to his old tricks of winning last races. The Washington rider took down the final at Agawam last Saturday on a 4-1 shot. Dead heats are not as rare now as they used to be before most tracks used cameras. Last Friday there were four even-Stephen finishes at as many different ovals for the first money. Battleship, winner of the Grand National, will do his stuff at Fairy Hill, Md., on September 10, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, owner of the gallant son of Man o' War. That name, "Coucci," that appeared in the jockey position on results coming from Hollywood Park belongs to the same little Italian-American fellow we all knew and liked so well when he was the East's outstanding rider. Coucci is attempting a comeback and rode the first horse he mounted on the West Coast to victory. He made 115 pounds for the race. Coucci was a little gentleman from the tip of his boots to the button on his cap when we knew him and friends say he hasn't changed a single bit. Let's all pull for him to regain his lost laurels. He has a young cousin, Tommy Coucci, who is about to make his saddle debut at Agawam. Stagehand appears ready to resume his racing career. The colt, which missed the Derby and Preakness because of a cough, has been training well and may make his reappearance at Aqueduct. Art Rooney, who earned quite a reputation as a "plunger" and who is said to have hit the bookies for $200,000 in a single day at New York, has obtained colors and will establish a racing stable. The new colors feature a big gold "R" on the back of the blouse. Eight chances to be wrong at Charles Town on Wash Day.

BILL.

First race—Miss Green, a recent winner at this course, shapes up best in this field of juveniles. Needs only the right handling. Cold Charity comes from a good barn and has shown speed on occasions. Killy isn't much but could be third.

Second race—Justa Canter seems to have a little the best of it here. Likes the short route and promises to do a lot of stepping. Take Off has had some poor racing luck and is due respect. Tweety to take care of the others.

Third race—Topsie H. showed me one race here that would make her win this and I'm goisg to string along for a price. Prince Khayyam has plenty of speed and is dangerous. Proven tired in the last few jumps in that most recent start but could take these into camp.

Fourth race—Blue Prelude breaks off the rail and has plenty of foot. Seems capable of handling the top weight and I expect a set of brackets. Cats Cradle should go well in this company. Happy Chase, despite the short route, is a threat.

Fifth race—Newgro showed his fine speed here in a somewhat similar sprint, with the proper break at the start this one might step along throughout the running. Crossing Over is at tops as that last suggests. Morning Flight went in the air at the break the other day.

Sixth race—Royal Veil gets my call in this rather open race. Berg will do the booting. White Sweets and Tuleyries Lad to take care of the place and show awards.

Seventh race—Mischiefmaker's last was too bad to be true. I understand Root goes into the saddle and I look for a winning effort. Tuleyries Star gets light weight and will be dangerous. Canimar for the show end.

Ninth race (substitute)—If this event is used. I'll take Rock Spray, Walmiss and Mudsill.

Best bet—Mischiefmaker.

Cumberland Sports

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—Manager Jim Condon's Cumberland Police Department softball team drove out 19 hits, including homers by Jim Hicks and Frank Hotchkiss, to defeat the North End Sluggers, 21-8.

Officer Hicks had a perfect day at bat with five hits. Jimmy Davis snared four blows and Curtis Kime three. Rice homered and Scalette hit safely three times for the sluggers. The City Police will play the Maryland State Police outfit tomorrow, West Side Wednesday, and Rapplier Club Friday.

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—Two collegiate baseball stars, Mel "Newt" Henry, of Virginia Poly, and John Paugh, of Shepherd (W. Va.) College, have been signed by Bi-State League clubs.

Henry, former Penn Avenue High athlete, of Cumberland, will play with the Cumberland Colts, probably at second base, while Paugh, a catcher, has been taken on by Moorefield to replace the injured "Tex" Beiver.

Orioles Win; Tauby Stars

Baltimore, June 12 (AP).—An 11-hit attack leveled at Al Sherer, Ken Johnson and Oscar Judd enabled the Orioles to take a 10-0 decision from Rochester in the opening game of the series. Rain stopped the first game at the end of the seventh inning and caused a postponement of the nightcap.

Fred Tauby continued his sensational hitting by blasting two homers and a single, giving him six home runs in two days, 12 hits in 21 times at bat and 12 runs batted in.

John Wittig held the Red Wings to seven hits and was forced out of action when a line drive from Morehouse's bat hit him on the thigh in the seventh.

Kenwood, Army and Navy and East Potomac Win Team Matches

Ernie Covert Wins Spring Boat Series

Piles Up 56 Points in 6 Races With His Escapade.

Escapade, Ernie Covert's comet racer, broke the three-year winning streak of D. Verner Smythe's Sassy Too yesterday, rolling up a point score of 56, in the six races, to the former champion's 50, to win the Spring Series of the Potomac River Sailing Association.

In an able performance yesterday, Smythe took Sassy home a winner in the fresh northwest breeze to clinch second place over Charles Dodge's Nandua and Clyde Cruit's So Big. Nandua was tied for second honors with Sassy last week, but landed in fifth position yesterday, which dropped her to fourth place in final standings for the series.

Due to advance reports of the squall which broke just after the finish, the race committee sent the fleet away on a course in the Washington Channel. So Big, piloted by Clyde Cruit, engaged Sassy Too in one of the best dogfights of the year, missing top honors by five seconds. Escapade, with her top-heavy previous lead, was content with third. William White's Frolic was fourth.

Final standings give Escapade 56:18; Sassy Too, 50:33; So Big, 48:18; Commander E. L. Cochran's Scuttlebutt, 37, and Frolic, 33:18.

Under the consistently good handling of her Sea Scout crew, Bobcat comes out on top of the Class A heap with a generous margin, holding 20 points to her nearest rival's 15. Harry Humfelt's Spray, new 18-foot Mower designed sloop, is second. Wildcat of the Sea Scouts and George Danker's Sinkquick are tied for third with 10 points each. Under the rules rival skipper's may flip a coin or sail again. Due to the threatening weather, Bobcat was the only Class A boat to finish yesterday.

Vanity Tops Sailing Race

Six Boats Capsized in Galesville Squall.

A driving rain squall swept over the West River Sailing Club's course at Galesville, Md., yesterday, capsizing six boats and sending the remainder of a 19 boat opening day fleet scudding for shelter. Only five of the larger boats reached the finish line, and Commodore Osborne Owings' Vanity survived to win the 20-foot event and score the fastest time of the day.

The squall broke when the 20-footers and Albatrosses were beating home on the last leg of the 5-mile windward-leeward course off Wagners Point. John C. Harding's new 20-foot Ranger, driving along in second, was the first to go over. Carrol Smith's Wings capsized and Ralph Young's Myray was forced out when her headstays tore loose from the mast.

A eight-boat fleet of the Albatross one-design class was hardest hit, being on a more exposed reach of the course near the mouth o fthe West River. A single vicious gust capsized Delmas Stutler's Gull, Hugh Irey's Gull and Dick Cox's Falcon. Nearby powerboats rushed to the rescue and no one was injured. Almost on the finish line, Emile Hartge's Hawk went over.

Herbert Neilly's 20-foot restricted class boat Spray came pounding over the line 1 minute 5 seconds after the winning Vanity, to take second place. Bud Kline's Shady Lady took third, reaching the finish a scant minute after Spray. Defender, sailed by Capt. Oscar Hartge, was fourth.

H. Clendon Bush's Cricket II was forced to withdraw in the heavy going.

Raven, skippered by youthful Arthur Fifer, was the only Albatross in a fleet of eight able to reach the line. In a spectacular bit of handling, Fifer sent Raven across in first place, but there was no committee boat there to take her time.

Serena, a 16-foot Comet, skippered by John Zimmer, raced one lap to win the 16-foot class event, beating Bobby Hartge's Dot to the line by a 19-second margin. Star-Struck was third.

Dust Storm Stops Annapolis Game

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—With seven innings played and two out in the Fire-Fighters' half of the eighth, with the score standing 7 for Annapolis and 5 for the Baltimore Firemen, today's game was called when a heavy dust storm swept over the field, followed by a downpour.

Annapolis took command of the game with four runs in the second session. Wynne singled after two were out, Shepherd and Molesworth were passed and Bobby Stevens lifted the ball over the rightfield fence for the circuit. Parr left the mound the next inning, and Wakefield held the Annapolitans scoreless the rest of the contest.

Diffenbaugh's 68 Aids in 23-4 Win

Washington Loses to Service Club; Laurel to East Potomac; Tommy Bones, Bobby Brownell Lead Manor Ladder Qualifications.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Golf teams from Quantico and Richmond were trounced by Kenwood and East Potomac, respectively, yesterday, in matches here, while, in a third encounter, the Army and Navy line-up routed the visiting Washington Golf and Country Club linksmen by a 29-to-16 margin. Kenwood swamped the Quantico officers, 23 to 4, while the public-links players won 28½ to 10½, over the Laurel Club of the Virginia capital city.

The team matches topped the day's activities that otherwise found Tommy Bones adding a 73 to a previous 71 to top the team ladder at Manor with a 72 average, J. L. Quigley winning with a net 68 in a handicap event at Beaver Dam, and Mrs. C. A. Stewart and Frank Goodwin, jr., taking low gross in a mixed Scotch foursome at Congressional.

KENWOOD.

George Diffenbaugh fired a two-under-par 68 at Eddie Koehler, Quantico professional, and he and Buddy Tew won all three points with a best ball 65 in the feature encounter of the Kenwood-Quantico Officers Club match. The winners scored a clean sweep in four of the nine foursomes.

C. D. Hanson finished five up on perfect figures to win a match play against par tourney with T. M. Good second, four up, and J. S. Gorrell and J. T. Foulis next, each three up.

ARMY AND NAVY.

H. D. Willey and F. E. Early, of Washington bested E. K. Patton and J. E. Stevens in the No. 1 match of the Army and Navy vs. Washington event at the Service Club, but the team trailed in the other five foursomes to lose a 29 to 16 decision.

Commander R. W. Christie and D. F. Stace, of the winers scored the only clean sweep of the day, over L. Franklin, jr., and D. Freshman.

Two blind bogey events at the Service Club found 74 the lucky number in the first, with P. K. Smith the winner. Col. Andrus was second, 80, while R. B. Hathaway and R. D. Brown were tied with 82's.

I. C. Bogart was the victor in the second with 82, with E. P. Doyle second with 74 and C. M. Yates the third winner with 75.

CONGRESSIONAL.

A gross 82 by Mrs. C. A. Stewart and F. M. Goodwin, jr., topped the mixed Scotch foursome event at Congressional, while the next prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnston, 97-24½—72½, and Mrs. Arnold McNitt and H. A. Knox, 93-29—73.

Four players won their way to the semi-final round for the President's Cup, while second round play in the other four flights was completed. The first flight round of four includes F. E. Berquist, Earl McAleer, W. W. Bayfield and Dr. R. A. Keilty.

Wiffy Cox and Earl McAleer had four birdies between them in a match with Al Jamison and Buddy Sharkey, of Indian Spring, that was rained out after the sixth hole.

First Flight.

F. E. Berquist defeated O. G. Elbe, 2 and 1; Earl McAleer defeated P. R. Evans, 2 up; W. W. Bayfield defeated W. B. Rumble, 5 and 4; Dr. R. A. Keilty defeated H. E. Phillips, 2 and 1.

Second Flight.

C. B. Conlyn defeated J. H. Powell, 2 and 1; H. L. Anderson won by default; F. Roberson defeated C. H. Giroux, 4 and 3; George T. Richardson defeated H. I. Quinn, 4 and 2.

Third Flight.

P. J. Winkler defeated J. B. Woodside, 5 and 4; W. D. Osgood defeated F. L. Yates, 1 up; R. Tichnor won by default; R. Aammel defeated George Hill, 2 and 1.

Fourth Flight.

L. L. Biffle and H. E. Randel all even, to playoff during week; J. V. Cunningham defeated R. J. Moore, 2 and 1; B. C. Brown won by default; E. McFarland won by default.

BEAVER DAM.

J. L. Quigley, with a gross 76, eight handicap for a net 76 won the first flight of the handicap tourney at Beaver Dam, with Forest Thompson, Joe Ballestri and C. S. Range all tied for second, with net 76's.

S. Wineriter won the second flight, with 85-14—71, while W. C. Schroeder, 85-12—73 and A. C. Hodges with a duplicate score tied for second. Ralph Amick won the third flight, with 87-20—67, with Jack Moster, 8-19—68, a stroke behind and R. C. Mitchell winning third prize with 86-16—70.

F. N. Reisner's net 66, from 91—25, won the fourth flight with A. W. Keirn second, 96-24—72 and J. T. Luce tying for second.

Mrs. C. E. McGowan, chairman of the women's golf committee, won the Flag Tourney, with Mrs. W. C. Hackman second and Mrs. R. C. Mitchell, Mrs. M. A. Dent and Mrs. Eddie Bean finishing in order.

Cliff Spencer revenged a beating by Mel Shorey by scoring a 71, one under par, to win 3 and 2 over the East Potomac pro. The latter nearly holed a brassie shot for a two on the par five fourth. He easily made an eagle three.

INDIAN SPRING.

A. J. Frentz won the A. Schmidt & Son Duffer's Trophy at the Four Corners course, with 87-22, 65, A. F. Wilson, 86-18, 69, and W. W. Hubbard, 92-23, 69, were next.

CAPITAL.

Favorites won in the two-man team play at Capital, while Frank White continued his low scoring pace by cracking out an unofficial course mark of 65, from nines of 34 and 31.

White started with two birdies and took a bogey five on the third for his only over-par hole. He played the remaining six holes of the first nine in pars and then snared four more birdies on the return trip, including three in a row from 11 through 13.

Ella Mayhew and Dr. Peter Brew witnessed the round.

Frank White and M. McDonald defeated George Butts and H. Hines, 4 and 2; Roy K. Aten and Andy Miller defeated L. K. Hile and A. H. Bowis, 3 and 2; George Borsari and T. T. Herbert defeated O. D. Kephart and J. E. Hurd, 2 up; Ken Spencer and A. J. Arnold defeated D. W. Geesa and W. C. Stone, 2 and 1; Jim Hayes and H. C. Cohen defeated Ralph Bennie and Pat Loughran, 4 and 2.

ARGYLE.

E. C. Cassedy and Ralph F. West tied for the Lawrence V. Lampson trophy at Argyle, with net 66s, and will play off next week for the cup.

Cassedy scored 77-11, 66, while West deducted a 21 handicap from a net 87 for the tying score.

WASHINGTON.

G. W. Blazek, with a net total of 134 for 36 holes, leads at the halfway mark in the play for the Tom Moore Cup at Washington. Ralph Fowler and A. G. Dezendorf are deadlocked in second place at 139, while J. S. Baldwin has a 217 net total with only one more round to be played.

ROCK CREEK.

R. E. Johnson scored his second hole-in-one on the third hole of A course on the Uptown public links course, using a mashie for the perfect shot on the 165-yard number.

John on'ce (that ried with an airplane making a forced landing on the ninth fairway for the topic of conversation for the day) was witnessed by J. E. Mastella, H. L. Carter and S. Bears.

EAST POTOMAC.

Although two of the top pairs of the East Potomac aggregation lost a 1-point decision, the team won easily over the invading Laurel public linksmen of Richmond, 28½ to 10½.

A week-end blind bogey event was won by H. L. Cuttler, 106-2—104, with low net going to Dutch Rittenhouse, 64-20—44, and high net to Miss Leta Krewson, 136-22—114. Rittenhouse, recent winner of the spring tournament, had one of the lowest rounds of the season in his 64, lowest rounds of the season in his 64, a 36-hole total of 72 on the practice green.

East Potomac, 28½; Laurel (Richmond), 10½.

KENWOOD.

The annual tournament of the Federal Golf Association, a 36-hole medal event with gross, net and team trophies, will start today at Kenwood with a field of 180 golfers.

The J. Edgar Hoover Trophy, to the low gross scorer, will be the main object of the better golfers, while the Andrew Mellon Trophy goes to the winning four-man team. Volney Burnett, medalist last year, will not compete due to a recent arm injury, leaving a wide-open battle for the newly donated Hoover Trophy.

Edinburg Beats Woodstock Nine

Woodstock, Va., June 12.—Edinburg won a close 6 to 5 victory over Woodstock here this afternoon in the Shenandoah County League. The visitors scored four of their six runs off Raymond Sheetz before he was relieved by Singletary after hurling one and one-third innings. Woodstock was trailing a 4 to 1 count through the better part of the game, but rallied in the seventh and collected four runs. Edinburg tied the score and won the tilt in the last inning when Woodward reached second on Nicodemus' error. He was driven in on a single by Wightman and an error by Crist. The game was played on a muddy field and the only other league game played today found Strasburg on the end of a 18 to 1 score over Roosevelt CCC.

Spartansburg Wins.

Augusta, Ga., June 12 (AP).—Augusta played loosely today and Spartansburg won the final game of a four-game South Atlantic League series, 5 to 4.

Don Budge and Gene Mako Are Beaten in French Hard-Court Doubles

By the Associated Press.

Auteuil, France, June 12.—Bernard Destremeau and Yvon Petra of France scored a stunning upset today by defeating Don Budge and Gene Mako for the French hard-court doubles championship, 3-6, 6-3, 9-7, 6-1.

The young Frenchmen, playing together this year for the first time as a doubles team, showed an alert, smashing game to defeat what is generally conceded to be the world's No. 1 doubles pair, Budge and Mako, the all-conquering Americans, walked on the court heavy favorites but they played raggedly.

A crowd of 12,000, expecting an easy victory for the Americans, went wild when a victory appeared certain for the young French Davis Cup pair and the latter part of the match was played before a roaring, excited throng.

Mako played a particularly ragged game and the Frenchmen concentrated on him. Budge, however, dropped his own service four times at love.

The first set was marked by the French team's stage fright. When Destremeau dropped service in the eighth game it gave the Americans a 5-3 lead which Budge made 6-3 on his service.

The lanky, powerful Petra won his service to open the second set. Budge dropped his at love, the turning point of the match, for from then on the Americans never recovered definite command. Time and again the Frenchmen passed them with smashing drives, lobbed them into schoolboy errors.

They went steadily in the third set before the French team's persistent atta Budge lost his service and the start and Petra and Destremeau took a 3-0 lead when Mako double-faulted to drop his service.

Here the invaders braced and played their only really good tennis of the day to run off five straight games for a 5-3 lead. Budge, however, lost his service and the French pair rallied in the next game to even the set at 5-5.

The Frenchmen fought out each game bitterly until they broke Mako's service to draw to draw ahead and win the set.

In the last set Budge and Mako let the Frenchmen win almost as they pleased and showed little disposition even to move around the court to stave off the rout.

The women's doubles title was won by Simone Mathieu, of France, and Billy Yorke, of Great Britain, over Mme. A. Halef, of France, and Nelly Adamson, of Belgium, 6—5, 6—3.

Dodgers Get Even Break With Cubs

Bruins Take First Game, 9-3, and Lose Second, 6-0.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 12.—The second place Chicago Cubs accomplished nothing today in their efforts to overtake the league-leading New York Giants when they broke even with the Brooklyn Dodgers in a double bill, taking the first game, 9 to 3, and dropping the nightcap, 6 to 0.

With a crowd of 27,428 fans looking on, the Cubs took the curtain-raiser by knocking Van Lingle Mungo out of the box during a nine-run uprising in the eighth inning. After being held to four safeties for seven innings, the Cubs pounded out eight hits in the eighth frame against Mungo, Vito Tamulis, Luke Hamlin and Max Butcher. Rookie Jim Asbell doubled to drive home two runs during the heavy Chicago offensive.

The Dodgers scored two unearned runs off Big Bill Lee during the seven innings he pitched. Lee was taken out for a pinch hitter and Clay Bryant, who finished, was credited with his third win of the year. The Dodgers had only seven hits.

It was a different story in the second game. Fred Fitzsimmons, veteran right-hander, held the Cubs to four hits to hand the Cubs their second shutout of the season. The other also was by Brooklyn. The Dodgers, meanwhile, collected ten hits off Larry French in five innings and two off Charley Root and Jack Russell.

PotomacBoat Club Winner

Sweeps Series With Old Dominion Oarsmen.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., June 12.—Potomac Boat Club oarsmen, of Washington, scored a clean sweep in races with their traditional rivals from the Old Dominion Boat Club here this afternoon, winning easily in the first two races of a scheduled three-event program. A third race, between eight-oared shells of the two clubs, was called off because of inclement weather.

In the opening event, the visiting crew swept to an easy victory in the four-oared gig, when the Old Dominion entry was swamped approximately 200 yards from the finish line, and was unable to finish. The winning time was not available, for the officials' boat was forced to turn back to rescue members of the swamped craft, and the official timer failed to catch the finish signal from the judges ashore.

The Old Dominion boat started poorly, and trailed the Potomac craft from the outset, but as they neared the finish line, the wash from a passing river steamer swept over the Alexandria boat, and she sank. The officials' speedboat and several cruisers from the local club rescued the oarsmen and towed their boat to shore.

After a severe squall that held up the program for more than an hour, the second race was staged, and the Potomac boat took an early lead to finish six lengths in front. The winners' time was 3 minutes and 31 seconds—just one second slower than the course record established last year by the Old Dominion's.

Members of the Potomac crew included Dave Knox, Paul Lanigan, "Junior" Burch and Mike Polohoff, while those who manned the winning gig included Mike Polohoff, No. 1; Fred Dominique, No. 2; Paul Lanigan, No. 3; Dave Knox, No. 4, and Frank Zier, coxswain.

The beaten Old Dominion squd included Julian Whitestone, Magnus Bales, Jack Monroe and Robert Whitton, while the swamped gig included the same quartet, with Jack Franklin as coxswain.

The two clubs will meet in a return regatta over the Potomac course on Sunday, June 26.

Man of the Month

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties' "Man of the Month.")

By Arch McDonald.

(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

Buddy Myer was able to distinguish himself yesterday, despite the Nats' defeat at the hands of the Tigers by football figures, and to him goes the bulk of the points in the latest Man of the Month Contest award.

To Myer, four points, because he made four consecutive hits, including a double, and drove in four of the Nat's runs.

To George Case, two points, because his hard line drive, which White muffed, figured in three runs, because he singled in his last two trips to the plate and because his seventh-inning hit made possible the run that put the Nats in a 12-11 lead.

To Buddy Lewis, two points, because he started the seventh-inning rally with a single, one of his two hits.

To Johnny Stone, one point, because he drove in the seventh-inning run that might have won the ball game for Washington.

To Rick Ferrell, one point, because his only hit of the game was a home run to deep center that accounted for two runs in the big third inning.

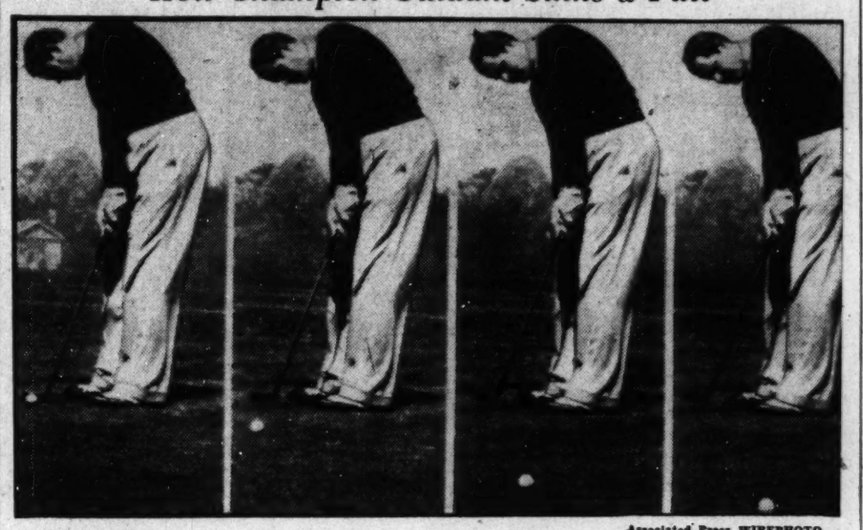
How Champion Guldahl Sinks a Putt



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Ralph Guldahl Is 6-1 Favorite To Win Western Open Golf Title

Picard, Snead, Revolta, Cooper and Little Also in Field; Ralph Plans a Busy Season.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, June 12.—Burly Ralph Guldahl, whose scorching stretch drive carried him to his second straight National Open Golf title at Denver Saturday, was listed today as a 6-to-1 favorite to retain his Western Open Championship here this week.

Other top flighters ranked by local betting commissioners as the strongest challengers include Henry Picard, whose putting jitters dropped him out of the U. S. Open money, Sam Snead, Johnny Revolta, "Hard Luck" Harry Cooper and Lawson Little.

With only a two-day rest, Guldahl, who started his climb to greatest honors in golf from St. Louis, will be attempting to break down a barrier that has defied the stars for a generation—winning the Western three times in succession. Ralph Knows every inch of Westwood's tricky course and this is regarded as a mighty factor in the Texas-born champion's favor.

Professionals around the District predict the winner will have to shoot under 280. Par for the 72 holes will be 284, and the course is no set-up for anybody.

Many of the players began arriving today. But the big influx of top-notchers will move in from Denver in time for just one practice round tomorrow.

Guldahl has been assigned the starting time of 1:30 p. m. Tuesday. Paired with him will be Cooper and Don Schumacher, Trans-Mississippi amateur champion from Dallas, Tex.

Tuesday and Wednesday the field of close to 150 will play 18-hole rounds, and Thursday the low 60 will play the final 36 holes.

Guldahl figures to "cash in" more substantially as a two-time open champion—the first since Bob Jones and the fourth in United States Golf history—than he did after leading the pack last year at Oakland Hills with the all-time record score of 281. He has hopes of landing a motion picture contract, doing some radio work, and collecting from exhibitions as well as his share of prize money on this year's $200,000 tournament trail.

Guldahl intends to compete in the $5,000 match play tournament at Cincinnati, June 23-26, the National Professional Golfers' Association championship at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 10-16, and the $10-16, and the $10,000 Cleveland Open August 11-14.

All told, if he gets the breaks in ratio to his shot-making achievements, he may realize as much as $25,000 from the fact he's now the most dominating figure in American golf since Gene Sarazen scored his "double" in the British and United States Open tournaments of 1932.

Divots Cherry Hills, alternately praised as a "great test" and condemned as "too tricky," supplied more shotmaking fireworks than any open championship in years . . . Besides showing a nice profit, with estimated gate receipts of $30,000 . . . Snead, the pre-tourney favorite who wound up tied for thirty-eighth, said "I just couldn't concentrate . . . Repeatedly, when I started to hit a shot, I was wondering what would happen next" . . . Guldahl used all 14 clubs in his bag, but used his driver on only two holes, Nos. 10 and 11 . . . Otherwise he teed off with an iron, spoon or brassie . . . The shot that gave the champion the biggest kick on the final day, was the chip he sank to save his par 4 on the eighteenth hole of the morning round.

4,000 See Louis Batter Spar Mates

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 12 (AP). One of the largest crowds in the history of Dr. Bier's training camp jammed the outdoor arena today while Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis went through six fast rounds of boxing with three sparmates.

Every available inch of space was occupied. Even the trees, fences and roofs of adjoining cottages were cluttered with fans. It was estimated that over 4,000 saw the champion work out for his title defense against Max Schmeling at Yankee Stadium June 22.

The fans got their money's worth, for Louis turned in one of his most impressive workouts. He battered Basher Dean, Leonard Dixon and Murray Kanner, who sparred two rounds each, almost at will.

Giants, Cards Break Even In Twin Bill

New York Wins Opener, 8-5, Loses Second, 4 to 1.

St. Louis, June 12 (AP).—The largest crowd of the season here, 29,141, saw the Cardinals and New York Giants break even today in the first Sunday double-header here between the two teams in seven years. The Giants won the first easily, 8 to 5, and the Cards routed Carl Hubbell to take the nightcap, 4 to 1.

Restricting the New Yorkers to a half dozen hits and striking out six batters, Bob Weiland outpitched Hubbell in his third complete game in 11 starts, to record his fourth victory. Hubbell, trying for his 200th major league win, bowed to a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Bankers Show Golfing Skill At Hot Springs

Eccles, Pope and Addison Are Convention Prize Winners.

By Gerald G. Gross
A Staff Correspondent.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; C. H. Pope, new president of the Munsey Trust Co., and Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the Security Savings and Commercial Bank and the Washington Board of Trade, are not mere bankers. They are golfers de luxe, as demonstrated by the prizes they won at the twentieth annual convention of the District Bankers Association which closed here today.

For shooting the lowest gross score in the McLachen tournament, Eccles was awarded a dry shaver fashioned of desterilized gold. Pope won the Karl Corby Cup, named in honor of the memory of the late association president, and Addison took the McLachlen Cup.

Prize Winners.

Ladies putting contest—Mrs. Thomas N. Beavers, first; Mrs. Howard P. Foley, second.

Eleanor Patterson golf cup—Mrs. Jack Shulman, winner; Mrs. Chester Morrill, low gross; Mrs. Earle M. Amick, second low net; Mrs. Morris Cafritz, third low net.

Karl Corby Golf Cup—C. H. Pope.

McLachlen Golf Cup—Francis G. Addison, jr., winner; Marriner S. Eccles, low gross; Hilleary G. Hoskinson, second low net; Thomas J. Groom, third low net.

Wright Golf Cup—J. W. Clampitt, jr.

Hibbs Golf Cup—Roger J. Whiteford, winner; Thomas N. Beavers, low gross; H. P. Foley, second low net; H. G. Smithy, third low net.

Hatton Golf Cup—Dr. Robert U. Cooper.

Pop Fleming Golf Cup—W. H. Pardoe, winner; Holly Stover, low gross; Ord Preston, second low net; T. Howard Duckett, third low net.

Although Whiteford's fame heretofore has rested chiefly on his quartet basso and his legal proclivities, he demonstrated anew that as a golfer he is just about tops in the Bankers Association. In the 18-hole Hibbs tournament he shot a 72, 1 over par, for a record-breaking net score of 64.

Whiteford, a representative of of the Hamilton National Bank, was master of ceremonies at the family dinner last night. He also, naturally, sang bass in the inevitable quartet, whose parody number on governmental influence in banking was the hit of the evening.

Bankers Pay Tribute To Memory of Spaid

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—The most impressive rite at the twentieth annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, which closed here today, was that in memory of William Winfield Spaid. A past president of the association and one of the most beloved figures in Washington finance, Mr. Spaid died last May 21. The first order of business was the adoption of a resolution of regret and sympathy. It was drafted by Roger J. Whiteford, Robert V. Fleming, Charles H. Doing, Francis G. Addison, jr., and C. H. Pope. More than 225 delegates and guests stood with bowed heads in a minute of silent tribute to their departed colleague.

Ideal Banker Is Portrayed In Prize Essay

Arthur E. Meade, of Lincoln National Bank, Is the Author.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—With "The Banker's Place in the Community" as his subject, Arthur E. Mead's first-prize-winning entry in the essay contest sponsored by the American Institute of Banking, Washington Chapter, offered a comprehensive appraisal of the banker's obligations.

Mr. Meade is connected with the Lincoln National Bank. Winner of second prize was Albert L. Gloyd, Union Trust Co. Honorable mention went to Robert G. Gries, American Security & Trust Co., and Robert A. Morgan, McLachlen Banking Corporation.

"The banking official should be a conservative loan maker," Meade said. "He must be prepared to advise his clients on business matters, take an active part in civic affairs, take an interest in government and have a thorough knowledge of all laws and regulations relating to banking operations of every character.

"He must see that all employes are informed of these laws and that they are applying them in their daily routine," the speaker declared. "It is not enough to assume that the law is being obeyed; the banker must know it is."

"There are many methods the banker may use to insure the safety of his deposits, but the best of these is to use a policy of conservatism when making a loan," Mr. Meade wrote in his essay. "The banker should bear in mind that losses are incurred when a loan is made and not when the borrower finds that he is unable to pay.

Lincoln National Life Convention

The 1938 Western regional convention of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. will be held at the Hotel Del Coronado, Coronado Beach, Calif., June 22, 23 and 24. More than 100 salesmen and officials of the company will attend.

Home Office officials at the meeting will be A. J. McAndless, executive vice president; A. L. Dorn, vice president and director of agencies; R. F. Baird, vice president and general counsel; C. F. Cross, second vice president and manager of agencies; Dr. W. E. Thornton, second vice president and medical director; J. J. Klingenberger, agency secretary; W. T. Plogsterth, director of field service; F. W. Gale, superintendent of agencies, and W. C. Brudi, agency auditor.

Equitable Life Meeting.

Agency members of the Equitable Life Assurance Society will hold their weekly meeting this morning at the Hay-Adams House.

Tax Committee Presents Report

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—In submitting its annual report to the twentieth meeting of the D. C. Bankers Association, the taxation committee recommended that in the future it be made a sub-committee of the law and legislation committee.

L. P. McLachlen, chairman, presented the report, which stated that while the committee's work "has not been spectacular, its objectives have been definite to the end that many objectionable features in the revenue act of the District of Columbia and the regulations affecting customers of the banks were eliminated."

Serving with Mr. McLachlen were Stanley D. Willis, vice chairman; Francis G. Addison, jr., Victor B. Deyber, C. F. Jacobsen, George O. Vass, Corcoran Thom, M. D. Rosenberg and H. H. McKee.

33 Closed Banks Liquidated in May

Marshall R. Diggs, Acting Comptroller of the Currency, yesterday announced completion of liquidation of 33 bank receiverships in May. The figures raised to 1,103 the number of receiverships closed or restored to solvency since the banking holiday of March, 1933.

Total disbursements, including offsets to depositors and other creditors of the 1,103 cases, exclusive of 42 restored to solvency, aggregated $423,172,738, or an average return of 80.28 per cent of total liabilities, while unsecured creditors received dividends amounting to an average of 66.77 per cent of their claims. Dividends distributed to creditors of active receiverships in May amounted to $5,021,789.

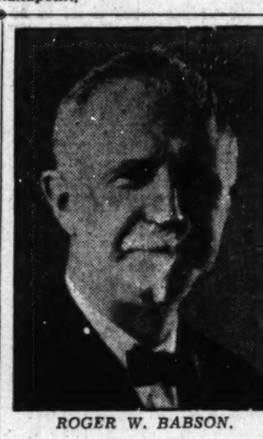
Labor Leaders' Bad Strategy Blow to Recovery, Babson Says

Current Tactics of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. Are Deplorable, He Says, and a Main Cause of the Recession.

By Roger W. Babson.

Chicago, Ill., June 12.—The present tactics of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. are deplorable. While there are many causes for the protracted business recession, one of the biggest is the labor controversy. The actions of labor leaders are hurting business badly and are doing permanent injury to their own members. I do not understand what these leaders are expecting to accomplish by their current "strategy." It is unpatriotic to foment labor troubles and issue strike orders at this time. Moreover, with millions of Americans out of jobs and eager to work, it seems ridiculous from labor's own standpoint.

Of course, labor troubles are much less in number today than they were a year ago. At that time conditions were almost hopeless. Until recently the sharp drop in business had made labor leaders watch their step more closely. Lately, however, the "big shots," to revive interest in waning memberships, have stirred up more rows. The automobile, the tire, and the shipping industries have been plagued by new outbreaks. At the same time, building, railroad, and steel workers have held wages at their unreasonable peaks of a year ago. As a result, unions are hurting business and are ruining themselves in the eyes of public opinion.



ROGER W. BABSON.

Unions Rackets.

In attacking union leadership, I am not decrying the principle of collective bargaining. All practical business leaders and professional people are solidly behind this principle. Employes must be protected in their right to discuss their work, their hours and their pay with their employers without fear of losing their jobs. The truth is, however, that the labor union movement in America is turning into a racket. The unions' methods, their rules and regulations, their dues—in fact their whole setup—is not too far a cry from simple gangsterism.

For that reason many employes who would like to belong to a union hesitate to do so. They do not want to become identified with either of the major unions and their tainted reputations. They are afraid to join these unions and be bossed and shoved around by a bunch of plug-uglies. They do not want to give up their rights to personal liberty and to free speech. They do, however, want the protection that collective action should give them. In many concerns throughout the country there have been very bitter campaigns on the following question: Should the employes form their own independent union or should they join up with one of the two existing unions?

Unique California Union.

The most interesting case of this kind is that of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company. After the Wagner act had been upheld by the Supreme Court last year, the employes of this company decided that they should form their own independent union before they fell into the clutches of outside unions. Both the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. made strong drives to force the new group into one or the other of the existing unions. A secret ballot election was ordered by the National Relations Board. The employes voted by a wide majority to keep their own union independent.

I cite this case because the independent union was organized on a far different basis than most company and trade unions. For instance, this union was incorporated under the laws of California as a nonprofit organization. It is, therefore, legally responsible to carry out any agreement it makes. Incorporation of unions has long been regarded by employers as essential to industrial peace. It, however, has been fought tooth and nail by union leaders because the financial affairs of corporations must be kept open to public inspection. Hence, acceptance of such responsibility by the P. G. and E. workers is a milestone in labor organization.

There are no labor bosses connected with this California union. It is run entirely by the employe members and an attorney of their own choosing. There are no salaried officers, no initiation fees, no special assessments, no political contributions. Dues are 50 cents a month compared with $1 to as high as $5 a month in the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. The union is organized by the employes, for the benefit of themselves, the public and their company. "Front office" interference is not tolerated. It is an ideal arrangement. This union is an example to any other group of employes who want the benefits of organization but who are afraid to become snarled up with the vicious policies of the C. I. O. or A. F. of L.

Other companies have recently followed the example of the Pacific Gas & Electric employes. My fervent hope is that this independent type of union will become more common in the United States. When it does, the day of the labor racketeer and gangster will be over and a big obstacle to prosperity will be removed. At a recent nation-wide conference of purchasing agents, the question was asked: "What do you think is the major problem facing business today?" The answer was the necessity of amending the Wagner labor act in order to end this current period of labor fear.

Yet, despite the unfairness of the Wagner act, I believe that it is a tremendous forward step in the social progress of the United States. Give us a Congress with some guts and the needed amendments can quickly be put into the law. Through these amendments, employers and capital can be given equal protection with labor. For years labor was at the mercy of employers. Now employers are at the mercy of labor. Put these amendments into effect and each will get a square deal. When that time comes we can see the end of the unnecessary and destructive labor wars which have created great hardships to labor, forced employers into bankruptcy and increased the cost of living for everyone.

3 Baltic Countries Take Neutral Stand

Riga, Latvia, June 12 (AP).—The Baltic Entente—Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania—decided today to maintain its neutrality and keep out of Europe's "ideological blocs."

The decision, taken at the close of a three-day conference, reinforced a declaration by Latvian Foreign Minister William Munter, at the opening of the meeting, that the three nations should "pursue an independent policy, free of all outside influence."

Auditors' Section Has Rapid Growth

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—The auditors' section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association has grown by leaps and bounds since its organization in 1928, Chairman Harry L. Downey reported at the annual convention. This year the section has 57 representatives from 20 of the 22 Washington banks, compared with six represenatives from as many local banks in 1928.

During the year the unit held eight meetings with an average attendance of 35 and an average bank representatition of 15. The program committee was headed by Raymond G. Marx.

Downey reported that a committee of the auditors section made an audit and examination of the five Washington high school banks. "The school officials greatly appreciate this service and we consider it a privilege to be able to render this service," he said.

Bank Stocks Off, Insurance Higher

New York, June 12.—A slightly easier tone continued in the New York City bank stock market during the past week, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues on June 10 was $1,195,924,000 compared with $1,201,062,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $5,138,000, or 0.43 per cent.

The current average yield of the 16 issues of 5.40 per cent compares with a yield of 5.49 per cent on June 3. The current market value is now 86 per cent of the known book value, unchanged for the week. Based upon current figures the 16 issues are now quoted at an average of 12.5 times their known earnings, also unchanged for the week.

Insurance stocks in the New York City market again moved higher during the past week. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on June 10 amounted to $509,760,000 compared with $504,497,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $5,263,000, or 1.04 per cent.

Theodore Ahrens Dies in Louisville

Louisville, Ky., June 12 (AP).—Theodore Ahrens, 79, chairman of the board of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, and a founder of the American Radiator Co., died here tonight of uremia.

Ahrens was active in the civic affairs of Louisville—donor of a $500,000 fund with which the Theodore Ahrens Trade School was established and a former president and honorary life member of the Louisville Board of Trade.

Washington A. I. B. Reports Busy Year

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—A year crowded with activity by members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, was reported here by its president, William B. Laughlin. Outstanding events of 1937-1938 included the national convention in St. Paul last June, the educational dinner last September, the mid year dinner opening the second semester of classroom work, the thirty-third annual banquet and numerous others. During the first academic semester the chapter offered courses in bank organization and operation, negotiable instruments, money and banking, analysis of financial statements, investments and current economic problems. The largest enrollment—265—in recent years completed the fall semester's work.

Steel Industry Holds at 25% Of Its Capacity

Buying Is at a Low Ebb and Restricted to Current Needs.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 12.—Steel business continues in the doldrums with little prospect of the operating rate increasing this week, the magazine Steel said today. Buying is confined to a minimum measured by current needs and there is no accumulation of inventory, the magazine said. June orders are less than April and May. Steel production is hanging around 25 per cent of capacity with indications it will continue there this week.

Pittsburgh mills increased activity last week 1.3 points to 19.3 per cent, Youngstown 4 points to 25 per cent, and Buffalo 2 points to 23 per cent. Chicago lost half a point to 22 per cent, the lowest rate since 1934, Eastern Pennsylvania declined one half a point to 25.5 per cent, Birmingham 11 points to 58, New England 2 points to 25 per cent and Cincinnati 6 points to 16. There was no change at St. Louis at 39.3, Detroit 18, Wheeling 38 and Cleveland 31.

The only new business is being obtained mainly from public works projects. Placing of some 8,800 tons of shapes for an addition to the Government Printing Office in Washington leads in size. Union Pacific has placed 2,425 tons for bridges and the Tennessee Valley Authority has let 1,500 tons of steel transmission towers and 1,200 tons for a powerhouse.

A car building program by the Pennsylvania Railroad covering more than 1,000 units gives some hope to Eastern steel makers, but part of the steel may be taken from supplies now on hand.

Expected announcement of third quarter prices on galvanized sheets had been delayed and buying is being held at a minimum until uncertainty is removed. On the low rate of buying now prevailing prices do not assume much importance and are steady. Last week the composite of iron and steel was unchanged at $38.38 and the finished composite at $61.10. The composite of steelworks scrap lost 4 cents to $10.71, the lowest since July, 1935.

Wheat Crop Figures Soar

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., June 12.—The Maryland Crop Reporting Service said today the State would contribute its share to the record-breaking wheat crop in prospect for the country this year.

Present indications are the Maryland crop will be 3 per cent above the yield estimated early in May, the service said. The prospects on June 1 indicated a crop of 9,380,000 bushels of winter wheat, compared to 9,044,000 bushels last year, and to the average of 8,372,000 bushels in the ten years from 1927 through 1936.

This year's yield per acre was estimated at 19.5 bushels, compared to 19 bushels last year and the ten-year average of 18.6 bushels.

In May, the service said, "corn made slow growth in the cool weather, and wet field conditions prolonged the planting season. Fields are weedier than usual, but stands are good."

"Apple condition on June 1 was 51 per cent of normal. This compares with 80 per cent a year ago and the ten-year average of 58 per cent. June 1 peach prospects indicate a production of 330,000 bushels. This would be about a fourth shorter than the 1937 crop of 448,000 bushels and 12 per cent less than the ten-year average.

Stock Raisers Warned.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 12.—The Virginia Department of Agriculture has warned stockmen against ruining pastures by putting too many head of cattle on them early in the season.

When grass tops are too closely cropped they cannot feed the roots and the grass may die, the department points out. Furthermore, a thin covering of grass holds less rain and erosion may result. When pastures have been overgrazed for several seasons and the stand of plants is thin, pasture renovation may be undertaken by seeding, fertilizing and by mechanical aids to control erosion.

Wage-Hour Bill Will Cut Jobs, Sloan Declares

Government Ignores Inherent Causes of Depression, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 12.—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the General Motors Corporation, in a message to the company's 375,000 stockholders said today that the wage-hour bill pending in Congress would "create further unemployment" and "penalize the very group that it is supposed to help."

"It will disturb the industrial balance between one section of the country as compared with the others," he asserted. "The smaller business units will be penalized as against the larger ones. And while it does not directly affect the larger units of industry, which in general pay the highest wages and operate the shortest hours, they are indirectly prejudiced to the extent that the entire economy is affected."

Sloan discussed the measure for fixing maximum wage rates and minimum hours—in conference before a Senate-House group to adjust differences in bills approved by the two houses—in a communication on the "trend of business" distributed with the June dividend checks.

The Nation's economy, he said, had been unbalanced by too rapid increase in wages and shortening of work hours. Added to that, he noted, was "growing lack of confidence and a fear as to the future opportunities of American business due to the attitude of Government toward business" and policies "penalizing" industrial efficiency.

Too Much Credit.

"The policy, apparently, is to ignore largely the inherent causes of the depression," he continued, "and to attempt to offset them by the creation of further credit where there is already a superabundance, even to the extent that it cannot be used, and to embark upon a program of large governmental expenditure in unproductive enterprise, instead of eliminating the embargoes that now prevent the investment of much larger sums in private enterprise.

"There certainly is nothing in the picture to warrant optimism so far as the immediate future of industry in concerned, or to establish any confidence as to an intelligent solution of our difficulties."

Discussing the motor industry, Sloan pointed out employment in automobile factories usually declines seasonally at this time.

"This year," he went on, "there will be added to the seasonal influence the effect of declining business and the effect of the latter on the inventory of finished cars in the field which must be reduced at a greater rate than normally, in accordance with the declining trend of sales.

"Therefore, it is difficult to see how the automotive industry in the immedate future can contribute anything to the national economy by way of increasing employment . . ."

If the downtrend continues, he said, the motor industry's business next season, starting November 1, may approximate the 1932 low and "the amount of employment would have to be established accordingly."

Lumber Output Is Half of 1929

The lumber industry during the holiday week ended June 4 stood at 50 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 51 per cent of average 1929 shipments. Production was about 57 per cent of the corresponding week of 1929; shipments, about 48 per cent of that week's shipments. Partly due to the holiday, reported shipments and new orders for the week ended June 4, 1938, were lower than during any previous week since April 9; production was lowest since early March.

New business was 7 per cent below output; shipments 1 per cent below. All items in the week ended June 4, 1938, were appreciably lower than during the corresponding week of 1937. National production reported for the 1938 week by 5 per cent fewer mills was 9 per cent below the output of the preceding week; shipments were 10 per cent below shipments and new orders were 12 per cent below orders of the previous week, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association from regional associations covering the operations of important hardwood and softwood mills.

10 Men on Ship Riot Way to Jail

After a three-hour cruise on the steamboat Potomac Saturday and early yesterday, ten men got a three-minute additional ride in the Fourth Precinct police patrol.

The patrol was waiting at the dock when the men left the boat. Police said they were all involved in a miniature riot which broke out on board when the vessel was passing Alexandria on the way to Washington.

Charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct or assault were placed against each of the men except Lloyd Hawks, 21, 809 F street southwest, who was charged with the three offenses and destroying private property. Police held him under $90 collateral.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 8, 1938. Public hearings having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing streets, roads and alleys, considered in connection with the dedication of certain area for highway purposes, all as hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings and dedications, and that the same are in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered: That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, the street, road and alley area in the District of Columbia, as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 2040, 2082 and 2084, is hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after JULY 8, 1938, the title to the land comprised in said area so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps, the street, road and alley area hereby ordered closed being described as follows: 1. Closing of Trumbull Circle and part of Taylor Street west of Trumbull Circle, Northwest, and in connection therewith a dedication of streets west of 17th Street, north of Piney Branch Parkway, and east of Rock Creek Park; and also the closing of parts of said roads, all in the above described territory. 2. Closing part of 36th Street between Whitehaven Parkway and T Street, Northwest. 3. Closing part of Brookland Avenue, N.E., between Michigan Avenue and Bates Road, closing Bates Road, N.E., from Porto Rico Avenue (proposed) to 8th Street (proposed), and closing part of an alley in Square 3821; and providing also for a dedication of land for highway purposes in this section, including the extension and widening of Taylor Street from its present western terminus at 7th Street, N.E., westerly to the westerly boundary of Parcel 135/4, and for the extension of a proposed street northwesterly from Taylor Street, N.E., to the westerly boundary of Parcel 123/25, and for other street areas to be acquired by dedication in this section." Any and all parties interested must file objections, if any, to said closings in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on July 8, 1938, as aforesaid, and said street, road and alley area shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said Act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULLIVAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Bob Burns Says—

Of course you'll find gentlemen in all parts of the country, but I've always been proud of the fact that Arkansas men treat their women jest a little bit better than anybody else.

Not long ago when my wife and I were touring through Arkansas, we saw a woman ridin' along in a buggy and her husband was between the shafts pullin' it down the road. I turned to my wife proudly and says, "Where else would you find a man showin' his wife so much consideration?" My wife went over to the woman and said, "You're very fortunate in having such a wonderful, kind husband. There are very few husbands that would pull their wives along in a buggy like this."

The woman says, "Well, we don't have no arguments about that—I ride in the mornin' and he rides in the afternoon.

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY— No Hard Feelings By Frank Martinek

WELL, MERCEDES, NOW YOU KNOW WHY I WAS MEETING THAT MYSTERIOUS LITTLE RED-HEAD--
I'M SO ASHAMED FOR INTERFERING, DON --I NEVER DREAMED SHE WAS A SPY --
493-A
THAT'S THE WORST PART OF THIS VICIOUS, UNDER-HANDED WARFARE AGAINST AMERICA--THE ENEMY NEVER FLY THEIR TRUE COLORS--- THEY ATTACK ONLY BY STEALTH AND TREACHERY
DON, YOU'VE GOT TO LET ME REPAIR THE DAMAGE I'VE DONE--I WANT TO HELP-
NOT IN THIS SCRAP, LADY- IT'S TOO DANGEROUS-- DANGEROUS! SO YOU THINK I'VE TURNED COWARD- THAT YOU CAN'T TRUST ME TO-
NO! NO! HONEY-- I DON'T MEAN THAT-- LOOK! IF YOU'RE SO ANXIOUS TO HELP I- I'LL FIND A WAY--- THAT'S A PROMISE

World Affairs To Be Subjects At Chapel Hill

Lectures Begin Today in University of North Carolina Series.

Events which have shaken the world in recent months will be gone over at the North Carolina Institute of International Relations, which opens today at the Chapel Hill University and continues through June 22.

The foreign policy of the United States, the Czechoslovak problem, the South American dictatorships, the war in China and internal strife in Russia will occupy speakers. The program is sponsored jointly by the university and the American Friends Service Committee. Sessions will be held at 8 a. m., 2:45 p. m. and 8 p. m., with a devotional service at 8:30 a. m. each day except Sunday.

The first speaker will be Prof. Roger Henry Soltau, of the Friends International Center in Geneva, and professor of European history at the American University, Beirut, Syria, who will talk at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow. At 8 p. m. Norman Thomas will speak on "What America Should Do in the Present International Situation."

Soviet Is Topic.

Speakers Tuesday morning will be Prof. Soltau, Irwin Canham, Washington representative of the Christian Science Monitor, on "What Makes American-Foreign Policy?" and Mrs. Nadia Danilevsky, former social worker in Russia for the American Society of Friends, on 'Forces for War and Peace in Soviet Russia."

Beginning that afternoon, Prof. W. J. McKee, of the university education department, will address the sessions each day on "Projects and Methods of School and Community Education in World Affairs."

"The European Situation from the Standpoint of Czechoslovakia and Eastern Europe" will be the topic Wednesday morning of Canham, Mrs. Danilevsky and Brackette Lewis, executive secretary of the Masaryk Institute, Pittsburgh.

To Discuss Ethics.

Friday morning's topic will be "Ethics and Religion Applied to World Affairs," presented by Prof. Soltau, Dr. Hornell N. Hart, of Hartford Theological Seminary and professor-elect at Duke University, and "Some Economic Aspects of International Relations," by Dr. Herbert von Beckerath, professor of economics at Duke and Carolina.

"Social and Economic Trends in the South" will be discussed by Dr. Hart and Dr. Rupert V. Vance, of the university's Institute for Research in Social Science, and "Dictatorship in South America," by Dean W. W. Pierson, jr., of the university's graduate school, on Saturday morning. "Which Way Europe?" will be the subject of a symposium that night.

Next Sunday night, "The Background of the Sino-Japanese Conflict" will be presented by Bishop Paul B. Kern, Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Nasheville, Tenn.

W. I. Stone to Speak.

William I. Stone, vice president of the Foreign Policy Association in Washington, will lecture the morning of June 20 on "Behind the Scenes in Washington—American Foreign Policy in the Making." That night, Dr. Glover Clark, of the University of Denver, author and lecturer, will speak on "The Oriental Struggle and America's Future."

Other lectures are planned for the two succeeding days.

Two D. C. Writers In O'Brien List of Best Short Stories

Publication of Edward J. O'Brien's "Best Short Stories of 1938" reveals that Gerald Breckenridge and Lella Warren, Washington writers, received two-star rating in the list of distinguished short stories published during the last year.

Breckenridge scored with his story, "A Hill of Beans," and Lella Warren with "The Other's Porridge." Both stories appeared in Story magazine.

Breckenridge, author of the novels "Brief Kingdom" and "The Besieged," is a member of The Post staff, and Miss Warren's husband.

Whitney to Lecture Convicts on Travel

Ossining, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Sing Sing Prison, where huge barriers are erected to keep guests from straying, is contemplating adding travelogues as part of its curriculum.

Plans for travel lectures were made known today with Richard Whitney, whose pay has been trebled—to 15 cents a day—as one of the lecturers. Illustrated slides will be used to depict the beauties of other climes.

Small Claims Court Given 1,919 Cases

More than 1,900 cases were filed with the new Small Claims and Conciliation Court during its first full month of operation, Grant Kirkham, clerk, reported yesterday to Attorney General Cummings.

Of the 1,919 actions in May, 1,823 were contract claims, the remainder being damage claims, chiefly resulting from automobile collisions.

Amount of claims filed came to $58,711, while judgments awarded the sum of $12,843. More than $2,000 was paid into the clerk's office in the form of fees. Nearly half the claims were for sums between $10 and $30.

Snite, in Iron Lung, Leaves the Hospital

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—Fred Snite, jr., has gone home in an iron lung in which he has been fighting infantile paralysis for 26 months. He was discharged yesterday from Billings Memorial Hospital, where he had been under observation

Grand Jury to Get Cash Case Today

Miami, June 12 (AP).—State Attorney George A. Worley completed today the case he will present to the grand jury tomorrow, starting Florida's bid for the life of Franklin Pierce McCall, accused kidnap-slayer of Jimmy Cash.

Worley said he would ask the specially summoned jurors to indict the 21-year-old Princeton truck driver for kidnaping and first-degree murder, both capital crimes in Florida. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men will be a witness.

Mocking Bird's Concert Delays Radio Program

Williamsburg, Va., June 12 (AP).—A mocking bird gave an impromptu radio concert today to interrupt the broadcast of the College of William and Mary baccalaureate program. The bird perched on a microphone, placed in a tree to pick up the processional, and broke into song. The speaker stopped for a half minute.

Italians to Seek Merida Treasure

Norfolk, Va., June 12 (AP).—Jewels and silver, value unknown, lured a new salvaging expedition today toward the 27-year-old grave of the Ward Line steamer Merida, 65 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The Italian salvage steamer Falco, which successfully sought the sunken treasure of the British vessel Egypt several years ago, will take aboard supplies here this week for the attempt.

The Merida sank after a collision with the Admiral Farragut May 11, 1911. All her more than 200 passengers were saved, but their valuables, left with the purser, and a quantity of silver in cargo were lost.

Movie Owners to Meet.

CCC Plans to Enroll At Least 80,000 in July

The CCC will enroll between 80,000 and 85,000 youths in the first 20 days of July, Robert Fechner, director, announced yesterday. The men will serve as replacements for others who have left the corps in recent months or will leave at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. They will bring the enrolled strength of the CCC to 300,000, aside from some 7,500 Indians and 4,200 territorials.
